District 34 fights to make its vote count

MARY FOLEY
Staff Reporter

The Antioch District 34 Board of Education voted unanimously to file a legal action against County Clerk Willard Helander. The board wants Helander to certify the entire district to allow voters in Antioch to vote, as a district, on the Lake Villa unit district plan.

The problem is very complex. Everyone in Antioch will vote on the issue as members of Antioch Community High School District 117. However, the Antioch portion of District 34 votes will not be separated and included in the determination of District 34's stand on the formation of the new district.

According to Regional Superintendent Edward Gonwa, District 34 will have a voice in the process. However, only those voters who live in the "affected" area, which amounts to 19 percent of the registered voters in the district, will be counted for District 34. Essentially, only those in Lake Villa and Lindenhurst will vote as District 34.

"He's dead wrong," said District 34 Superintendent Dr. Daniel Burke. "He's so wrong we're filing a lawsuit. He is wrong if he says District 34 is able to vote. Only 19 percent are allowed to vote leaving 81 percent of the district disenfranchised."

Marina — deal or pricey?

TINA L. SWIECH
Staff Reporter

While some Realtors contend the Fox Waterway Agency is going to spend too much on a marina they've agreed to purchase, others say sites like this are far and few between.

Dr. William Dam, chairman of the agency, said when the issue came to the board Hidden Cove Marina on Rte. 12 in Fox Lake was a suitable location for their headquarters, the board voted unanimously to purchase the site.

The Agency was asked by Fox Lake to move its current marine unit on Nippersink Rd. because the zoning there doesn't fit its need. The main office on Grand Ave. is also too small for any meetings, and to house the growing group of employees. Simply put, the Agency needed a new location.

ACHS teachers Golden Apple finalists

In November of 1994, The Golden Apple Foundation selection committee began reviewing over 400 nominations for this prestigious award. Of those 400 nominees, the following teachers at ACHS were nominated from members of the Antioch community because of the profound impact they have had on the lives of their students: Debbie Rummel, Darlene Hammer, Laurie Hargrove, Ann Kakacek, Jon Hansen and Karen Day.

In January, two of the teachers were named among the 30 finalists to receive the Golden Apple Award—Darlene Hammer and Jon Hansen.

Hammer received her bachelor's degree from Northern Illinois University and a master's degree from National-Louis University. She has been a teacher at ACHS since 1990. Her philosophy of teaching is that learning is a lifelong process and everyone deserves a chance to learn. Students need to be treated with dignity and respect if teachers expect the same, and it is the job of the educator to help students realize their potential. Hammer is grateful for the opportunity to participate in the quest for the Golden Apple. She is proud to represent Antioch Community High School and all the fine educators who teach there. As both an educator and parent of high school students, Hammer values the time she spends with the youth of Antioch. As a final word of encouragement, her motto is, "Humor—never leave home without it!"

Hansen has been teaching high school students for over 18 years, 14 of which have been at ACHS. While at ACHS, Hansen has coached basketball, started the honors English program and developed programs for gifted students. He has also been a speaker at national and state teacher conferences. He believes strongly in helping students to discover their special qualities and helping them develop the confidence to express their unique selves. In his classroom he hopes his students learn to care about writing, reading and speaking; to explore their imaginations; to develop strong values and vision; and to expand their understanding and experience of life. Hansen appreciates the special caliber of students he has had the privilege to teach over the years. He feels that he has learned as much from his students as he hopes they have learned from him.

Members of the Golden Apple Foundation will evaluate both teachers during their classes followed by interviews with selected parents, students and teachers as part of the final selection process. The 10 winners of the Golden Apple Award will be inducted into the Academy at an awards ceremony in May of this year.

Senior tax freeze discussed

MARY FOLEY
Staff Reporter

The senior property tax freeze was discussed at the Antioch Township regular board meeting. Tax Assessor Cliff Houghton was on hand to answer questions.

"It is important if they (seniors) qualify now to get the paperwork in," said Houghton.

Houghton said there has been some confusion regarding the new law which allows senior citizens age 65 and older to freeze the level of property taxes. He also said there are still some questions he can't answer.

"If it is going to be frozen at the 1993 level and the house value goes down in 1996, I don't know what will happen," said Houghton. Trustee Rich Kufalk told the group of state legislators are working on some of the problems with the law.

"I talked with Adeline (Geokaris)," explained Kufalk.

"I think they are going to work on some changes. They might even raise the $35,000 level higher."

The deadline to have the forms completed in order to freeze the property taxes at the 1993 level was Feb. 15. The deadline to have the paperwork in for the 1995 tax year has not yet been determined. However, the forms should be mailed out in the end of April or early May.

"I'm going to try and hold some meeting for people," said Houghton. "It is very confusing."

For example, the amount of social security income must be included in the calculation of household income, despite the fact the amount may not be taxable income on personal income tax calculations. To qualify, household income cannot exceed $35,000.

Household income includes the total income of all household members. In plain English, if an adult child is living in the home with the seniors, that child's income must also be included in the calculation of household income.

Anyone with questions regarding the tax freeze should call the Antioch Assessor's Office at 395-1545.

UHAUA reps to call on sewer slowpokes

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Representatives from United Homeowners Association of Unincorporated Antioch will be calling on business owners and subdivision officials who have not yet sent a letter in support or against a sewer feasibility study. The study, which would be conducted by an outside contractor for the Lake County Public Works, would evaluate the costs and possibility of sewer service to the Antioch Township area.

"We need to get these letters in," said Carole Jonites, president of UHAUA. "We are concentrating on the business owners and the stragglers."

Volunteers will be calling on businesses in person during the next couple of weeks. Other volunteers are working to get in touch with subdivision officials by telephone.

Some subdivision leaders plan to bring in their letters to the next UHAUA meeting which is Feb. 21 at 7:30 p.m. at the Felter's Subdivision clubhouse.

"We are hoping to get all of the letters in by the end of February," said Jonites. "To be ready for the first Public Service Committee meeting in March. Judy Martini, the committee's liaison, will be bringing them in."

At this time, UHAUA has received letters representing approximately 1,300 homeowners. It is estimated the township has 2,900 homes on the tax rolls.

Grayslake questions assets due unit school

NEAL TUCKER

Staff Reporter

Grayslake High School District 127 Superintendent Ray Novak was surprised by the division of assets tallied for the proposed Lake Villa Unit School District. The estimated $6.1 million that would go to the new school district if approved by voters in April was significantly over the mark of what he was expecting.

"It comes as news to me. It should be somewhere around a couple of million," Novak said.

Novak said he used replacement value in assessing the value of the district because that is how insurance companies assess value of property. In contrast, other school districts affected by the formation of a Lake Villa school district used actual value, including depreciation schedules, in determining the value of their district assets.

Speaking off the cuff in a humorous tone, Novak said some of the numbers of the other schools would need to be reworked. As an example, he indicated Millburn School District's land appraisal might be slightly low at $29,897.

"If their land is only worth $29,000 I'll go over and buy it tomorrow," Novak said.

He also indicated that the total value of Antioch High School District 117 should be more than Grayslake High School.

Novak said using a depreciation schedule for buildings would dramatically change the total contribution by Grayslake High School. He explained the state looks at buildings over 50 years old as being completely depreciated. In practical terms, that means they are worth nothing.

Some of the oldest buildings on the Grayslake High School campus began their depreciation schedules in 1947 and therefore would have little or no effect on the total evaluation of assets. Also, the current redistribution of assets does not include the actual value of the new 40,000 square-foot wing being built with COP financing. The total value of that expansion at this point is roughly zero as well. Novak said this issue would need to be worked out in the next couple of weeks to give Grayslake School District 127 voters enough time to decide if they would grant Lake Villa a unit school district.

Voters in Millburn School District 24, Antioch School District 34, Antioch High School District 117, Grant High School District 124, Lake Villa Elementary District 41 and Grayslake High School District 127 will have the opportunity to approve the formation of a Lake Villa Unit School District. Millburn residents have been battling the proposed district because they say it will devastate their school district. The school board of Antioch School District 34 is considering legal action to block the vote because some of the school district residents in Antioch Township will be placed on the ballot with School District 117 only.

To be approved, the unit district must receive a simple majority in each of the districts voting. Failure in any one of the districts means the unit district proposal fails.

In principle, Novak said he is not opposed to a unit district concept. In fact, if the state could start over again that is the way he would prefer the state board of education pursue partitioning of school districts. Only two other states have more school districts than Illinois—the mammoth land areas of Texas and Alaska.

If the unit school district is approved, 211 students who attend Grayslake High School would then live within the Lake Villa School District and begin attending there once a facility is completed. This is another reason Novak says the unit district makes sense. As the county population continues to grow, being bused from the Lake Villa area will only become a longer journey each day.

Novak said his school board is already working toward a satisfactory number for distribution of assets. All the districts have a meeting where they will sit down and talk about the issue. He said the board realizes the voter will be looking to it for direction when they go to vote on the issue April 4. However, to endorse a 'yes' vote, Novak said the payment total must come down.

"We've done a good job here and to pay (a penalty) to start another district is wrong. We would be paying an inordinate amount and that is just not going to go," Novak said of his board's approval.

Antioch gets new police officer

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

As a result of an application for the COPS FAST program, the Antioch Police Department will be adding a new officer at a low cost. The officer will be used in a community policing program.

"They called and told us our funding was approved," said Village Clerk Candy Roe.

The Antioch Village Board applied for a federal grant under the COPS FAST program in late December. The program, which had become available to smaller municipalities, offsets up to 75 percent of the cost of hiring a police officer for community policing.

While there is no official agreement yet on how the officer will be used, the plan is to use the officer in various capacities including heading up the DARE program as well as establishing an office at Antioch Community High School.

Village Manager Tim Wells told the board in December he spoke with Assistant Principal Stephanie France at the high school. He was told the school board would be willing to pay $3,500 of the officers salary each year. That would leave $6,500 to be paid by the village and the rest would be covered by the grant.

Wells also said they would hire a new officer for the Antioch Police Department and use an officer already trained in DARE to man the satellite office at the school. That officer would spend 3.5 days at the school and 1.5 days in the DARE program.

Having an officer at a school is not a new idea, and is covered by the federal grant. Waukegan currently has four officers at their school as well as Wheeling and Mundelein.

Family pleads guilty to drug charges

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Three members of the Gunn family pleaded guilty to various drug charges this week: the father Grover, his wife Charmaine, and 20-year-old daughter, Samantha. The Gunns were arrested on Nov. 3 for multiple charges including possession of a controlled substance and intent to deliver.

Their arrests were a result of several months of investigative work by the Lake County Metropolitan Enforcement Group. In all, six people were arrested Nov. 3 and officers confiscated approximately $10,000 in cocaine. The investigation centered on drug activities in two Antioch Township resorts, The Ship and Langs.

Grover, 39, was sentenced to six years in prison following his guilty plea to unlawful possession with intent to deliver. Circuit Court Judge Charles Scott accepted the plea. Charmaine, 37, also pleaded guilty to possession with the intent to deliver, and will be sentenced on March 14. She could face probation, prison, or both.

Daughter Samantha was sentenced to 90 days in jail, and probation for 24 months. However, her sentence was stayed. She was required to pay fines and court costs.

According to Mike Maley, director of the Lake County Metropolitan Enforcement Group (MEG), the Gunns were dealing at both locations.

According to officers, the Gunns were "major figures" in the Antioch drug trade. Police confiscated approximately 3 ounces of cocaine, packaged for sale. The street value of the over 100 packages has been estimated to be between $9,000 and $10,000.

Driver ticketed after hitting child

The driver who hit Laura Weber, 11, of Antioch Feb. 7, received a ticket for failure to reduce speed. After an investigation, it was learned the bus had its yellow warning lights on, thereby allowing the driver, Andrew Faltynek, to avoid a ticket for passing a stopped school bus, which carries an automatic 30 suspension.

"I could have sworn the bus was stopped, the red lights were on, and the flag was down," said Laura's mother, Ann Weber, who witnessed the accident. "When I was sitting the car, I saw the bus stop. But, apparently it had the yellow lights flashing, not the red." Laura Weber is doing fine after the accident. She received some bumps and bruises but has already returned to school. —by

Remembering 'Pigeon,' the duck

Duck story

My past dog stories about "Trick or Treating Moose" and "Clyde the Birthday Shopper" prompted me to share an animal story of my own. Many years ago, we had a big white duck named Pigeon. We purchased her and her two siblings at the same time. Since they were so tiny, we kept them a cage in our garage. All week long, while I was working, my husband gave them their food and water.

When the weekend rolled around, I went to the garage to take my turn tending the ducks. I noticed one had hardly grown and could not stand or walk. I separated it from the others, gave it hot baths in my wash tubs and plenty of TLC. Soon she was growing and walking. However, she was quite pigeon-toed and actually placed one foot over the other as she slowly wobbled along, thus the name "Pigeon."

Soon all three ducks were large enough to live outdoors. Two of them left us after a couple of weeks, but Pigeon stayed with us for about four years. During the cold months, we kept her warm in the garage. In the summer months, she had the run of our property and channel front. She truly became a member of the family.

When we entertained outdoors and gathered with our guests under the tree, she would sit right in the middle of our circle of friends. If we had guests over in our back room to play games or cards, she would walk up to the back door, rap with her beak and quack until we let her in to visit. If our dog or one of the neighbors' dogs would go into the water for a swim, Pigeon would jump on their backs, hold on to the fur at their necks with her beak and enjoy a free float.

Yes, dumb animals indeed!

Miss Liz

On Feb. 3, I found myself at Discovery Zone with husband, daughter Karen Schmehl, daughter Barbara Filipis and my two grandbabies, Alyssa and Lindsey. It was Alyssa's third birthday and Barbara asked us along to enjoy the festivities.

Upon our arrival, I walked into the jungle gym area with Alyssa. As I stood watching her begin her journey through the various mazes of play equipment, I felt someone staring at me. I glanced down and noticed the young mister standing at my feet was little Jeff Baird from Camp Crayon.

He was there with his dad. I asked if he would get Alyssa started through the mazes, and he readily stepped in to help. It was fun seeing you outside of Camp, Jeff, and thanks for showing Alyssa the ropes. You are very big and brave.

Definitely good

Ninety-nine percent of the time, the little ones of the Camp Crayon program are totally well behaved and very polite. However, every now and then one of the little misses or misters will test the waters and push things to the limit.

At these occasional difficult times, they may receive the ultimate in reprimands—the dreaded "no treat today." A while back, one of these little people received this ultimate of punishments and has been super ever since.

Until recently that is, when during circle time this little person, whom shall remain nameless to protect the guilty, was once again testing the waters. I called the perpetrator to me, reminded the individual of what happened in the past and encouraged him to her to do better.

As luck would have it, my words of wisdom worked. When snack time rolled around, this little person kept asking "Am I being good, Miss Liz?" "Most definitely," came my reply.

Over and over, the question was asked, "I'm being really good, right, Miss Liz?" No matter how many times I offered my positive assurances of good behavior, I don't think my comforting words were believed until the worried little individual ate the very last bite of the snack.

Talk about feeling mean and guilty. I carried quite a burden that day, realizing just one more time, in one more way, just how eager to please these bright young people are—and also realizing it definitely isn't always easy being a kid with us "mean old" adults around.

Emmons School

After-school boredom ended with Lower Grade program

A new after-school activity program is being offered this year by Antioch Lower Grade School. This program will initially be open to all third grade boys and girls. Two different activity choices will take place from 3:20 to 4:30 p.m., one day a week.

"Games" started Feb. 1 and continues through March 22. Scott Staver, the physical education teacher, will coordinate games that will stress non-competitive sports and physical fitness. Enrollment is limited to 40 students.

"Dance" will be held on Tuesdays starting Feb. 21 and ending on April 18. Katherine Jester, a first grade teacher, will be teaching dance movements to music, incorporating pom-poms. Enrollment in this activity is limited to 25 students.

Enrollment in these activities is purely voluntary and on a "first come, first served" basis. Information/permission slips were sent home to students on Jan. 26. If enrollments are not filled, the vacancies will open up to the second grade students. Additional activity sessions, to begin after spring vacation, are in the planning stages. According to Mary Kay McNeill, principal, "If student and parent interest in this type of offering remains strong, additional activities may be provided to include more students and grade levels."

Emerging hero

Antioch's Adam Becker goes up for 2 of his 24 points against Mundelein. The Improving Sequoia are also the No. 8 seed in the 16-team regional and will be hosting the opener against Lake Zurich March 1. ## —Shop Antioch— Hurray for the groundhog!

It's official—spring will be early this year. I know that's hard to believe as you bundle up to go outdoors, but I have this news straight from the best possible source—our national groundhog. I don't remember the last time that he didn't see his shadow. The other night I heard the weatherman say to expect a warm-up the next day. I was very excited—warm weather in February! The "warm-up" turned out to be a high of 30 degrees—big deal.

So much for an early spring. When I go outdoors I know we are still in the middle of winter. We still need to bundle up and try to stay clear of the colds and flu that is being passed around. So, bundle up and take care of yourself. But if you notice that, as you are bundling up, your clothes are a bit worn and tired looking (of if you are simply tired of wearing the same old thing), there's good news:

Downtown Antioch is offering tremendous savings on winter apparel throughout the town. Prices are slashed and re-slashed, and now is the time to take advantage of the savings.

Four Squires has slashed prices on their women's winter apparel so much that you wonder how they can stay in business. This is your big chance to pick up some beautiful sweaters, slacks and sportswear at rock bottom prices. Plus, you can pick these up and know you are buying top quality and the latest fashions at far below prices that other "discount outlets" offer. You'll find the same savings throughout their men's department, too.

Choosey Child is making a final "clean sweep" of all children's winter apparel. Most moms have been busy hustling through the racks of apparel (newborn to size 14), planning their kids' wardrobes for the winter of '96. It's a great way to dress your child in fashionable, quality clothing at bargain prices. The end of February will bring the end of winter clearance sales and remaining kids' apparel will be considered for donation to PADS.

BJ's Fashions for Men and BJ's Sports are standing side-by-side to offer great buys in the latest in fashion for men of all ages. Normally you would find fashionable, quality clothing at reasonable prices. But this month you'll find that same great clothing at drastically reduced prices. Their knowledgeable staff is eager to help you select birthday, anniversary, Father's Day, or even next year's Christmas gifts now to help you ease the bite on your 1995 shopping budget.

Watch out for the dust when you enter the Clothes Connection at Flo's. Flo is busy with her Spring Cleaning Sale. She's sweeping out all her ladies' winter apparel with a big broom to make room for spring arrivals. She's cut her prices in half to make it easier for you to enjoy a spruced-up wardrobe for the remainder of the winter. But don't be selfish and hog the good buys to yourself—it's a great time to pick up a birthday gift too.

Village recycling program working well

MARY FOLEY
Staff Reporter

The Village of Antioch received the results of the curbside recycling program for November. Roughly 854,152 pounds of recyclables were collected by year's end in the village. "We have a good participation rate," said Mayor Marilyn Shineflug.

For 1993, the village logged in a 65 percent participation rate. Of the 1,707 homes serviced by the Waste Management North program, an average of 1,106 homeowners participated in the program.

Waste Management collected 477,418 pounds of newspaper from the village, 30,248 pounds of magazines and catalogs, 30,248 pounds of mixed paper, 10,083 pounds of corrugated cardboard, 78,988 pounds of colored glass, 133,178 pounds of clear glass, 40,719 pounds of tin, 31,840 pounds of aluminum and 21,431 of mixed plastic milk jugs and other plastics.

Of the 854,152 pounds collected by the end of November 1994, approximately 427.08 tons were processed.

According to Shineflug, the monthly information will be put into the computer in order to provide information to SWALCO.

Emmons board to abate taxes

As promised during the referendum campaign, the Emmons Board of Education has taken action to abate the total cost of the first years' bond payment on the new addition by $62,000. This amount represents the interest earned from the total bond during the first year.

The $62,000 will be used to offset the first years' tax bills, reducing the total bond payment from $167,000 to $105,000. This will cause a reduction in individual tax bills.

Antioch Waves make strides

The Lake County YMCA Seahorse swim team is benefiting from the Antioch Waves summer swim program.

Alyssa and Kaitlyn Ament, Casey Clark, Katie Culp, Andrew Farrell and Meagan Petkus have continued their swimming competition this winter by participating with the Seahorses of Waukegan.

The 8 and under girls' freestyle relay team, with K. Ament and Petkus as members, has made a state qualifying time.

Culp, in the 9 to 10 girls group, is nearing state qualifying times. A. Ament (6 and under), Clark (11 to 12) and Farrell (8 and under), have also consistently placed at the top of age groups in individual events while competing against swim powers from Rockford, Evanston, Northbrook and Milwaukee.

Their individual performances will strengthen the Antioch Waves' team efforts, and the 1995 Waves are expected to continue its steady improvement as area participation increases.

Antioch resident is civilian of the year

Anne K. Rasmussen, Antioch resident and budget analyst for the Naval Reserve Readiness Command (REDCOM) Region 13, has been chosen as the 1994 Civilian of the Year by a selection board convened by REDCOM 13.

"It was really a shock (to be chosen)," said Rasmussen. "But I was really happy. It validates all the work I did."

Rasmussen, who has been with REDCOM 13 since October 1981, helps to formulate the budget for the Naval Reserve in the region, monitors execution rates of the budget and teaches personnel how to keep financial records, among other duties. Rasmussen is also the acting comptroller when the comptroller is absent.

Anne Rasmussen "filled in (as comptroller) during a time of great transition and during the illness of the previous comptroller," said Capt. Ronald R. Lustman, deputy commander of REDCOM 13. "She was filling the position of a GS-12—a department head job, as a GS-9," said Lustman. "She was a key player during the realignment stage (of REDCOM 13 when it transferred out several reserve centers and transferred in 14 reserve centers and two readiness centers)."

"She took the responsibility (of the office) and never missed a step," said Lustman.

Rasmussen enjoys her job because of the professional training she has received in the Navy.

"The Navy trains you so often that you can stay in the same job for 10 years and every day is something different because of all the changes that go in the financial world—in the Navy," said Rasmussen. "It's challenging because there's constant change."

She also likes the people she works with and that the "constant turnover with Navy personnel (keeps it interesting). You're always meeting new people."

Antioch Council names essay contest winners

Three Carmel High School students were selected as winners in this year's Knights of Columbus Essay Contest by the Fr. A.J. Henderson Council 3800 in Antioch.

First place went to Emily Barnett of Waukegan who will receive a $100 U.S. Savings bond from the Council and her essay has been submitted in the State competition from the Antioch Council.

Second place went to Lauren Boydston of Grayslake and she will receive a $50 U.S. Savings bond from the Council and her essay has been submitted by a neighboring council in the State competition.

Third place went to Ryan Gibbons of Mundelein and he will receive a $50 U.S. Savings bond from the Council.

Final judging of the essays at the State level will be announced in April.

Geo-Karis resolution creates environmental task force

Legislation introduced by state Sen. Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) creating a task force on environmental clean-up passed out of the Environment and Energy Committee unanimously.

The 24-member task force will study ways to return to productivity properties that are now vacant because they are in need of environmental clean-up.

"There are many parcels of land across the state that lie vacant because the cost of cleaning them up is prohibitive to investors," said Geo-Karis. "Investors purchase fertile farmland in outer suburbs instead of investing in the more established suburbs. This task force will examine strategies that would make environmentally impoverished sites more desirable."

According to Geo-Karis, the findings of the task force would help a Treasurer's office program whereby the state can encourage economic development with deposits to banks which agree to low interest loans to new businesses.

The task force will be comprised of the directors or their designees from the Dept. of Commerce and Community Affairs, who shall act as task force chairman; Dept. of Public Health; Ill. Environmental Protection Agency; and Ill. Emergency Management Agency.

Heart Assn. invites Lake Co. residents to win dream vacation

What is your idea of a dream vacation? For some, it is a romantic trip to Maui or Paris; for others, it's a family vacation to Disneyland. The American Heart Assn. wants to make that dream come true by offering Lake Co. residents the chance to win one of eight air transportation packages to destinations within the U.S. and around the world, while helping fight heart disease and stroke at the same time.

"Give Wings to Your Heart," sponsored by American Airlines, will benefit the medical research and community education programs of the American Heart Assn. of Metropolitan Chicago. Volunteer agents will sell 35,000 tickets at $5 each (or 5 for $20) for chances to win round-trip airfare to any destination serviced by American Airlines.

"Great progress has been made in the battle against heart disease," said Libertyville resident Susan Rancourt, who is chairing the Wings program in Lake Co., "but it remains to be Lake Co.'s No. 1 killer, accounting for 42 percent of all deaths in 1992. Through 'Give Wings to Your Heart,' we will not only raise desperately needed funds for local research and community programs that teach the public how to prevent heart disease, but we are giving Lake Co. residents a very good chance to win an exciting vacation."

Two winners will receive two round-trip tickets to any worldwide destination American Airlines flies, three winners receive two continental U.S. tickets.

Because only 35,000 tickets are being printed, the odds of winning one of the eight trips are exceptionally good. With one ticket, the chances of winning are 1 in 4,375; with two tickets, 1 in 2,188; and 10 tickets increase the chances to 1 in 438. Winners will be drawn on April 6 at the American Heart Assn., 208 S. LaSalle, Chicago.

Rancourt is coordinating the efforts of more than 50 volunteers who will be selling tickets throughout Lake Co. Tickets also can be purchased at the AHA's Lake Co. Div. office at 1117 S. Milwaukee Ave., Libertyville.

Working Through Mourning and Bereavement

Join us for the Life Skills Series of lectures on issues facing people in today's world. These educational lectures are free, and so is the parking! Refreshments provided.

Wednesday, February 22, 1995 7-8 p.m.

Presented by:

Mary Wheeler, R.N.
Bereavement Specialist
Saint Therese Medical Center

- We deal with loss and change throughout our lives, yet the death of a loved one can be the most traumatic event we ever face.
- Grief is a process of healing which affects each person differently.
- The important thing is that grief must be dealt with, the pain must be endured and the only way is to travel through it (not around it, over it, under it, etc.).

Grief is a normal process yet it may be manifested by a multitude of physical disturbances, psychological upheaval and a life turned upside down.

This Life Skills presentation and time of sharing will attempt to explain and discuss the questions and concerns, of coping and integration when we suffer the loss of a loved one through death.

Marina

But when officials signed a lease-purchase agreement last month for Hidden Cove at a cost of $736,000 some Realtors said the amount was just too high.

Judy Martini, former Agency director and Remax Advantage of Antioch real estate agent, reported the property is worth only between $550,000 and $600,000. "I thought we were paying a premium price," said Martini.

Martini said she never intended to make an issue about it, and told Dr. Dam all along she wasn't in agreement with the price. However, she does feel it's probably the best location right now.

Whether or not the site will be worthwhile in the long run, Martini said that would depend on whether a riverboat casino goes in or not.

Michael Lescher, an agent for the same company said he's not about to second guess the Agency on other suggested sites, but "I believed they should be buying Ray Freeman's place for $547,000."

Freeman is the longtime owner of Hidden Cove.

Lescher went on to say the price of the site is around "35 percent over the market value."

Agency director and marina owner Ron Baker Dr. Dam talked to Martini previously about the offer. "At the time she was consulted, she did not say anything negative," said Baker. "In fact, she gave us her blessing."

Dr. Dam agrees the price is high and he admits even the state which would be purchasing the property "thinks it's a bad appraisal" but they probably didn't factor in the 40-plus piers on the location.

"It's okay to vote 'no,'" said Dam, "but come fall when we have an eviction notice" it will be different story, he said. "In the long run, it will be a big payoff."

Baker agrees. As the owner of Bakers Marine Support in Antioch, Baker said he knows that marinas for sale on the Chain O' Lakes are hard to come by.

Because not many have been sold recently, it's hard to determine a comparable cost value for the businesses, he said.

Hidden Cove has many good features for the Agency headquarters, said Baker. Not only does it have piers (4 right now there's a moratorium on building any new ones), but it has a ramp to Pistakee Lake for the Agency backhoe and other large equipment, and it is also centrally located, between both Lake and McHenry counties.

Baker said Freeman has come down on the original price. He did want $1 million prior, said Baker. Lescher explained at one time Freeman did show him a written Realtors appraisal at $1.4 million, but that doesn't mean much.

For the last four years, said Lescher, Freeman has "tried in earnest to get $700,000 for his property."

Dam has announced if anyone on the board can find him a better location for the Agency headquarters, he will purchase Hidden Cove himself.

Dist. 34

belong to District 34. "If you cull out the people in District 34 who live within the proposed Lake Villa unit district boundaries," explained Burke, "only 38 percent of the 117 voters remain. This is a minority of voters."

The vote separation is a critical issue for the proposed district because the school code requires the new district garner approval by a majority vote in every affected district. This means, in District 34, only 19 percent of the voters will be able to make a decision for the district which would cost $5.3 million dollars. And, those voting would be the beneficiary of the $5.3 million.

The attorney representing District 34 will be Jim Bakk, who represented Millburn in its bid to remove the Lake Villa district plan from the ballot. Bakk said the action would be essentially a writ of Mandamus/injunction type action naming Helander as defendant.

"She certified which districts could vote on the issue," said Bakk. "When you stand to potentially lose $5.3 million dollars, why not let us vote on it." Bakk is working on the legal action and hopes to file by Friday.

On another front, some parents in District 34 are considering a petition drive to send to the legislature. Burke will be meeting with some parent volunteers during the week. The petition drive will be in addition to the legal action.

"We are talking about petitioning our legislature to give us some relief from our disenfranchisement," said Burke.

Complex formula decides who will vote

ALEC JUDGE

Staff Reporter

Who votes in the proposed Lake Villa unit district ballot has been decided.

The issue took months of discussions between Regional Superintendent Ed Gonwa, Lake County elections staff and legal experts. Voters in six districts will decide if the unit district should be formed.

According to Gonwa, all the voters in Antioch and Grayslake high school districts; Millburn and Lake Villa elementary districts will vote on the unit district formation.

In Antioch Elementary and Grant High School districts, votes for those districts will only be counted from voters who reside within the proposed unit district boundaries.

A majority in all six districts must approve the unit district for it to pass. If any one district rejects the plan, the plan would be defeated.

Each district is tallied separately. If a voter lives in two districts, the vote could be counted as a vote in each of the districts. For instance, if someone lived in Millburn and Antioch High School District, the vote would count as part of the final percentage in both districts.

The proposed unit district would create a K-12 district covering most of Lake Villa Township and include large portions of the student population in Antioch High School District, Millburn and dissolve Lake Villa Elementary District. A portion of Grayslake and Grant high school districts and Antioch Elementary District would be in the unit district.

On April 4, voters will decide if they want a unit district. Those within the proposed district will then vote on a $39.5 million building bond for a new high school and elementary school, and vote on a school board to represent them.

Antioch Elementary officials have criticized the decision on who will vote. They feel all the voters in their district should have a say as Antioch Elementary voters and not just Antioch High School voters.

Basing the decision on section 11 of the state school code, the district must meet the 8 percent requirement. That means the district must have 8 percent more Average Daily Attendance (ADA) than the district's Equalized Assessed Valuation (EAV).

Gonwa said the district ADA of students from Lake Villa Township is 22.26 percent and the portion of the EAV from Lake Villa is 18.37 percent. The difference is 3.89 percent which is not high enough to qualify to vote.

Also, the district could have qualified if 25 percent or more of the students would be taken away from by the unit district, but the district falls short in this number also.

Gonwa added the district could exist temporarily if the first question was approved and the building bond issue failed. The district would then have to ask for the building bond again.

Cutlery

Village of Antioch has vacated a portion of the street so the company can use the area for parking. Woodwork for the company was formerly done in Idaho.

"We are closing the plant down," said Gertz of the Idaho location. "I am offering everyone there an opportunity to transfer."

The company chose Antioch as a result of the effort of the Downtown Development Committee. The committee worked with real estate broker John F. Girsch of Hiffman, Shaffer and Assoc. in Chicago.

"They (Chicago Cutlery) were looking at roughly seven different villages to locate the new plant," said Claude LeMere, downtown development director. "We were the most aggressive."

Bob Golding, vice president of manufacturing for Chicago Cutlery, said there were several reasons the company chose Antioch. The village is convenient to the company's main manufacturing site in Wauconda, space was available, the village was cooperative and the permitting process was accelerated.

LeMere said Bob Silhan, Antioch director of planning, has put in place a plan to accelerate the permitting process. Department heads were able to drop everything in order to concentrate on getting a company up and running.

"It was very important for Chicago Cutlery to get up and running. They could not afford to miss a season," said Girsch.

The company will begin manufacturing the wood blocks by the first of June. In mid July, the Idaho operations, which is manufacture of cutting boards, will be moved to Antioch.

LeMere says the company, which is based out of Wauconda, is known for its benefit package. "They are an absolutely fantastic company," said LeMere. "Their benefit package is great."

LeMere believes starting salaries for the new positions will be in the neighborhood of $7 an hour. He said the average salary at the Wauconda location is $10.25 per hour where many employees have years of experience.

"This is a feather in the cap of Antioch," said LeMere.

Antioch honors 3 former athletes in new Hall of Fame

KEVIN HANRAHAN
Staff Reporter

In an effort to showcase the Sequoit tradition in high school athletics, Antioch High School announced the creation of a new Hall of Fame and inducted its first three members.

Symbolically, the announcement was made during halftime of the Antioch-Warren basketball game. The Sequoits proved Antioch's tradition is alive and well by coming from behind and defeating longtime rival Warren 59-57, with the gam-winning bucket coming just as the clock ran out.

Honored were 1982 grad Tracy Manuel, 1981 grad John Ploss and 1967 grad Tyrone Walls.

Manuel earned 12 varsity letters in field hockey, basketball and softball during her years at Antioch High. She was a four-time All-County and All-Conference pick in basketball and was the first Lake County female athlete to score 1,000 points in basketball.

The standout female basketball star went on to record-breaking careers at the University of Illinois at Chicago and at DePaul University, where she was team captain in 1986. Following college, Manuel was the head girls basketball coach at Lewis University in Romeoville and is currently the head basketball coach at Loyola University.

Because Manuel was busy coaching her Loyola team at an away game, she could not be present during the ceremony, but her sister Vicky Howe (Manuel) accepted the honor in her place.

"If there was someone who had a dream and followed it, she's the one. She believes that totally," Howe said of her sister Tracy. "She doesn't stop until she gets where she wants to go."

Also sharing the spotlight was Ploss, who helped lead the Sequoits to its only "Elite Eight" appearance in 1981 in Champaign. The All-Conference and All-County basketball star averaged 15 points and 9 rebounds a game that year.

In college, Ploss was a two-year starter for the University of Wisconsin-Madison, where he was named the Most Improved Player in 1984. He is now the project manager for Church Landscaping Company near Wadsworth.

"How could you forget the year we had and how the whole school pulled together," Ploss said of the Elite Eight year. More than 40 bus loads of fans and students followed their basketball team to Champaign.

"We needed a quality coach like Roger (Andrews) to keep this team together," said See FAME page A12

Lady Sequoits capture first round of regional; Carmel next

KEVIN HANRAHAN
Staff Reporter

For the first time since the early 1980s when Antioch produced powerhouses in girls basketball, the Lady Sequoits got a taste of what it is like to win in post-season, regional tournament action.

Antioch cruised by Grayslake 49-24 in the semifinal round and advanced to the regional championship against Carmel Thursday night.

"The key was the second quarter when we went on a 16-2 run and had the game in hand," said Antioch Coach Dave Woods. "We forced them into a lot of turnovers, and our defense created a lot of points for us."

By halftime, Antioch had built a comfortable 25-6 lead. Carrie Gofron led the charge with 12 points. "She had a really nice game," Woods said.

Antioch also featured a balanced scoring attack with Lindsay Hladnick gaining 7 points, Jeanna Miller providing 6 points, Marge Klepacki contributing 6 points, and both Rachel Hauser and Erin O'Connell chipping in 4 points a piece.

"She's still not a 100 percent. I can see it in her shooting," Woods said of Hauser, who injured her wrist two weeks ago.

Three freshmen also saw playing time and added buckets. Joslyn McRae, Lisa Ipsen and Nicole Langley each found net for 2 points.

"When our defense can create opportunities for us, that's when we're effective," Woods noted.

In its next regional challenge, No. 5 seed Antioch will square off against No. 4 seed Carmel (17-9), who defeated Highland Park 59-50.

"Carmel has not shown us anything that we haven't seen this year," Woods said. "From a matchup standpoint, we match up really well against Carmel. Our plan is not to give them a lot of good looks at the basket. They can be beaten."

Becker steals Sequoit victory over rival Warren

KEVIN HANRAHAN
Staff Reporter

It was a game that epitomized the traditional Antioch-Warren high school rivalry.

Trailing the entire game, the Sequoits maintained their composure, despite some pesky refereeing, stepped up their defense and literally stole the two-point victory from Warren at the buzzer.

With 32 seconds to go and the game tied 57-57, Warren had the opportunity to run out the clock and score the winning basket, but Antioch reserve Adam Becker stole the ball at half court with 3 seconds left and put in the winning layup just as the clock ran out.

Elated fans stormed the basketball court, carried their new Antioch hero on their shoulders, and celebrated the 59-57 comeback thriller.

"I looked up at the clock and I didn't know if I had time to make the basket," Becker said after he stole the ball. "Winning like this against Warren means everything." It was the first time this group of seniors defeated Warren in four years.

At the 6:15 mark in the fourth quarter Warren was winning comfortably 46-36. The referees sent 18 players from both teams to the free-throw line in the fourth quarter alone. Warren converted 6 of 14 freethrows, while Antioch aced 9 of 15.

"It was a great game Antioch played an outstanding second half," said Warren Coach Chuck Ramsey, whose team was leading 29-18 at halftime. "Give Antioch credit. They never gave up."

"This is a big win for us," said Antioch Coach Jeff Dresser, whose team had won its fourth consecutive game. "The turning point for us was when we started driving the ball to the hole."

Maurice Foster (9 points) sparked Warren early, nailing two three-pointers which helped the Blue Devils build a 16-11 advantage at the end of the first quarter. Luke Moo earned his third start and was a force on the boards and contributed 10 points.

Antioch's Eric Eckenstahler silently racked up 26 points to lead the game in scoring. See VICTORY page A13

Antioch celebrates athletic tradition with Hall of Fame

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Current and former Antioch High School athletes will be welcomed with a bit of nostalgia and school history each time they walk through the gym foyer as the school transforms the hallway into the new Hall of Fame.

The school officially announced the new Hall of Fame and introduced its first three inductees during halftime of the Antioch-Warren basketball game. The new members include Tyrone Walls (class of 1967), Tracy Manuel (class of 1982) and John Ploss (class of 1981).

Antioch Athletic Director Jim Kafer said the Hall of Fame will generally serve three purposes including honoring former athletes, providing a source of pride for current athletes and showcasing the school's rich athletic tradition to visitors.

"It recognizes and honors individuals for their athletic contribution to the school. It provides a source of pride for our students, and it showcases some of the positive things to people outside the school," Kafer said.

In addition to the Hall of Fame, parts of the walls in the gym foyer will highlight various successes—past and present. One wall will feature sectional championships, while another will feature regional championships, for example.

Another wall will include current pictures of athletes who were selected as state qualifiers or were named All-Conference that year, Kafer said.

"We wanted to do something unique," Kafer said. "As we go along, the Hall of Fame will grow and grow."

A committee is being formed to select next year's inductees. Anyone interested in serving on this committee or with ideas should contact Kafer at 395-1421.

Fame

Ploss, who credited the Antioch coaching staff for producing the best Sequoit basketball team to date. "I'll accept the Hall of Fame award for the whole team."

Ploss also praised the idea of establishing a Hall of Fame for future Antioch athletes to aspire to.

"I think it is a good motivational factor," Ploss said. "You don't see this at the high school level."

One of Antioch's most shining athletes will also be featured in the new Hall of Fame.

At Antioch, Walls was All-Conference, All-County and All-State in football. He was the MVP in basketball and track. In college he played football at the University of Missouri, where he was an All-Big Eight receiver. He helped his team ascend to both the Orange and Gator bowls.

After college, Walls played running back for the Buffalo Bills and put together an illustrious career as a tight end in the Canadian football league. Currently, Walls is a professional football scout, co-hosts a sports show on Cable 19 in Chicago and is a seventh-grade teacher at George Gershwin Elementary School.

Walls could not pin point a specific memory of his Antioch athletic career. Instead, his most lasting memory was the acceptance he received from teachers and students, for Walls was the first African-American student at Antioch High. He attended Antioch during the turbulent 1960s when Vietnam war protests and racial riots were widespread across the country.

"I had a great time here because I was accepted here, and that made it easy," Walls said. "It was a heated time during that period, but it was never a big deal here."

Like Ploss, Walls praised the new Hall of Fame. "It brings out the history of the school, and some people will relish that and carry it on."

Furthermore, Walls had some advice for high school students and athletes alike who have dreams of success of their own.

"You have to work," Walls said. "You have to work at friends; you have to work at relationships; you have to work in sports; and you have to work at business."

And many future Antioch athletes hope to work to being memorialized in the school's new Hall of Fame.

Four Antioch martial artists head to Tae Kwon Do Open

Four tae kwon do competitors who train at Health Systems Fitness Center in Antioch will be competing at the fourth annual U.S. Tae Kwon Do Open at the U.S. Olympic Training Center in Colorado Springs.

Mendralla, Neuberger lifts Rams to win

Dave Mendralla is always the first player to recognize the efforts of others and following a 60-59 win over Johnsbury was no exception.

Mendralla hit the winning shot, a wide-open 10 footer, but it was five second half three-pointers by Pete Neuberger (19 points) which kept Johnsbury from extending leads and kept the Rams in first place in the Northwest Suburban Conference basketball race.

"Pete really stepped up," Mendralla said. "And Matt Moran hit two big free throws."

Mendralla knew his shooting was off this 21-point effort, so he passed the ball and directed the offense.

"There is no reason to call timeout because the kids know what to do. We want Dave to have the ball," Rams Coach Greg Groth said. "A lot of times, you call timeout and your kids get nervous," Groth said.

"I have been working on my shooting range," Neuberger, a senior, said. "I learned that from Geoff Sponholtz - he could spot up from 27 feet. I hit one from 22-23 feet and from there, I knew I would make my shots. If I don't have time to measure up, then I have a better chance. If I take a few seconds, then you overthink."

Sam Possey of Johnsbury gave the home team the lead with 15 seconds left on an inside move.

"I think they had a breakdown because Dave cross-over dribbled on one guy," Neuberger said.

"I had three guys on top of me and I tried to tell them the game was not over," Mendralla said.

Johnsbury did have the last shot, but Brandon missed an off-balance three-pointer.

"I don't think we were too worried or concerned because we knew we could pull it out. But Johnsbury played a great game. This was a big win to get us going," Neuberger said.

"Pete is as good as anyone around. He is one of the harder workers on the team. Nobody works harder than Pete Neuberger. I am happy for our team," Groth said.

Groth also credited Brian Fischer for a good rebounding effort, leading the winners with 8. "He could be the best defensive player in the conference," Groth said.

Lucas Bolton contributed two third-quarter three-pointers for six points and Moran hit his only free throws with 4:16 left.

Johnsbury led 48-46 as Eric Peterson started the fourth quarter with a steal and subsequent layup.

The lead reached four points on another Peterson gem and a fast-break and hoop by Doug Schaefer for a 57-53 Johnsbury lead with 2:30 left.

Grayslake, defending NWSC champs, improved to 16-6 overall, 10-2 in the league. Johnsbury slipped to 14-7, 9-4.

The Rams are at Wauconda for a 7 p.m. game Feb. 17 before finishing conference play at Grant Feb. 21.

"It was discouraging because we came so close to the conference lead," Johnsbury Coach Ed Sennett said.

Johnsbury hosts Grant at 7 p.m. Feb. 17.

Peterson scored 24 points to key the JHS attack and was a thorn in the Rams side with several key steals.

"He has turned it around since Christmas time. He was struggling then, but he righted the ship and is a legitimate all-conference player. He came in a big ballgame and played extremely well. He does the little things well. He worked himself out of it with extra time in the gym," Sennett said.

"Peterson played very well. He and Jason Miller are two of the better players in the conference," Groth said.

"I was impressed the players that do not get all the write-ups contributed tonight," Sennett said of the Rams.

Miller contributed 16 points for Johnsbury and Doug Schaefer added 8.

"I think we are a better team than last week and that is indicative of the Rams. We always play pretty well in February," Groth said.

The Rams' John Parr was back, in the lineup, but played only in the second half as an ankle injury still bothered him. The Rams were hoping Parr will be back at full strength for a Tuesday clash with Marian Central.

Zalapi to represent Antioch in state wrestling tourney

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

Antioch wrestling fans will be rallying around Steve Zalapi as he was the only Sequoia to advance to the state wrestling finals.

The top three wrestlers in each weight class emerged to the state competition from the Barrington sectional. Lukas Dyer, Justin Dyer and Matt Hlinak just missed the cut off and placed fourth in their weight classes.

"Steve Zalapi has had a Cinderella-like tournament," Antioch Coach Ted Sieckowski said of his 125-pounder. "He told me that he doesn't know how to lose anymore. He wrestles seemingly tougher opponents, but he frus-trates them with his style."

Zalapi was crowned the 125-pound sectional champ and will be bringing with him more than 30 wins under his belt.

"I don't know how to predict the state outcome because he can beat anybody," Sieckowski said. "One of the things he has in his favor is that he can surprise people who might underestimate him."

Both the Dyer brothers lost heartbreakers in the 103-pound and 112-pound qualifying matches, Sieckowski said.

Justin Dyer was winning 8-3 in the third period when Hersey's Javier Porcayo scored a takedown and forced overtime. Dyer lost in overtime 10-8.

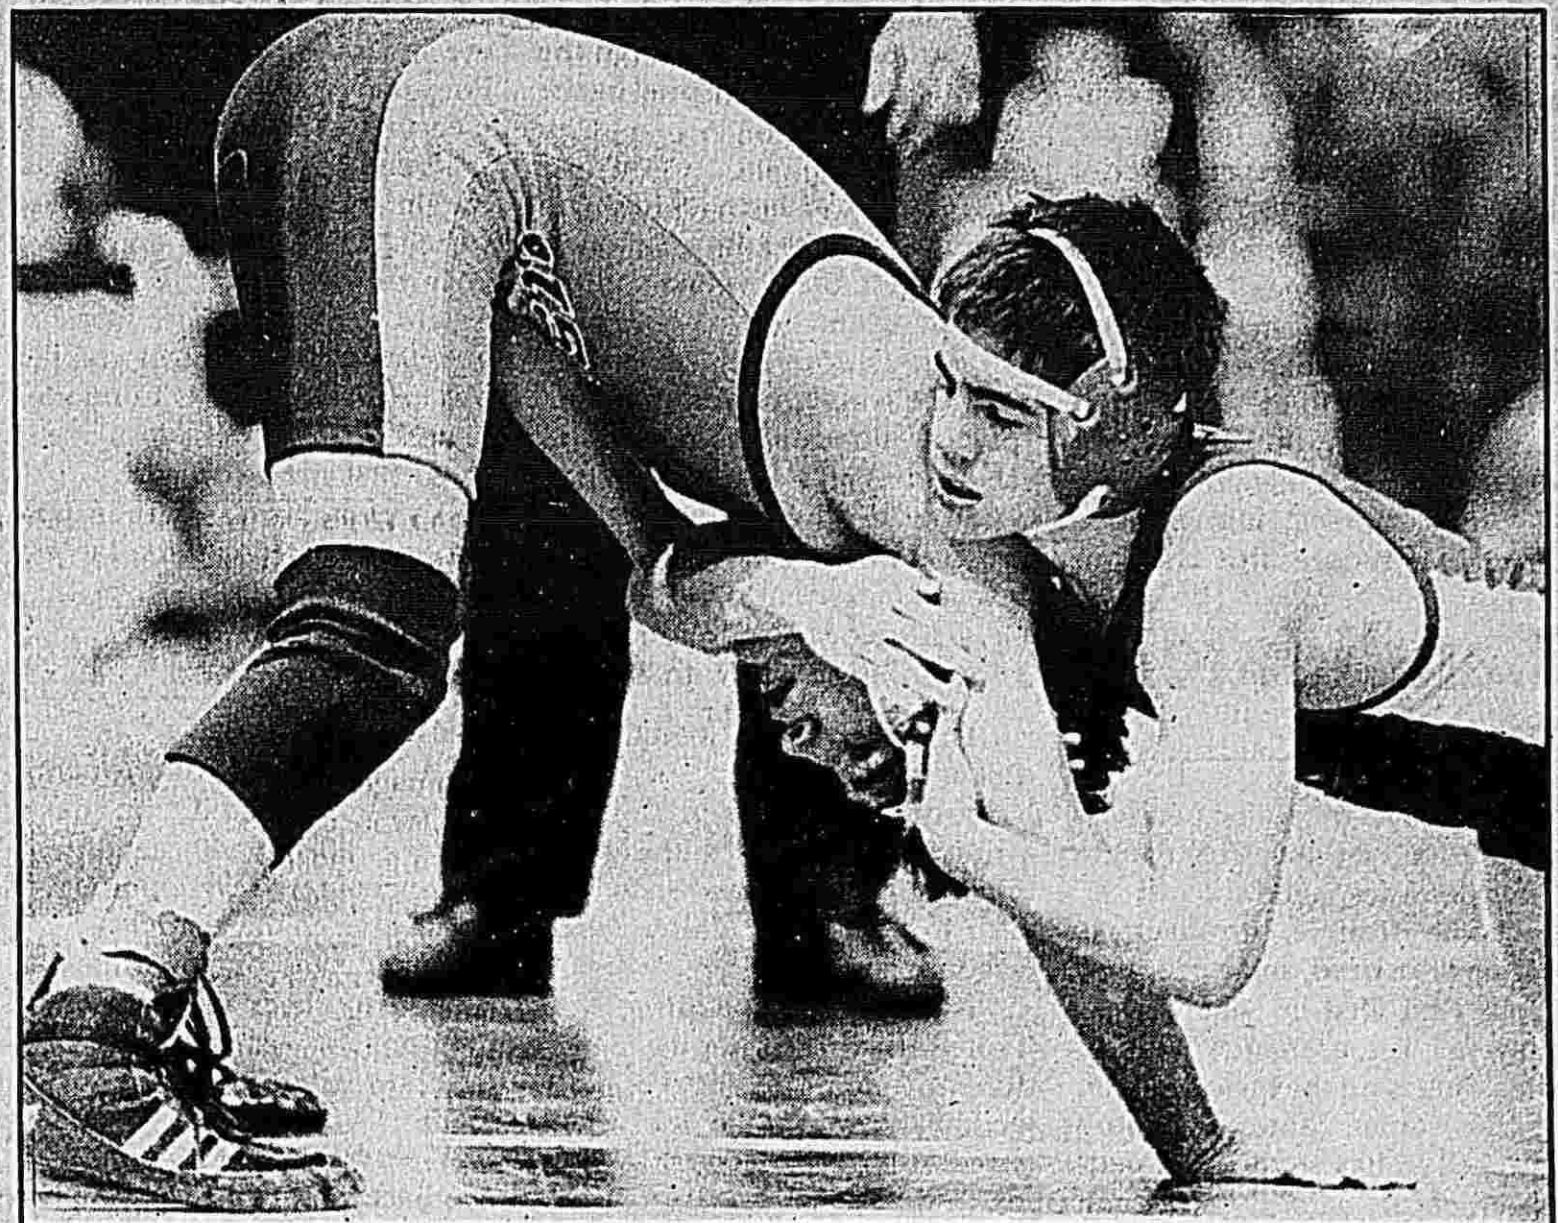

"My heart just fell out of me," Sieckowski said.

At 103 pounds, Lukas Dyer was close to defeating Stevenson's Jaimie Lipitz in the semifinal before losing to a Woodstock wrestler 11-3 in the runner-up grudge match.

"Luke went into the match with one eye and a mask," Sieckowski said. The night before Dyer suffered a blow above his eye causing it to swell. "He took it to Lipitz and was close to taking him down. The breaks didn't go our way."

Sieckowski said the Dyer brothers and Hlinak will be making the trip downstate as runner-ups and to support Zalapi.

"I would love for him to get into the finals," Sieckowski said of Zalapi.

Antioch hands Mundelein coach 375th career win

KEVIN HANRAHAN

Staff Reporter

League powerhouse Mundelein snapped Antioch's four-game winning streak by downing the Sequoia 85-71.

The Mustang victory also handed Mundelein Coach Dennis Kessel his 375th career win. Following the game, Kessel announced that he will be stepping down as coach after 21 years. He said he wanted to spend more time watching his son Kyle Kessel develop and play for the Texas A & M University basketball team. Kyle Kessel was also drafted by the New York Mets in baseball. Kessel is the all-time point maker in high school basketball in Lake County.

For Antioch, Adam Becker shined off the bench with 24 points, including four baskets from three-point land. The night before, Becker was the hero when he stole the ball and scored the winning basket at the buzzer to upset Warren. Eric Eckenstahler also led Antioch with 14 points.

"We weren't ready to play," said Antioch Coach Jeff Dresser. "We weren't mentally prepared to play. They executed very well and we didn't."

Kevin Geraghty (8 points) kept Antioch close in the first period with two three-pointers, but Mundelein jumped out to a 19-14 edge after the first eight minutes. The Mustangs steadily built their lead throughout the game.

The only scare that Antioch showed in the game was when the Sequoia went on a 9-0 run to make the score 76-65. Becker capped off the drive by connecting on four consecutive freethrows after an intentional foul was called on Mundelein's Hourrutiner.

For Antioch, the 85 points was the most allowed all year by the Sequoia. Dresser blamed a defensive breakdown.

"Our defense was poor, and our defense is what has carried us most of the year," Dresser said.

Antioch travels to North Chicago Friday before concluding the regular season at Stevenson Feb. 20.

including 9 of Antioch's 11 first-quarter points. Furthermore, his damage was done despite sitting out most of the third and fourth quarters due to foul trouble.

"We've played quite a bit recently without him. I was surprised he had so many points," Dresser said of his 6'7" star center.

Chris Hayes had the hot hand for Warren in the second half by scoring all 9 of his points in the final two quarters, but Antioch slowly chipped away at the lead. Eric "Soup" Campbell (6 points) sparked a 6-point drive to open the third quarter. Eckenstahler canceled out a three-point play by Warren's Joe Bongratz (10 points) when he connected on a three-point bomb to trim Warren's lead to 32-27 with 4:55 left to play in the third.

In the fourth quarter, Antioch was pitted with a 52-47 deficit to overcome. Both teams played cat-and-mouse and exchanged a boutiful of attempts from the free-throw line as the refs were calling everything.

"When you win, you really don't care about the refereeing, but both sides were getting frustrated," Dresser said.

Ramsey added, "You couldn't get a flow going."

But Dresser said Antioch wanted to step up its defense in the fourth, and six different Sequoia scored in the quarter to showcase a balanced scoring attack in the fourth.

Justin McRae (5 points) nailed a three-pointer for Antioch to make it a five-point game. Dan Riepe grabbed key rebounds late in the fourth and made it a one-point, 52-51, difference following a dish from Becker, who was credited with 11 points himself. Eckenstahler tied the game 57-57 with 55 seconds left.

With 32 ticks left, Antioch was granted the inbound, but Becker lofted the ball over everyone's head to return the possession to Warren on their end of the court. Antioch's defense would not allow Warren to penetrate inside the three-point ring for the game-winning bucket.

"We went out there and fell asleep, and Warren came out with a good, hard press," Dresser said of Antioch's failed inbound play. But then, "Our kids came up and stepped up. Our kids just took away everything they had."

Everyone's a winner at the NICC Ice Fishin' Derby

MARY FOLEY

Staff Reporter

Despite bone-chilling wind chill factors, sport fishers still came out last weekend for the 35th annual Northern Illinois Conservation Club (NICC) Ice Fishin' Derby and Winter Festival. With windchills way down below zero, even the hardest found it cold.

"I can't remember when I have been that cold," said NICC President Arlene Pientka. "It got right into your bones."

Unfortunately, many families felt the cold weather was too much for their children. Attendance for the derby was down 60 percent this year.

"It's a shame," said Pientka. "We love to see the children there. But, I don't blame them. Some of the older members said this was the coldest derby ever."

Money for the derby is used for educational programs for young people. Children, who may not have had much exposure to wildlife, are provided an opportunity to learn through the many programs sponsored by the NICC.

The derby and festival featured food, fishing, raffles, an auction and children's games. There were many winners in the two day event.

Aaron Lemke, 14, of Antioch was the winner of derby's grand prize, which is a five-day trip to Disney World or Las Vegas. Lemke can also use the winnings for any trip of equal value.

According to Pientka, Lemke is in the process of taking his parents into a ski trip in Colorado.

The largest fish of the derby was caught by John Vacula of Genoa City, Wisconsin. This whopper northern pike measured 34.4 inches. Largest walleye was caught by Robert Emmrich of Antioch. His fish measured 21.2 inches.

Frank Schwartz of South Elgin caught the biggest catfish, measuring 22.1 inches and Russ Pokett of Kenosha, Wisconsin caught the largest bass measuring 19.9 inches. Largest crappie was caught by Brian O'Connor of Round Lake and the fish measured 12.6 inches.

Largest perch winner was Pat Shea of Beach Park, largest striped bass was Mike Powers of Woodale. Robert Krieger of Richmond came up with the largest bullhead, and Jim Spenglemeyer, also of Richmond caught the biggest bluegill/sunfish, which measured 8.9 inches.

Raffle ticket winners included Dave Oglesby of Waukegan who won a home workshop donated by Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Dave Trawczynski of Hanover Park who won a 19-inch color television donated by K & S Kempf's, J. Alm of Villa Park who won a $250 gift certificate to Gander Mountain courtesy of Biller Press, Jack Christie of Antioch who won an 2 horse power outboard motor donated by C. Haling and Sons, the Dunlap family of Antioch who won a set of golf clubs donated by B.J. Sports, Dale Lutt of Burlington, Wisconsin who won a compact disk player donated by Strang Funeral Home, Lon Christensen of Antioch who won a power ice auger donated by Poli Contracting and Western Sewerage, Kevin Bowen of Oak Lawn who won an electric trolling motor donated by Leo J. Fox Trucking, Leonard Nemeth of Round Lake Park who won a $500 savings bond donated by Andrew Lynch, the Cleveland Corporation of Zion who won a 16-foot canvas boat cover donated by United Canvas, and Claude Covington of Morton Grove who won a gas barbecue donated by Thelen Sand and Gravel.

There were two ties in the ice shanty contest. For best engineered category Stanley Michals of McHenry tied with Brian Adams of McHenry. For the most colorful ice shanty Linda Hauck and the Ice House Gang of Antioch tied with Tom Kope of Streamwood.

Finally Kaitlin Hefrom of Wadsworth won the age 3 to 7 category in the coloring contest. Lisa Long of Antioch won the 8 to 12 year category.

While the weather was bad and attendance was down considerable, Pientka took it all philosophically. "Every year is the Lord's blessing," she said. "You take what you get."

Candidate contests Waterway petitions

TINA L. SWIECH

Staff Reporter

Six people have filed petitions to run for two openings on the Fox Waterway Agency board.

Some trouble, however, is coming to a head, and a couple of those who filed in Lake County may not get a chance to have their names on the ballot.

Newcomer, James Creighton Mitchell Jr. has studied the petitions of his two competitors, incumbent Ron Baker and past director Roy Gundelach, and said he's discovered some things that aren't kosher which may knock both men off the ballots.

"Nothing I did was intentionally wrong," said Baker, Antioch township resident and owner of Baker's Marine Support.

Baker agrees that some of what Mitchell has brought before the State Board of Elections in Chicago, is diminutive.

Mitchell, a resident of Lindenhurst claims things such as some of the residents who signed Baker's petitions wrote "Illinois" in the spot where "Lake" for county should have been.

Also, Mitchell claims there's a big error with one of the circulators who got several pages of petitions signed for Baker.

The woman apparently used her new married name, while her single name still appears on her voter registration card, said Baker.

On Tuesday, Mitchell and Baker appeared at the Lake County Courthouse in front of Andrew M. Viola of the state Election Board. Gundelach was also to attend, but didn't show, according to Baker.

Baker said Mitchell also questioned whether or not the signatures on some of the petitions actually belonged to the registered voter they were supposed to.

The signatures questioned were written by elderly people, said Baker, and some of them are a bit shaky which would explain why they may look different from time to time.

Mitchell said Gundelach's petitions appeared to have between 30 and 40 signatures from people who were not registered voters in the district.

Baker said by the time he wanted to check out Mitchell's petitions, it was too late, past the date when he could verify them.

Viola took all of the information back with him, and will present a decision Feb. 21, at the Chicago office where the three candidates are scheduled to appear.

CPR, First Aid education highlight Save A Life Week

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

Save A Life Foundation will sponsor a Save A Life Week Feb. 19-25, expanded from one day last year.

A Chicago press conference is scheduled Feb. 21 to detail plans for the week's events.

Congressman Richard Durbin, who spearheaded efforts to obtain funding for legislation, will be on hand as well as many other dignitaries.

The week's events will focus on Illinois residents learning CPR, along with demonstrations and first aid procedures.

Gov. James Edgar is expected to issue a proclamation spearheading the largest state-wide effort to train Illinois residents in basic life saving skills. This follows bipartisan passage of Senate Bill 1477, mandating advanced CPR-First Aid training for all police and fire academy graduates, effective Jan. 1.

The City of Waukegan is expected to adopt a resolution at its Feb. 20 meeting in support of Save A Life Week. This came at the urging of the Lake County YMCA.

"It will provide valuable skills which could be used at a business or to save a loved one's life," Cindy Erdal, risk manager at YMCA, said.

Demonstrations of CPR techniques will be held at the YMCA's Family Night Feb. 20 and 22.

The Save A Life Foundation effort was started by Carol Spizzirri whose daughter Christina died in a 1992 automobile accident.

"I will never know if first responder care would have saved my daughter's life, but let us unite to prevent any questions in the future," Spizzirri said.

Orland Park and Rosemont are communities which will join Waukegan in Save A Life Week proclamations.

"I am really pleased. This year there will be more time for hospitals to put on presentations and accommodate so many more people," Spizzirri, of Woodland Meadows, said.

National Safety Council, the Illinois Red Cross, local paramedics, EMTs and private training agencies will provide training.

"Over 40 hospitals have already signed up to host a Save A Life Week event and acknowledgments are still coming in daily. This is a big increase over last year in hospital support. I think hospitals are realizing the dramatic and positive effect this type of outreach and training programs can have on their surrounding communities," Nancy Krier, vice president of Illinois HealthSystem Association said.

Save A Life Foundation is seeking corporate sponsors to help underwrite the cost of producing and distributing support materials and services. It includes a banner, CPR mouth shields, First Aid and CPR booklets, a "Bystander Beware" video, "ChrisKit", sweepstakes forms, flyers, and supportive materials to help the event's success.

According to the Enforcement Officers Training Board, 647 fire departments, representing 23,000 full-part-time officers, only 5,000 are recertified annually.

Of 439 full-time officers are trained at See LIFE page B5

Camp Hastings Lake YMCA builds stronger communities

CLAUDIA M. LENART

Regional Editor

The Camp Hastings Lake YMCA in Lake Villa kicked off a campaign that's sure to build brighter futures for children and families living in this community.

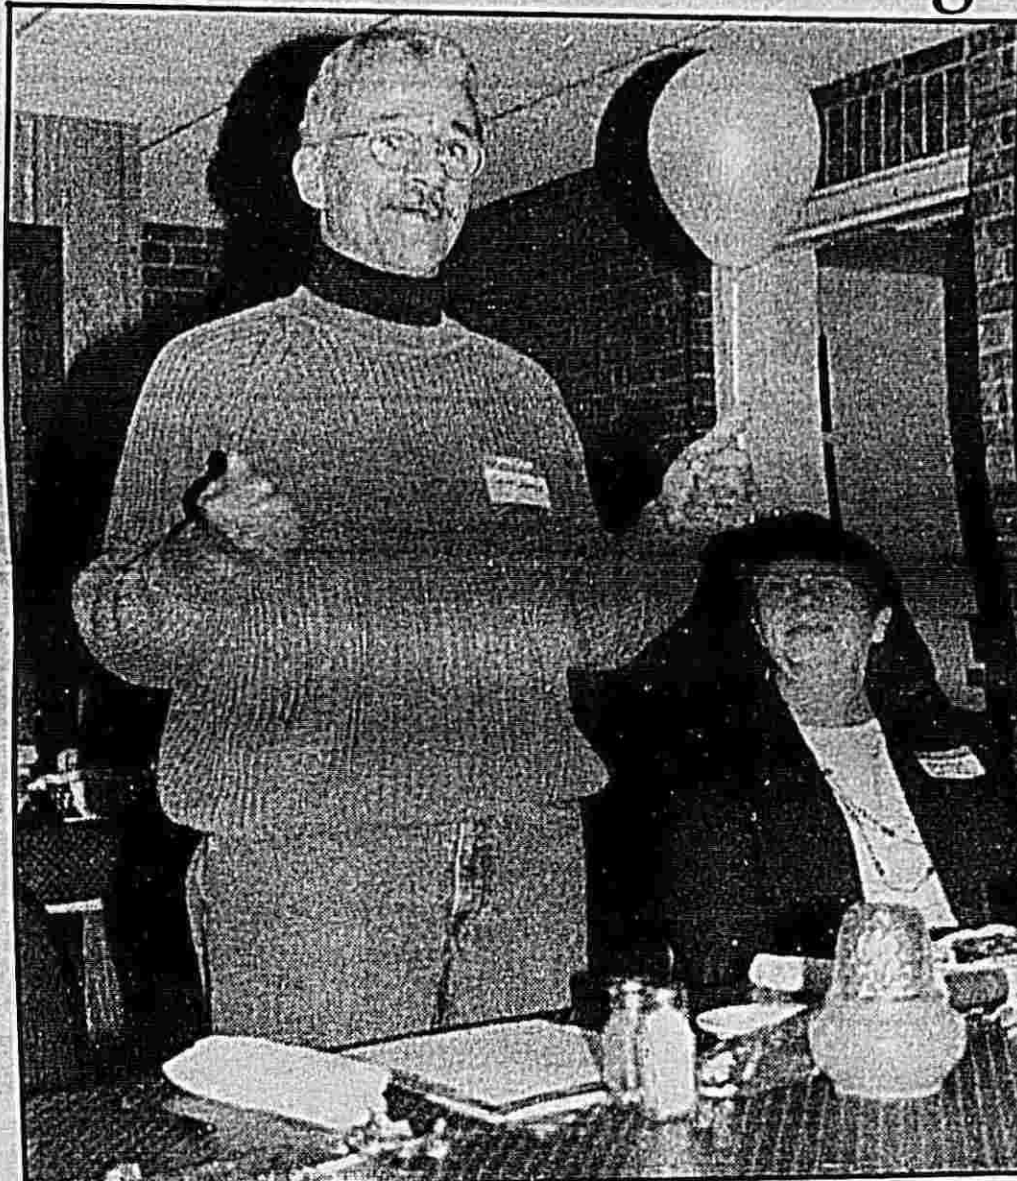

The YMCA is asking for financial support from community members and businesses in order to continue its mission — to support the physical, mental and spiritual well-being of individuals and families in order to improve their quality of life. The YMCA is committed to serving all members of the community, even those who cannot afford the various programs.

"One of our goals within the YMCA is that we're open to all. One way to help live that mission is we do our best not to turn anyone away because of financial limitations," said Jim Scherer, Camp Hastings Lake YMCA executive director.

This year's fund raising goal is $45,000 and 100 percent of the money raised will go towards YMCA scholarships. Scholarships help families afford programs such as resident camp, daycamp, after school care, aquatics, horsemanship and membership.

Margaret Sexton, community director for Camp Hastings Lake YMCA, noted that about 85 to 90 percent of the scholarships are given to residents in the immediate community which includes northern Lake County and southern Kenosha County.

"We receive at least two or three requests per week from the community," said Sexton. The YMCA uses United Way charts that determine a person's eligibility based on income and number of people in the household.

Jim Davis tells how he was able to go to camp as a child through YMCA scholarships. Davis later went on to become executive director of Camp Hastings. Now retired, he serves as president of the Camp Hastings Lake YMCA board of directors.

The YMCA's positive effect on families is evident.

"I see it everyday. So many families come up to me and tell me what a difference the YMCA has made in their lives, in their family," said Sexton.

Sexton received a letter of gratitude from an Antioch woman who was helped by the YMCA. The woman had undergone an unexpected divorce and was forced to go to work and leave her son with a babysitter. The letter read:

"My son went from babysitter to babysitter, none with any real concern for his well being. Then I found out about the scholarship programs at Hastings Lake YMCA. Hastings Lake programs offered us stability during these trying times. Finally I had peace of mind knowing he was being cared for and properly supervised... The YMCA offered my son the opportunity to grow and learn, to make friends and memories. He was taught to respect others, to share and to reach for goals. I feel this program offers hope for the children. Not only for the children, but the community."

A Salem, Wis. father testified at the YMCA's fund-raising kick-off how he and his daughter have been helped through the scholarship program. The man had a back injury which left him without a job and with huge medical bills.

The YMCA provided him with a scholarship so he may use the pool for physical therapy. His daughter, who has a mild form of cerebral palsy, has also benefited greatly from use of the pool. He likened the YMCA community to that of a church community.

It appears the staff at the YMCA is inspired daily by these success stories. The annual support campaign started with the staff and the goal of $5,000 was reached within two weeks. There are some 80 staff members, most of whom are part-time.

"I'm in awe to think the staff is not only willing to put in extra hours but also willing to give back from their earnings. It says a lot about our staff. They really believe in what they are doing," said Sexton.

The YMCA is still seeking community residents willing to help raise funds for the annual support campaign.

"By actively participating you're helping to build stronger kids, stronger families and stronger communities right here in our service area," said Scherer.

For more information call 356-4001. Donations may be sent to Camp Hastings Lake YMCA, 21155 W. Golden Rd., Lake Villa, Ill., 60046.

Gurnee teen will lecture as part of his sentence

STEVE PETERSON

Staff Reporter

A Gurnee teenager who pled guilty to reckless driving charges will be discussing with his peers consequences of dangerous driving.

Thomas Lafayette, age 17, must give 24 lectures. These will be overseen by the Lake County Probation Department. It was the result of a negotiated agreement between Lake County State's Attorney's Office and the defendant.

On Oct. 28, 1994, Thomas Pultorak of Waukegan died of injuries sustained when his vehicle was struck by Lafayette's vehicle off Route 41 near Kelly Road. Pultorak, a Carmel High School student, was killed when his vehicle hit a tree.

— Mike Waller,
Lake County State's Attorney

"The sentence was at the request of the victim's family," Mike Waller, Lake County State's Attorney, said. "It is a type of condition which can be placed on probation that can be effective. From all reports, he was very remorseful about what happened."

Lafayette will attend the Coroner's Office Youth Offender Program and do 200 hours of community service.

Pultorak and two friends were en route to a Halloween party in Kenosha.

Waller said a similar sentence was used when the Bears' Kevin Butler received a DUI.

Communities get grants to hire new crime bill community policing officers

President Bill Clinton, Attorney General Janet Reno, and U.S. Attorney James B. Burns have announced that 6,660 local law enforcement agencies will receive more than $434 million in federal grants to help hire 7,110 new community policing officers under the COPS FAST program. The COPS FAST program (Funding Accelerated for Smaller Towns), funded by last fall's crime bill, is part of the Administration's effort to help put 100,000 new police officers on the streets of America.

The jurisdictions, all numbering less than 50,000 in population, submitted one-page grant applications.

"Two years ago, I pledged to put 100,000 new police officers on the street," said President Clinton. "Today we turned the corner. Just five months after I signed the crime bill, we have funded more than 16,000 new cops in more than half the police departments in America."

Coupled with previous police hiring grants, full awards under COPS FAST would bring the total number of new officers funded under President Clinton to over 16,000.

The crime bill's community policing hiring program, signed into law by President Clinton this September, provides $8.8 billion in competitive grants for state and local law enforcement agencies to hire community police officers and to implement community policing.

Congress is now considering amending last year's crime bill, including proposals that would scrap the "Cops on the Beat" grants. Clinton and Reno both warned against such a move. "The police, prosecutors, mayors and citizens of America fought too hard last year to end six years of gridlock and put 100,000 police on the streets," said Reno. "Today we have over 16,000 new reasons why we can't turn back."

"The nationwide surge in senseless violence and gang activity is also witnessed by smaller cities, towns and counties, where an officer or two can often make a tremendous difference," said U.S. Attorney Burns.

Because of the overwhelming demand—nearly half of all eligible jurisdictions applied—the Dept. of Justice was unable to fully fund 7,130 requests. Instead, allocations to eligible COPS FAST applicants were made according to their current number of sworn officers:

- jurisdictions with more than 99 sworn officers will receive funds to help hire officers totaling 2.5 percent of their force strength;

- jurisdictions with between 50 through 99 sworn officers will receive funds to help hire two additional officers; and

- jurisdictions with fewer than 50 officers will receive enough funds to help hire one additional officer.

Grants will be awarded for up to 75 percent of the total salary and benefits earned by new or rehired officers over three years, with a maximum of $75,000 per officer. The remaining 25 percent will be paid with state or local funds.

Grant money is made available when the new officers come on the police payroll. Grant recipients have also agreed to complete a streamlined budget form and a simple community policing implementation plan. The COPS staff will provide technical assistance to agencies as needed to develop and refine their community policing plans. Awards will be monitored through site visits, audits and electronic reporting techniques.

Every law enforcement agency, city and county government serving populations less than 50,000 was mailed a one-page COPS FAST application last fall, and was asked to return it by Dec. 31, 1994.

Officers hired under COPS FAST must be in addition to, and not in lieu of, officers that otherwise would have been hired by the agency. Awards granted under COPS FAST will not affect the eligibility of an agency to apply for a grant under other COPS programs.

Jurisdictions over 50,000 will receive grants under a separate program entitled COPS AHEAD. Towns and cities which applied to start a new department under COPS FAST grants will be able to apply for other grants later this year.

More hiring grants will be available later this year, and every jurisdiction in America will be eligible to apply.

Community policing is designed to complement traditional policing by forging effective, innovative crime prevention partnerships between law enforcement and the community. "This money is a down payment on a safer America," said Reno. "These officers will help America's communities, large and small, increase their police forces and create problem-solving partnerships to fight crime."

Local grant recipients include: Antioch Police Dept., Village Barrington, Village of Beach Park, Buffalo Grove Police Dept., Village of Deer Park, Fox Lake Police Dept., Village of Grayslake, Gurnee Police Dept., Hawthorn Woods Police Dept., Lake Villa Police Dept., Lake Zurich Police Dept., Libertyville (Village) Police Dept., Lincolnshire (Village) Police Dept., Lindenhurst Police Dept., Mundelein Police Dept., Round Lake Beach Police Dept., Round Lake Heights Police Dept., Round Lake Police Dept. and Wauconda Police Dept.

Easing Your Tax Burden

Electronic filing is faster, safer and more accurate

Each year I talk to many taxpayers who ask "Why can't the IRS make it easier to file my tax return?" While the IRS can't do anything to change the complexity of the tax laws, we have made it easier for you to file. Electronic filing is faster, safer and more accurate than mailing your tax return.

Last year, over 14 million people filed their federal tax returns electronically, benefiting from the "wave of the future." You, too, can take advantage of electronic filing's many benefits. Electronic filing offers:

Acknowledgment of Receipt—get "peace of mind" knowing that IRS received your return. Within 48 hours, the IRS will acknowledge that your return was received and accepted.

Accurate Returns—Electronic filing eliminates human errors that normally occur when your paper tax return is input into the IRS computer, resulting in a 99.5 percent accuracy rate. Also, missing information is immediately identified and requested. No more letters from the IRS requiring you to respond.

Faster Processing—Because your return is filed by computer, processing is faster, resulting in a refund sent to you within three weeks of IRS receiving a complete and accurate return.

Direct Deposit—Usually, the IRS can deposit your refund directly into your checking or savings account within 10 to 14 days of acceptance, thus avoiding a lost or stolen refund check. This service is not available for those who file paper returns.

File Now, Pay by April 17th—If you owe more tax, you can still file your return electronically any time during the filing season but hold off paying until on or before Monday, April 17, 1995. This gives you time to budget for your additional taxes. The IRS will even send you a reminder.

All Individual Income tax returns (Forms 1040, 1040A and 1040EZ) and the most commonly used forms and schedules can be filed electronically. It doesn't matter if you paid your taxes in full, expect a refund or have a balance due.

Many tax professionals offer electronic filing to their clients. Fees vary, depending on the tax professional you choose and the specific services you request.

You can prepare your own return and pay a professional only to transmit it. Or you can pay to have your return both prepared and transmitted.

Whichever you choose, shop around for a tax professional who offers the services you need at an acceptable cost to you.

Not all tax professionals offer electronic filing to their clients. To find one who files electronically, look in your local telephone directory under "Tax Return Preparation" or get a recommendation from someone who has already used electronic filing.

In addition to electronic filing, some tax professionals may offer refund anticipation loans. These are loans from business associates to tax professionals on expected refunds. This service is strictly an agreement between you and your tax professional. IRS is not a party to refund anticipation loans.—by Marilyn Day, District Director, Internal Revenue Service, Chicago District.

AT A GLANCE

Town talks businesses licenses

ISLAND LAKE—A meeting regarding business licenses in town is set for Feb. 21, and all Island Lake business owners are urged to attend. The Village of Island Lake is looking seriously into requiring business licenses of all businesses operating in town. On Feb. 21, all Island Lake business owners are encouraged to attend a Chamber meeting at 3-D Bowl on Roberts Rd. at 7:30 p.m. in which Mayor Charles Amrich will attend.

Project C.A.P.E. gathers again

MUNDELEIN—Project C.A.P.E. will hold its second community gathering this coming March, hoping to bring back those individuals who came last year and even more individuals interested in "Creating A Positive Environment" (C.A.P.E.). After last year's huge success, the program divided up into smaller committees to work on the community in many different ways.

Anchor Glass to close

GURNEE—A Gurnee business which has been open for more than 20 years will be closing its doors this spring. Anchor Glass, located at 1955 N. Delany Road will be closing by May 10, according to Kathy Richter, communications director. The options for the Gurnee plant have been under study for months. The plant is part of Tampa-Fla. based Anchor Glass Inc.

Derby attendance down

ANTIOCH—The bone-chilling wind chill factors for the 35th annual Northern Illinois Conservation Club (NICC) Ice Fishin' Derby and Winter Festival caused a 60 percent reduction in attendance last weekend. Billed as one of the biggest derbies in the area, money generated by the derby is used for wildlife education programs. With wind chills way down below zero, even the hardiest found it cold.

'No gangs in Hawthorn Woods'

HAWTHORN WOODS—Hawthorn Woods Chief of Police William Urry blasted newspaper reports indicating that the village has as many as eight active gangs residing in the village, rivaling communities like North Chicago and Waukegan. He said the report was misleading and deceptive. According to Urry, the Illinois State Police conducted a study in which Hawthorn Woods police have come in contact with gang members, usually as they passed through the village. Urry said the study was conducted over a period of years and was not meant to be made public. "The bottom line is that we don't have a gang problem in Hawthorn Woods," Urry said.

Unit district vote confusing

LAKE VILLA TOWNSHIP—Residents of six school districts will decide if the proposed Lake Villa unit district will exist. The districts are Antioch, Grayslake, Grant high school districts, Antioch, Lake Villa and Millburn Elementary districts. However, only those residing in the proposed unit district can cast ballots which count for Grant and Antioch elementary districts. Residents living within the proposed boundary will vote on a $39.5 building bond issue and choose a school board in the April 4 election.

Noyes announces resignation

VERNON HILLS—Hawthorn School District 73 Superintendent Edward Noyes announced his resignation to become effective June 30 after the school year concludes. During his tenure since July 1992, Noyes has been instrumental in spreading the awareness of the district's financial woes and encouraging community involvement in addressing its financial dilemma. By the end of the school year, the district is expected to fall into a $9.3 million debt. Earlier this month, the board of education unveiled plans to make $2.1 million or $770,000 in cuts and reductions, depending upon the outcome of the April referendums.

Residents unclear on sewers

WEST MILTMORE—Residents in this unincorporated area are wondering how why their area is involved in sewer and boundary discussions between Lake Villa and Lindenhurst. Joan Fischer, president of West Miltmore Community Association said West Miltmore officials haven't been approached by Lake Villa officials about sewer service. She said she was surprised to hear Lake Villa wanted to provide sewer to West Miltmore. West Miltmore residents currently use septic systems and are in Lindenhurst's sewer district. However, Lindenhurst officials haven't expressed interest in servicing West Miltmore, but don't want to give West Miltmore section to Lake Villa at this time.

Alleged sex offender on bail

GRAYSLAKE—An alleged sex offender arrested in Grayslake Dec. 14 has been released after posting the 10 percent requirement of a $30,000 bond. Louis V. Blue, 33, of Grayslake was arrested on nine counts of aggravated sexual assault for alleged incidents of sexual contact that began with a girl when she was 9 years old in 1988 and ending in 1993. Blue apparently moved to Grayslake from Round Lake within the last year. His pretrial is scheduled for March 8, with a trial set for March 20 in Room 204 of the County Building. If convicted of the class two felony, Blue faces a three to seven year prison sentence.

Police department moving

GRAYSLAKE—The Village Board of Trustees has approved a plan to give the police department larger quarters by moving the department into the village hall. To accommodate village administration, the village will build a new village hall on village-owned property located directly east of the village hall building. The police department building is roughly 4,000 square feet, with less than 2,000 square feet dedicated to office space. It is expected to take $160,000 to remodel the village building for a police department. Ground-breaking on the new village hall is anticipated after the village's Centennial Celebration in August, allowing for the police department move sometime during the spring of 1996.

Youth Center up and running

LIBERTYVILLE—Libertyville's Youth Center has a new location and a new coordinator. Both are ready to begin after school and weekend activities for the youth in the village. Youth Center Coordinator, Gunnar Williamson said, "The kids have a place to come and drop in during the week or weekends." He added, "It can be a place for the kids to gather after school for a quiet place to study."

Heritage Party will not appeal

KILDEER—Members of a political party kicked off the spring ballot for filing a required piece of paperwork with the village hall instead of with the County Clerk have decided against appealing the electoral board decision. Heritage Party Chairman John Chiarelli said it would be too costly for village taxpayers to foot the bill for the appeal, even though they have gotten a lot of support to do so. The party, and an independent candidate, had mistakenly filed statements of economic interest with the deputy village clerk, even though it clearly stated in bold print at the top to file with the clerk's office.

Antioch gets new officer

ANTIOCH—As a result of the an application for the COPS FAST program, the Antioch Police Department will be adding a new officer at a low cost. The officer will be used in a community policing program. Antioch applied for a federal grant under the COPS FAST program in late December. The program, which had become available to smaller municipalities, offsets up to 75 percent of the cost of hiring a police officer for community policing.

Lake County legislative forum addresses seniors

Advocates for the elderly will meet with state legislators and congressional aides to discuss issues of particular concern to seniors at a forum on Friday, Feb. 17.

The discussion will focus on four issues: property taxes, the end for assisted living, long-term care insurance and health care, but there may also be discussion of other issues of interest to seniors, as time allows. The forum is free, and open to the public.

the General Assembly's schedule, they are not yet certain whether they will be able to attend.

The forum will be held from 8 to 10 a.m. at the Warren Twp. Office senior center, 17801 W. Washington, Gurnee.

The Northeastern Ill. Area Agency on Aging, the Lake County Senior Services Assn. and the Lake-McHenry Continuity of Care Organization are co-sponsoring the forum.

The Northeastern Ill. Area Agency on Aging is a nonprofit organization responsible for developing and coordinating a network of services for older persons throughout an eight-county area in northeastern Illinois. The agency informs and advises public and private agencies and the general public of the needs of older persons living in the area, and acts as an advocate on their behalf. ## CLC board approves distance learning contract

The College of Lake County board of trustees approved a $1.6 million contract to purchase equipment expanding services offered through a "distance learning" network linking teachers and students at several Chicago area colleges and universities through teleconferencing technology.

Acting as fiscal agent for the North Suburban Higher Education Consortium, the CLC board awarded the contract to B.T. Visual Images, L.L.C., of Farmington Hills, Mich. The contract covers purchasing and installing equipment for 14 classrooms at seven institutions. The entire cost of the contract will be funded through an Illinois Board of Higher Education Cooperation Act (HECA) grant awarded last November.

The CLC portion of the contract work calls for equipping a classroom at the Lakeshore Campus in Waukegan and purchase of mobile equipment for two more classrooms.

During the board chairman's monthly report, Trustee James Lumber informed the trustees that the college received the Illinois Community College Board's Award for Excellence in Institutional Effectiveness and Strategic Planning Jan. 20. The award is the fourth award for excellence received by the college in four years.

In other action, the CLC trustees accepted a $29,000 grant from the Illinois Board of Higher Education to conduct a workshop program for elementary school teachers on using hands-on demonstrations and experiments to teach physical science principles. Conducted twice previously under earlier grants, the program has already reached 55 teachers. This year's grant will fund training for 30 more Lake County teachers.

The board also accepted a grant renewal for $74,000 from the Illinois Dept. of Commerce and Community Affairs-Illinois Small Business Development Center to provide for the continued services of the Regional Small Business Development Center-based in the college's Center for Economic Development.

In other grant-related activity, the board approved a $32,000 contract funded through the state's Tech Prep grant program. The contract will fund the college's work with the Lake County High Schools Technology Campus and other members of the Regional Vocational System on curriculum, faculty professional development and other areas to provide students with a smooth transition from high school to college-level career preparation programs.

The board also approved a change in its regular monthly meeting date to 7 p.m. on the fourth Monday of each month with three exceptions in 1995—Sept. 18, Nov. 13 and Dec. 18. Additionally, the board approved changes in the college's mission and goals statement for purposes of clarity, and the trustees approved the academic calendar for the 1995-96 school year, with fall classes scheduled to begin Aug. 28.

Finally, in personnel matters, the board approved tenure status for seven faculty members: Joan Meginniss, Raymond Salazar, Richard Soller, Jacinta Thomas, Cecilia Johnson, Curtis Gentry and Michelle Strazer.

Towns giving their views on Yorkhouse Road plan

Susan Zingle, of Wadsworth and others have been taking the cause of Citizens for a Better County from village board to village board meeting.

The plea opposing the extension of Yorkhouse from Chicago Avenue to Route 41 was not heard in Antioch, which told her they do not hear outside village concerns.

But in Kildeer, a resolution was passed opposing the Yorkhouse Road extension plan. Other towns are considering it. "I am very comfortable with the position that Wadsworth has taken and that Mayor Don Craft opposes the road," Zingle said.

Old Mill Creek's board approved a resolution opposing the road Monday.

"It would interfere with our comprehensive plan," Mayor Paul Koppen said.

Old Mill Creek plans a corporate drive and conference center and greenbelt nearby.

One trustee, Ray Boller, voted no, desiring more information.

Statements of opposition have been issued by: Lake County Conservation Alliance, Illinois Citizen Action, CARE, the Illinois Sierra Club, the Illinois Audubon Society, Swamp Squad, Woodlands and Wetlands Preservation, Des Plaines River Student Alliance, Lake Forest Open Lands, villages of Wadsworth, Long Grove, and Newport Township.

Seven other municipalities are considering the issue.

Workshop focuses on children returning to nest

Launching children into the world is not always an easy task. For a variety of reasons, some remain at home after high school graduation. Others leave and then return one or more times before a permanent launching takes place.

Individuals and organizations' members who would like to receive information about coping with adult children who return home are invited to attend "Returning to the Nest," sponsored by the Lake County Assn. for Family and Community Education. The training will be from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 22, at the Univ. of Ill. Cooperative Extension Service Educational Auditorium, 100 S. U.S. Hwy. 45 in Grayslake. The workshop will be taught by Molly McErlean, family life extension educator from the Countryside Center.

The workshop will be given in a train-the-trainer format, however, individuals who don't plan to reteach the lesson are encouraged to attend. There is no charge to participate, however pre-registration is required by calling 223-8627.

Deerfield Dist. 109 invites students to 'examine options'

The National Science Foundation predicts that by the year 2010 there will be a shortage of 560,000 scientists and engineers in the U.S., and women, who currently make up only 8 percent of the total engineering work force, loom as the most likely source to fill these jobs.

Given these statistics, it's apparent that young women have an overwhelming amount of opportunity opening up to them. Other statistics indicate that girls today can expect to work at least 30 years outside the home. Yet one disturbing fact is that, during the junior high years, girls experience a serious loss of self-esteem that inhibits their abilities in math and science, according to a major study by the American Assn. of Univ. of Women (AAUW).

The AAUW study also found to aid in overcoming this loss of self-esteem and to encourage women to be more motivated to learn for the future, a new program, "Examine Your Options," has been designed as a hands-on conference specifically highlighting careers for women in math and the sciences.

Sponsored by Deerfield Public School Dist. 109, the AAUW, Baxter Healthcare, and a State of Illinois Scientific Literacy Grant, the program is geared to appeal to students in grades five to eight and their parents. The conference is scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 25, from 8:30 to 11:45 a.m. at Caruso Jr. High School, 1801 Montgomery Rd., Deerfield. There is a $5 charge per child (which covers the cost of a T-shirt); no fee for adults.

Each participant will attend three student workshops selected from a field of 10 "Options to Examine." Speakers will include women scientists and lawyers in senior positions at Baxter Healthcare speaking about their area of expertise. Amy Rockwell, patent attorney with a degree in chemistry, will explore "How Do You Protect Technology?" She will perform a chemical analysis of shampoo and discuss how to patent a new discovery. Martha Farmer, Ph.D. and director of product management for Blood Substitute Business, will encourage students to "Name That Product" by exploring names for a new blood substitute product. Sharon Northup, Ph.D. and director of materials design and processing in toxicology, will discuss "Fun With Chemistry," describing hot packs and cold packs, ways chemistry touches students' lives.

The idea for "Examine Your Options" started with the community branch of the American Assn. of University Women, which has been studying gender equality in area schools. Finding that the gender gap concerning math and sciences widens as girls reach fifth grade, the AAUW decided to organize a conference for girls to help build their self-confidence and enthusiasm for math and sciences. In so doing, they hope to counter the way girls have historically been discouraged from pursuing these subjects.

For more information about the program, or to obtain a registration form, call Margie Young at 945-1844.

Largest real estate forfeiture in Lake County ordered

State's attorney Michael J. Waller and Waukegan Chief of Police George Bridge announced that the largest real estate forfeiture ever ordered in an Illinois State court has been entered in Lake Co. Circuit Court. The forfeiture order, which effectively gives ownership of the two properties involved in the state of Illinois, was entered at the request of the state's attorney by Judge Peter Trobe.

The forfeiture was the result of a long-term drug investigation by the Waukegan Police Dept. and the U.S. Drug Enforcement Admin. The complaint for forfeiture by the state's attorney indicated that Hernando Jaramillo, the owner of the properties involved, was responsible for the distribution of between 60 and 80 kilograms of cocaine per month since 1990. Chief Bridges stated that Jaramillo and his wife have not been located, but are believed to be in hiding in Columbia.

The two properties forfeited, which are valued at approximately $500,000, were a private residence located at 1011 Oak Crest in Waukegan and a business property located at 3301 N. Lewis Ave. in Waukegan. The business address houses a mini-mart, a flower shop, an upholstery store and seven apartments. The businesses currently renting the properties were not involved in any drug activity, according to Chief Bridges.

Bridges stated, "Drug dealers must realize that if they sell drugs in this city, not only will they be put in jail, but they will lose the profits of their drug dealing as well."

State's Attorney Waller noted that the Ill. State Police, which administers the sale of properties forfeited in Illinois, will award a percentage of the proceeds from the sale of the properties to the city of Waukegan and to the state's attorney's office. Those moneys must then be used to prosecute drug offenders.

In the past, a major proportion of forfeited money received by the state's attorney has been used to fund school anti-drug programs. Waller stated that this would continue. "In the short run we must vigorously prosecute the people who sell these drugs, including putting them in jail and taking away their illegal profits," said Waller. "But in the long run the fight against drug abuse can only be won by teaching our children about the dangers of drugs and giving them positive alternatives to live drug-free lives."

Habitat for Humanity plans volunteer orientation

Locations in malls works for judiciary

Lake County officials could be on to something now that they've opened a second branch court in a shopping mall. A joke going around is whether drive-through divorces will be next.

Opened at Lakehurst Mall, the new court center replaces branches at Zion, Waukegan City Hall, North Chicago City Hall and Vernon Town Hall in Prairie View. Judges and clerks like the new facility located in space formerly occupied by a bank and an electronics store. The only grumbling is from drivers unhappy about traffic tickets.

The county has had good success with its first shopping center branch court located in a strip mall at Rtes. 120 and 45.

Judge Raymond McKoski, presiding judge of the traffic and misdemeanor division, pronounced the new Lakehurst branch fitting and suitable. Court administrator Bob Zastany said the ample parking, easy access and convenience will pay big dividends over the years in efficiency. That's part of the $400,000 payback for renovation costs.

With Lake County's skyrocketing population growing up with a "mall mentality," it makes sense to relocate more government business to shopping centers. Why not? You could pay your real estate taxes or a traffic ticket and pick up a pair of new shoes or some jogging shorts all in one swing.

Classroom fiddling produces long day

The creativity of school officials in fiddling with traditional class scheduling procedures never ceases to amaze in their unstinting efforts to overcome growth pangs with greater efficiency.

A committee at Mundelein High School is proposing to replace the typical seven period day with 55 minute classes to a schedule of eight 90-minute classes spread over two days. The beauty of the two-day matrix, they say, is that by blending in early morning and late afternoon classes more students can be handled in the same facility.

The two-day spread idea came after 18 months of study. If adopted, the novel system won't be implemented until the 1996-97 school year. The school's capacity of about 1,430 will be reached next year. Implicite in the proposal is going to a longer day, something theorists have been advocating for a long time to improve education.

Hunting controls deer population

Away from highly populated suburban areas, deer hunting still is a big time sport in Illinois. Deer hunters harvested an estimated 96,230 white-tailed deer during the 1994 firearm deer season, a new record, according to records of the Dept. of Conservation.

More than 263,000 firearm permits were issued for the 1994 season, compared to 240,000 for 1993, making deer hunting permits an important source of revenue for the DOC.

Hunters took 819 deer in neighboring McHenry County during the firearm season. Figures do not include the take for bow hunting, which is legal in Lake County.

The regulated deer hunt is one of the arguments for keeping the deer population healthy and in balance. Over-population of deer is not a problem elsewhere in Illinois as it is in suburban areas where deer thrive despite urbanization. Here, only forces controlling the deer population are road kills and available feed.

VIEWPOINT

Smitty 'slam dunks' late night tv music

BILL SCHROEDER

Publisher

In the world of music, Marvin "Smitty" Smith may not yet be the equivalent of a Michael Jordan. But he's definitely a Scotty Pippen or a Charles Barkley. He's arrived.

The native of Lake County achieved star status when the Kevin Eubanks band took over as the showcase musical group on NBC's flagship late night tv production, "The Tonight Show." Smith does the spectacular drum solos and is the driving force of the band replacing Winton Marsalas.

"That's Smitty, all right," affirmed the senior Marvin Smith, a driver's license examiner for the Illinois Sec. of State, who is relishing the role of proud father.

Despite 300 recordings, two albums and a reputation in New York City and Los Angeles jazz circles as a "musician's musician," Smitty had to wait until reaching his early 30's to achieve the fame predicted of him as a youngster growing up in Waukegan where he was regarded as somewhat of a prodigy in percussions.

Always better than good, Marvin was recruited as a 15-year-old by leader Bruce Mack for the noted College of Lake County big band jazz group. The same year, Marvin joined the musician's union, in effect becoming a professional. So he's been honing his skills a long time.

As his drumming talents took shape, Marvin Jr. became Smitty to distinguish himself from his father who also is a drummer of considerable talent. Marvin Sr. takes special pride in the fact that his son is following in the footsteps of the super-talented Coles family of Waukegan and North Chicago, whose oldest brother, Nat "King" Cole, was a super star and a pop music legend.

Vying with his father for the title of No. 1 fan is Smitty's wife, a native of Virginia whom he met in New York. She is studying music therapy.

Ever since Johnny Carson tabbed the Tonight Show band as "best in the land," the program's musicians have set standards for late night talk show music. Smitty Smith is in fast company, but he's more than holding his own. His current gig amounts to a musical slam dunk.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Name infringement

Editor:

Do not be misled or confused by the unit district's Gang of Ten from Lake Villa.

In an attempt to gain academic stature and recognition, this gang of 10 has stolen the prestigious name "Committee of Ten." This original Committee of Ten was originated in 1892. It was, in fact, academia's assemblage of its most intellectual of the time.

The true and honest Committee of Ten was a committee on secondary school studies held in December of 1892. This true Committee of Ten was assembled to establish all programs of secondary schools in the U.S.

The committee was authorized by the Secretary of the Interior of the United States. Its intent was to establish separate individual conferences on subjects of academics necessary to receive a desirable secondary education. Such as Latin, Greek, geometry, history, civil government, physics, chemistry and astronomy, to name but a few.

These conference results ended with the selection of all academic studies in the U.S. at the level of secondary school education.

The Gang of Ten's infringement of another's name is likened to "theft by deception." You be the judge.

Fostering school welfare

Editor:

True conservatism requires firm opposition to educational vouchers.

It is a well known fact of political life that public regulation always follows money. Recall the outcry in this country over the vulgar and sacrilegious works produced by recipients of public monies through the National Endowment for the Arts. Citizens demanded accountability from those receiving government funds. Intrusive government regulation is bound to accompany vouchers, compromising the freedom and independence currently enjoyed in private education.

Vouchers also increase the cost of education. It is axiomatic that prices rise to meet funds available. With federal government pouring taxpayer money into student aid, college tuition soars, soaking up all See LETTERS page B7

PARTY LINES

'Fix for '96' game enthralls Republicans

Party Lines, the Lakeland Newspapers column of political commentary, is prepared from staff reports.

Republican insiders like to engage in a guessing game when things get dull that could well be called "The Fix for '96"—who's going to be running for what.

Topping the guessing game is whether octogenarian Recorder of Deeds Frank Nustra will seek another term. Already the holder of longevity records for county recorders in Illinois, Frank so far hasn't told anyone (except maybe Mrs. Nustra) about his thoughts on reelection.

The GOP pundits expect State Rep. Al Salvi (R-Wauconda) and State Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville) to have primary opposition, Salvi because of his independent approach to government and Moore because "there's always Jack Martin around." Outspoken Martin is no fan of the second term representative from Libertyville.

Rugged future—Speaking of 1996, County Board Rep. Mark Beaubien (R-Barrington) is a virtual certainty to have opposition for reelection, with both Republicans and Democrats ganging up on him.

Beaubien's Republican neighbors are incensed that he didn't support their efforts to stem expansionist policies of Good Shepherd Hospital. Democrats smell a chance to take on a vulnerable Republican.

Coming north—A surprise guest at the Grant Twp. Lincoln Day dinner was George Kangas, Lake Co. Republican chairman a decade ago who now spends most of his time in Sarasota, Fla.

Looking fit and ready to step into politics again, the former Lincolnshire resident told friends he and his wife are looking for a condo in Lake Co. They have plans to divide time between Florida and Illinois in connection with his insurance business. George said he backed the wrong guy in the Florida GOP primary for governor last year, which Republicans lost anyway (Jeb Bush).

Kangas still has a sharp eye for a winner, though, and keeps tabs on Illinois politics.

Still same guy—although he now sports a distinguished mustache, Circuit Court Judge Bernard (Bernie) Drew still is the same soft-spoken, serious jurist. The facial adornment is about two months old.

Now says yes—Congressman Phil Crane (R-Ill.) told Lincoln Day diners that he's cast more yes votes since the 104th Congress convened than he did in his previous 25 years in Washington. Democrats and liberal media pundits used to chide Crane about only voting no.

Historical note—Another Phil Cranism. Reaching back to his days as a college professor, Congressman Crane waxes frequently on the parallels between the fall of the Roman Empire and America's close brush with destruction under 40 years of Democratic Congressional domination. "We've got five years to turn things around," cautions Crane. Guess he means that the Republicans better stay in power until the year 2000 or we'll be going the way of the Romans.

Anything goes—Street Scenes' version of the fairy tales produced a predictable plethora of hirsute sprites complete with wings, wands and pink tutus. The "Politically WHAT?" award must surely go to the Waukegan players whose spoof of "Bonanza" included not one, but two ethnic stereotypes. A character named Hopscotch delivered phrases like, "fled lice," while a group of "Indians" must have been taught by the same drama coach as Jay Silverheels (Tonto).

Good sports—Last year's Street Scenes gave us Vernon Hills Mayor Roger Byrne in the persona of a vampire. This year he donned a red plaid nightshirt to play "Sleepy" in the village's offering of "Snow White and the Seven Dorks." Accompanying Byrne in the romp were his wife Cathy and Village Clerk Kathy Ryg as villainesses. Community service is wherever you find it!

Deal maker's plan backfires—

While political parties are fine on a larger scale, former Kildeer Trustee Clayton W. Brown said they have no place in small communities. This was his reason for reviewing all the submitted petitions, trying to find a way to keep the Heritage Party off the ballot.

"They have their own axes to grind," Brown said, calling party members "single issue candidates."

Brown said he was offered to "negotiate a deal" with a man who said he represented the party in order to drop his objection three days before the village electoral board made its decision Feb. 6.

If he complied, Brown said the man — whom Brown refused to identify — told him the village would not approve a subdivision plan proposed by Trustee Terry Albert. Brown has been an opponent of Albert's attempts to subdivide property he owns into two lots, one which would be less than one acre in size. "How can they speak on behalf of the village," Brown said. "They were confirming my objection to political parties."

Welfare reform—Representatives from throughout the county have been praising the Senate's approval of the Republican welfare reform package. State Rep. Bob Churchill was dismayed by the votes of Democrats Lauren Beth Gash and Jeff Schoenberg who voted against the reforms.

ComEd plea—ComEd is asking campaign workers not to tack posters on utility poles. Items tacked to poles can be troublesome for crews which often suffer cuts and gashes from encounters with nails and tacks used to affix posters.

Letters

the nice "free" money, and creating new pressures to raise student aid to even higher levels. Is it any wonder that the cost of Medicaid has skyrocketed as health providers gobble up an endless stream of money?

Additional bureaucracy always requires increased funding (more taxes) for the middle man to administer bureaucratic oversight. Bureaucracy necessitates the siphoning off of funds from their target purpose just to administer, regulate and enforce a program. Only 12 cents of every government dollar allocated to meet needs actually reaches recipients. Undoubtedly, additional manpower requiring taxpayer dollars will be necessary to administer this new "voucher" bureaucracy.

The alternative to vouchers is tax exemptions whereby a certain dollar amount is subtracted from a taxpayer's income before his tax liability is calculated, and therefore not considered taxable income. Under this arrangement, families keep more of their hard-earned income with total freedom as to how it is used, since the state is not "giving" anything back to the taxpayer, and therefore not in position to control its use.

In the final analysis, subsidized private education (vouchers), is strictly an educational welfare program that redistributes wealth through coercive taxation. As someone once said, "A supporter of private education voting for vouchers is like a turkey voting for Thanksgiving." While thinking of how he will enjoy being "fattened up," he has lost sight of the ax to come.

Questions beg answers

Editor:

The issue to form a Lake Villa School

Dist. will be voted on April 4. There are so many unanswered questions and confusing issues. I looked in my dictionary for the definition of unit, "an individual, group, structure and etc.," so my interpretation of a unit is bringing together of parts to form a whole. However, in forming this unit district, it also means a taking away from existing schools their students, assets and bonding ability.

The newly formed unit district will not have space for their students and outside schools (schools not included in the new unit district) will not have the money to pay to the unit district their division of the assets. Now we are getting down to the basics, the division of students and money.

A yet to be elected unit school board will negotiate along established guidelines with the outside schools. Schools are barely making ends meet now—how can they pay the divisions of assets, reported to be millions of dollars?

Can financially troubled schools issue more bonds? Students in the new unit district may be tuitioned to outside schools, if there is room for them. What schools will they attend? Wherever there is room? Will the unit district pay cash to the outside schools so that teachers' salaries, electric, gas and all other bills can be paid? Will it be a trade of tuition paid in exchange for a portion of assets payment? When will the unit district receive its first tax payment from its levies that are voted on in the same ballot as the ballot to form a unit district?

What happens if voters approve of a unit district but do not vote for the $39.5-million bond issue for the new high school and a new grade school buildings? What if one of the outside schools cannot continue to operate, due to lack of funds? Where will all of the students go to school? These issues are rather like a marriage (uniting), divorce (division of assets) and division of students (children). Can everyone be a winner in this project? How much more in taxes can the already burdened homeowner pay?

Watch project lauded

Editor:

Recently we had the opportunity to work with members of the Mundelein Police Dept. in setting up a neighborhood watch program in our neighborhood.

The residents of Mundelein who are aware of the community policing programs offered by our police department would be very pleasantly surprised and impressed with the range of services that are available.

The newspapers have recently been reporting about gangs in the suburban community, to which Mundelein's Police Chief Ray Rose and his officers are addressing head on and should be commended for.

On behalf of the newest neighborhood watch program in Mundelein, a loud thank you goes out to Officers Demski, Maddock and Chief Rose for bringing our group together and for helping make our community a safer place to live.

Wetlands edict gutted

Editor:

The scenario could have been like this: "Well, you know I'm interested in this area, but that wetlands ordinance of yours is just too restrictive. Cuts my profits—you understand, I'm sure."

"Oh, don't you worry about that. We'll work around it. In fact, we're going to make some changes you'll be able to live with."

"Fine. If I can depend on you to help me along, I'm on."

I say, this must have happened. How else to explain how the 1989 wetlands ordinance of Wauconda so suddenly disappeared. This ordinance was hailed as a benchmark for other municipalities to follow, and would have protected our environment now and for future generations.

Ever so quietly, orchestrated by Mayor Eschenbach and his cronies, given the death blow by the ever willing Mr. Wanchek for Cambridge Homes. And for all developers in the future, to encourage their takeover of this fertile field of opportunity, a useless, meaningless, gutless substitute ordinance!

And once Cambridge gets started they won't stop until they have devoured the orchards property and inundated Wauconda with a couple thousand of their tract houses—at least.

In addition to killing our wetlands, Eschenbach tried—so far, unsuccessfully—to foist the urbanization of Wauconda onto its unwilling citizens with his comprehensive development plan that would have opened a floodgate of development on us. He has his vision of being a big-time mayor of a great metropolis. Only outraged citizens coming together stopped that ruse.

Father, son folk duo to feature hammer dulcimer in Adler concert

Veteran folksinger Guy Carawan, who helped spread "We Shall Overcome" to the Civil Rights movement of the '60s South, will be in Libertyville on Saturday, Feb. 18 to give a concert with his son Evan, a hammer dulcimer virtuoso. The 8 p.m. concert, sponsored by the David Adler Cultural Center, will be held at the Libertyville Civic Center (the old Post Office) at 135 W. Church St. in downtown Libertyville.

The concert will feature traditional folk music from the Americas and Europe played on the hammer dulcimer, a forerunner of the piano. The American dulcimer features a trapezoid-shaped wooden platform strung with courses of metal wire that are struck with small wooden mallets. Among his many accomplishments in a 30-plus year history of performing, Guy Carawan is credited with introducing the hammer dulcimer to the southern folk music revival, including such current folk luminaries as Malcolm Dalglish and John McCutcheon.

No lesser a light himself, Guy Carawan has compiled an impressive resume of documentary books, videos, and audio recordings that detail the songs, stories and struggles of people from places as diverse as the Appalachian coalfields, the Sea Islands off the coast of South Carolina, and the People's Republic of China. In collaboration with his wife Candie, Guy published two classic portraits of southern folk cultures, "Ain't You Got a Right to the Tree of Life" and "Voices From the Mountains," the latter reissued by the Univ. of Illinois Press.

From a home base at the Highlander Center in Tennessee, Guy and Candie have undertaken significant involvement with the civil rights and coal miner union movements of the South. His long singing career has provided both partial support for their cultural work as well as an outlet to share the songs and stories of the people they've met and worked with.

As a performer, Guy Carawan has numerous albums and cassettes to his credit. His most recent CDs include "Tree of Life/Arbol de la Vida" and "Home Brew: the Carawan Family at Home in Tennessee." Both have been issued by the Chicago-based folk and blues label, Flying Fish. Evan Carawan, following in his father's footsteps, has earned his own place in the folk music world, primarily for his ample skills on the hammer dulcimer. Evan's latest recording, on the Tourquise label, is "Homeward Bound."

Admission to the concert is $8 for adults, $5 for members, seniors and children under 16. For ticket reservations call 367-0707.

Breyers bring Revolutionary War era to students

STEVE PETERSON
Staff Reporter

The Revolutionary War comes to life for students when Ray and Kristen Breyer walk into the classroom.

Dressed in 18th Century clothes, the Wauconda residents tell of hardships and factors which today we take for granted.

"There was no national system for distribution of equipment, there was always squabbling and even George Washington paid for things out of his own pocket," Ray Breyer said.

The Breyers paid a visit to Woodland Middle School in Gages Lake, addressing seventh- and eighth-grade students who are called the Patriots team. The students were reading a book "Fighting Ground," about a 13-year-old's war experiences.

"It was fantastic. Students were reading a novel and had more background and spurred them to further study of the rest of the unit," teacher Jane Jensen said.

Some 160 students heard the Breyers' presentation. February is American History Month.

Jensen said the Breyers did a great job in telling the students what it would be like to live in the 18th Century.

"They had no idea what it was like to be a kid then," she stated.

Ray Breyer showed the students just how a musket was used and there were differences in the British and American versions. There were several steps to load gunpowder into the American musket, but the British only had to insert cartridges. The British were the side which used bayonets. "The Americans were not professional soldiers. They were just farmers used to hunting, not fighting," Ray said.

Thus when the battle heated up, with the feeling of dark, black soot or charging British all around, Americans would run and hide. Only later in the eight-year war did they learn to stand and fight. There was no minimum age to fight, as there was no way to check birth certificates or identification. Women played a prominent role, having such duties as carrying ammunition.

The war was fought on a seasonal basis, after the crops were planted.

"The British considered bagpipes to be a war weapon. They were very scary, coming at you in a fog," he said.

Those seeking independence began their struggle in 1775 but did not gain the support of all. "Twenty-five percent supported the revolution, 25 percent the crown and the rest wanted to be left alone," Ray stated. Historic arguments for the revolution were not that reasonable - with the exception being no taxation without representation, the students learned.

There were the problems of communication for the British. It took several weeks to get a message to the crown in good weather. The colonists, meanwhile, had the problem of the Continental Congress' money not being accepted as payment.

"Washington was a great general when it came to sneak attacks," Breyer said. "He would make a sneak attack in the middle of the night and he did this all over the place."

The British were largely using conscripted Hessian (now Germany) soldiers. "Most ended up staying and settling in Pennsylvania," Breyer said.

Breyer described his interest in the Revolutionary War as his avocation. The Breyers will be addressing a Scout rally this spring and attend seven or eight reenactments. The couple also has volunteered at Lake County Museum. Jensen learned of the Breyers' program through the museum's speakers bureau.

"I believe in looking at things with an open mind and never stop learning," he stated.

Breyer and wife Kristen described life in the Revolutionary War era to Woodland Middle School students.

Bone marrow blood drive set for Feb. 26

The newly formed BLAKE Chapter of the Leukemia Research Foundation will host its first event "BLAKE's Blood Mitzvah," a bone marrow registry drive, Sunday, Feb. 26 at AM Shalom Synagogue, 840 Vernon Ave. in Glencoe from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Glencoe residents Chuck Kiven and Howard Nixon formed the BLAKE (Because Leukemia Affects Kids Everywhere) Chapter after learning their son and nephew, Blake Kiven, 10, was diagnosed with leukemia late last year.

The drive is to raise money and awareness for bone marrow donors. The heartfelt gesture takes only 30 minutes and two tablespoons of blood which then is sent to the National Marrow Donor Registry.

Donors must be between the ages of 18 and 55 and in good health. Once they are registered in the National Registry, a donor is considered a potential match until they reach 55. Representatives from United Blood Services will be conducting on-site testing and screening, which parallels the simplicity of a common blood test.

Leukemia is a malignant condition in which the overproduction of white blood cells eventually interferes with the function of vital organs, and if uncontrolled, causes death. Leukemia is the most common cause of death among young people ages 1 to 24, second only to accidents. More than 19,000 people will die from leukemia this year alone.

BLAKE is the 14th Chapter formed by the Leukemia Research Foundation whose other chapters are located throughout Chicagoland.

For more information call the Leukemia Research Foundation at 982-1480.

A Free Wedding In Jamaica

by JIM WARNKEN, PRESIDENT, NORTH STAR TRAVEL, INC.

Jamaica's "All Inclusive" SuperClubs are fast becoming hot honeymoon destinations. But instead of just honeymooning in this tropical paradise, more and more couples are getting married there! In fact, more than 50 weddings a month are hosted by the Jamaica SuperClubs Resort "Couples".

And why not? At all three SuperClubs Resorts (Couples, Jamaica Jamaica and Grand Lido) the wedding is free.

All provide a free wedding ceremony, including a minister, reception, cake, champagne and flowers.

Couples has recently made a number of improvements including an addition of eight suites with Jacuzzis on the patio. Newly added amenities to other rooms include such things as compact disc players. They even added a bar and grill to the "island" (That's the private nude beach enclave).

If you want to go all out, though, the Grand Lido is for you. Here you can get married on the same yacht that Princess Grace and Prince Rainier of Monaco spent their honeymoon! The yacht was a wedding present by Aristotle Onassis and is now docked at Grand Lido for weddings. Best of all, there is no additional charge for a wedding on the yacht.

Getting married in Jamaica is "no problem" as they say. You only need to be in Jamaica at least 24 hrs. before the wedding. You'll need your Birth Certificate and a notarized affidavit that you are single. If you're divorced, you'll need the original or a certified copy of your Divorce Papers. You also need a Jamaica Marriage License which can be obtained by the services of a Marriage Officer through most resorts.

Lost in cyberspace—Part II

Despite the growing number of adults that now own personal computers, there are still quite a few people out there who are paranoid about a machine that can do your taxes, correct your spelling, play music, entertain your children and remind you that it's your mother's birthday (actually, I know a few single folks who want to know if it's legal to marry their computer). It doesn't help matters any when the IRS announces that they are working on a computer system that will know everything about you and will be able to figure out your taxes before you even file. "Yes, son, it used to be that cheating on your taxes was just part of the fun of being an American. Those were the good old days."

Still, like it or not, computers are here to stay. And to help those of you who remain computer illiterate, I've put together a little dictionary of the most commonly used computer terms. Trust me—you'll be a geek in no time. Here they are:

Booting Up—Preparing for a few hours of line dancing at the local country and western bar.

CD Rom—Doesn't she have an album out?

Cyberspace—The place where 1/2 of your matching socks go.

Cyberspatially challenged—Someone who thinks the information highway is in New York.

Cybersex—Something you do before you have children.

Desktop—An area that once existed underneath 3 years of bills and correspondence you've been meaning to organize.

Hacker—A bad hairdresser.

Hard drive—From Chicago to the far north suburbs, in rush hour during a snowstorm. Or, worse yet, taking your 15 year old, with a driver's permit, out for a practice drive.

Interactive—When you speak, and your children actually answer you.

Internet—Where the elite geeks meet.

Mac—that guy on General Hospital. You know, the one who used to date Felicia.

Memory—what was I talking about?

Modem—what your son accidentally did to the flowers when he was cutting the grass last summer.

Monitor—Also known as a "hall guard".

Mouse—A furry creature viewed from atop a chair, while screaming.

Multimedia—When your husband is watching the Bulls on one TV, the Bears on another, and the Blackhawks on the picture-in-a picture feature, while holding two remote controls in one hand and a beer in the other.

PC—Politically correct person.

Power PC—Politically correct person who signs your paycheck. See BEAR page B15

Good Food

CLAUDIA M. LENART

Regional Editor

While the weather is still wintry, nothing brings home a taste of summer like fresh citrus.

The Seventh Day Adventist Christian School of Lake County in Gurnee raises funds by selling fresh tree-ripened fruit direct from Florida. To order call 623-8212 and leave a message.

And for a variation on the citrus theme, try the following recipe.

Orange Pecan Ring

2 tablespoons water
3/4 cup orange juice concentrate, thawed
2 tablespoons light corn syrup
1 16-ounce package hot roll mix
1 tablespoon finely shredded orange peel
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
2 tablespoons margarine/butter
1/2 cup chopped pecans
2 tablespoons sugar
3/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon

In a small saucepan combine the water and cornstarch; stir in the thawed orange juice concentrate, 1/4 cup sugar, the margarine or butter and corn syrup. Cook and stir until mixture is thickened and bubbly. Stir in pecans. Set aside.

Prepare roll mix according to package directions adding 2 tablespoons sugar and the orange peel into the mix. Divide into 32 pieces. Form each piece into a dough ball. Pour half of the orange mixture into the bottom of a lightly greased 10-inch fluted tube pan. Place half of the dough balls atop the orange mixture.

In a small bowl combine the other 1/4 cup sugar and cinnamon. Sprinkle half of the sugar mixture over the dough balls in the pan. Repeat layers of remaining orange mixture, dough balls and sugar mixture. Cover and let rise in a warm place until nearly double (about 30 minutes). Bake in a 350 degree oven for 30 to 35 minutes or until golden brown. Let stand on a rack for 2 to 3 minutes. Loosen sides and invert onto a serving plate. If any topping remains in pan, spread atop ring. Cool about 20 minutes, serve warm. Makes 10 servings.

Ricky Jay makes his work look easy

"Ricky Jay and His 52 Assistants" proves the secret of a true professional: he makes his work look easy.

A good magician—and Ricky Jay is a good magician—has perfected his art to a science. In a 95-minute performance at the Steppenwolf Studio Theatre, Jay beguiles with a masterful assortment of befuddling card tricks interspersed with arcane but intriguing tales of card sharks from days gone by.

With the help of volunteers from the audience, Jay proceeds to demonstrate his hand-is-quicker-than-the-eye skills as he variously deals from the top, bottom and even center of the deck and seems able to pluck aces at will. He's definitely not a player one would want to encounter in a real-life game. Nor would it be advisable to take him on in a game of three-card monte.

"I learned deception as a child," says Jay as he tells anecdotes of card masters who have helped mold his career.

When Jay isn't revealing the identity of a card selected at random by an audience member, he's showing his other abilities with his 52 assistants. Here he tosses one boomerang-fashion, slicing it in half on the return trip with a pair of king-size scissors. Using a card as a "weapon," he flicks on from 15 paces so it sticks in the side of a melon or topples a windup plastic toy.

As mesmerizing as Ricky Jay's magic is, it suffers as a consequence of the logistics of the theater itself. Even in the fifth row, it's difficult to clearly see the cards he holds up or deals out (tilting the table might help), and those seated at the ends of the aisles will find themselves at a particular disadvantage in terms of sight lines.

Directed by David Mamet, "Ricky Jay and His 52 Assistants" will play through March 12. For information call (312)335-1650.—

Bear

RAM—I know this one. It stands for "random access memory". It means your children cannot remember your birthday, but they can remember that you forgot to pack them a lunch one day three years ago.

Software—Something you can buy at Victoria's Secret. Surfing the Internet - Get a life!

Virtual Reality—The current status of a Democratic politician.

Windows—I don't do those.

Of course, I wouldn't give you all this great information if I hadn't tested it at home first. I tried these terms out on my husband when I called him this afternoon:

Me: "Honey, I have to tell you. I was booting up this morning when I heard a CD Rom commercial on the radio, and they were actually singing about cybersex on a desktop. It made me think we could become more interactive if you would just use your extra RAM more often and pay less attention to your own multimedia.

Him: "I don't know what you said, but I'm all for it. Are you for real?"

Me: "Try surfing the Internet once in a while, would you? Leave work early - tell your Power PC that you've got a hard drive."

Him: "I'll be there in 5 minutes. By the way - where is the Internet? Isn't that in New York?"

See? And you thought computer talk was boring!! Now, if I can only find my software before he gets here...

Become a feature home of the month

Are you living in your dream house? Do you have a special room to get away in? How about that new deck all the neighbors are envious of? Or the special room you just remodeled?

If you enjoy reading about the feature home of the month in the At Home Section of Lakeland Newspapers, and would like to show Lake County your special home call Roselle Love at Lakeland Newspapers, 223-8161 for details.

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A cycle in which you'll be reassessing the recent past begins this week. Be sure to take advantage of social opportunities which come your way now. Later in the week, you're in a reflective mood.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You'll be re-evaluating the role friendships and club activities play in your life in the coming months. However, this particular week doesn't especially favor any social interests.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A turning point will soon be reached in your attitude about your career in general. Get things straight in your own mind before presenting new ideas to others. Some things need polishing.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) In coming months, you could feel the need for furthering your education. One field of interest in particular appeals to you. A small difference could occur about a financial concern now.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You will soon have a new attitude about the best way to insure long-range financial security. It's a good idea to make plans to restructure your debt. However, after you consolidate everything, don't run up those charge cards again.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You could be exaggerating the importance of a small slip-up on your part. Don't be so hard on yourself. It's not exactly an earth-shattering event. The coming months will bring major relationship decisions.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You soon could be asked to assume greater responsibilities in connection with work. Make sure, however, that you are compensated for this. Later in the week, get some chores out of the way before inviting people over.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A casual relationship could turn into something more serious during the next few months for the single folks among you. Much is on your mind now and you're not exactly in the mood for much weekend socializing.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your attention will be turning to home improvements and repairs in the coming months. Your powers of communication suffer now and it's not the best time for getting others interested in your ideas.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A desire for self-improvement could send you back to school in the coming months. You are champing at the bit to master a new skill. A travel plan could be put on hold this weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You'll soon begin a systematic savings plan and could institute some budgeting as part of your financial planning. Allow yourself some flexibility in this. A rigid, unrealistic plan could cause problems rather than solve them.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The world will be seeing a more serious and practical you in the coming months. You'll be taking steps to insure the realization of your dreams and goals. Loved ones approve.

Lifestyle change, good diet secret to weight loss

Every year in January, many people make the resolution to lose weight. A great amount of research has been done on the so-called "battle of dieting." The numbers show that approximately one in three Americans are overweight and more than 50 million people are on a diet. There is some good news in the battle, however. It appears the days of being handed a starvation diet are over. Now, rather than reluctantly following a restricted calorie diet until an ideal weight is achieved, the emphasis is on a more realistic goal to eat a healthy and balanced diet, and develop a lifestyle that includes exercise.

"We need to give success a new definition," said Dale Galassie, executive director of the Lake County Health Dept. "Success should be making a lifestyle change rather than repeated efforts to lose weight."

The research is clear that not everyone was born to be thin. However, people can control their suitable body weight by making changes in their eating and exercising patterns. These changes need to be made forever, not on an on-again, off-again basis. Healthy lifestyle changes include incorporating 20 minutes of moderate exercise every other day and concentrating on eating low fat grains, vegetables and fruits. If you include some high fat foods, then just balance out the rest of your day with low fat foods.

Remember, make exercise a part of your ongoing activities. A special report by Tufts University stated that most Americans could stand to engage in more vigorous physical activity, even if that activity doesn't necessarily produce weight loss. The reason is that this activity strengthens the heart muscle; increases bone mass, thereby decreasing the risk of osteoporosis; can potentially improve blood cholesterol levels; can reduce high blood pressure; and can help many individuals cope better with stress.

To receive free information on healthy weight maintenance, call the community dietitian of the Lake County Health Dept. at 360-6753.

'Jack Sprat' to be held again

Due to popular demand, a third "Jack Sprat Could Eat No Fat—or Could He?" is being offered on Thursday, Feb. 23, at 7 p.m. at Cub Foods, 1700 N. Lewis Ave., Waukegan. Attend this free presentation and guided tour and learn how to shop smart and eat healthy. This hands-on program includes education on "healthy heart" eating and how to read product labels. What to look for in terms of fat, cholesterol, sodium, etc.

Sponsored by Victory Memorial Hospital of Waukegan. Space is limited, so call 1-800-843-2464 Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. for reservations.

New groups assist early stage Alzheimer patients

The Chicago Area Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association will begin a new support group for early stage Alzheimer's disease patients Wednesday, March 1, 9 to 10:30 a.m. at the Lake Co. Health Dept., 3012 Grand Ave., Waukegan.

There will be eight weekly sessions which provide an opportunity for persons in the early stages of Alzheimer's disease to meet with other early stage patients to share feelings, voice concerns and discuss relevant issues. There will also be a concurrent group for early stage Alzheimer caregivers.

The groups will be led by experts from the Chicago Area Chapter of the Alzheimer's Association with detailed knowledge about Alzheimer's disease and related health care issues.

Alzheimer's disease is a terminal, progressive, degenerative disease that attacks the brain and results in impaired thinking, memory and behavior.

"These groups are unique because they are designed specifically for early stage patients and focus on their needs," said Lesley Arshonsky, vice president of patient and family support services for the Chicago Area Chapter of the Alzheimer's Assn. "There is no other place for early stage Alzheimer patients to turn to for support, guidance and open discussion. These groups were created for persons diagnosed with and an understanding of the disease and its progression are also required. There is no cost for the eight-week group.

LFH embraces children with Healthy Hugs

It's 6:30 a.m., you race to get yourself dressed for the quarterly board meeting and the kids ready for school. When suddenly, your middle child looks lethargic. You take a temperature and sure enough, the child is running a fever of 102 degrees. You know that it's too high for day care. What are you going to do for your sick child?

Lake Forest Hospital can take some of the worry out of your search for your search for reliable, safe, sick-child day care. Now, when your child has the flu, cold or other minor illness, missing work won't be the only option. Healthy Hugs, offered by Lake Forest Hospital's Pediatrics Department, is now available 24 hours a day and is staffed by nursing and other professionals trained in caring for children, who will take over for you.

"We provide, a safe nurturing environment where your child's health is monitored closely by the expert staff of Lake Forest Hospital Pediatrics Department," says Debby Belasco, RN, Pediatric Coordinator. "Our unit has laid back, cheerful atmosphere that will make it much easier for youngsters to feel at ease," assures Belasco. Healthy Hugs was created in response to the needs of working parents by members of the pediatrics department with support from Lake Forest Hospital pediatricians.

Any child between infancy and the age of 13 may be cared for by Healthy Hugs if suffering from a minor illness such as a cold, flu, fever or diarrhea. However, due to concern for other children, those with a known communicable disease such as chicken pox, measles or mumps cannot be accepted in the program.

LFH Pediatrics Department offers a toy-stocked playroom as well as popular children's movies shown on over-the-bed television sets. Children are provided with a nutritious lunch and between-meal snacks. Parents may select their child's lunch from a restaurant-style menu, with offerings tailored to specific dietary needs.

All children must be pre-registered for the program before care is needed. In addition, children will not be accepted into Healthy Hugs unless they have received all recommended immunizations signed by their pediatrician. A one-time registration fee is charged per child, and it will take approximately three days to process. Rates for the Healthy Hugs program vary by the age of the child and are competitive.

To reserve a space for an ill child, contact the hospital's pediatrics department the evening before care is needed or by 6:30 a.m. the day you need to use Healthy Hugs. Children are accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Bed availability on the pediatrics unit will determine the number of children that can be accepted per day.

For further information about Lake Forest Hospital's Healthy Hugs program, call 234-6112.

Alzheimer's disease, who are aware of their memory loss and concerned about their illness. Although the Chicago Area Chapter of the Alzheimer's Assn. provides 49 support groups throughout Cook, DuPage, Kane and Lake counties that address family and caregiver needs, this new early stage group is designed specially for patients."

Group entry criteria includes a confirmed Alzheimer's diagnosis; ability to vocalize feelings and thoughts; controlled behavior; willing participation by both patients and families; and understanding of their illness. Advance registration, passing a psychological screening programs and services including a HelpLine for patient and family support, 49 family support groups throughout the four-county area, an Alzheimer's Family Care Center, financial assistance for respite care services, an extensive referral network providing information and support, research into the causes, treatment and cure of Alzheimer's disease and advocacy on behalf of patients and families.

For further information, call the Chicago Area Chapter of the Alzheimer's Assn. between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. at 933-2413 and the Helpline after 5 p.m. at 933-1000.

How to protect investment funds during volatile times

ALAN NADOLNA

These are volatile times for both investors and savers. Stocks continue at levels of valuation similar to those seen before the market correction of 1987.

Interest rates continue to creep higher. Certificates of Deposit and money fund yields are moving up but not enough to cause shifts away from stocks into these accounts. Stocks and stock funds continue to attract investors' dollars but there remains a growing sense of unease.

There are some measures to take to reduce investment risk, particularly when utilizing mutual funds. We continue to recommend mutual funds as the primary vehicle for investing because of their inherent diversification, low cost of access and ease of transfer from fund to fund within the same family.

Investors should retain significant portions of their portfolios in stock mutual funds. It is necessary, however, to exert greater efforts at risk reduction.

The first step should be to determine the relative risk of each of the funds that you own.

The fund's risk is determined by a number of measures, including BETA, safety rating, up and down market and worst period losses. BETA measures the volatility of a fund's price relative to a representative market index.

A BETA of 1 will basically track the S and P 500 Index. A BETA of .5 will rise and fall half as fast as the S and P 500.

To reduce volatility, the investments might well be moved to funds with BETA of 1.0 or lower. The safety ratings, up and down markets and other measures can be found by consulting Value Line, Morningstar or your financial advisor.

Diversify

Another defensive strategy is to ensure you have reduced risk by diversifying among funds. Diversification provides protection against the risk of having investment concerns in one poor performing area or category. Diversification of investments should also include a mix of stocks, bonds and cash.

The allocation among these investment categories is different for varying investor styles and relative ages. These three categories seldom perform in tandem, so one or more will typically be performing well when one is not.

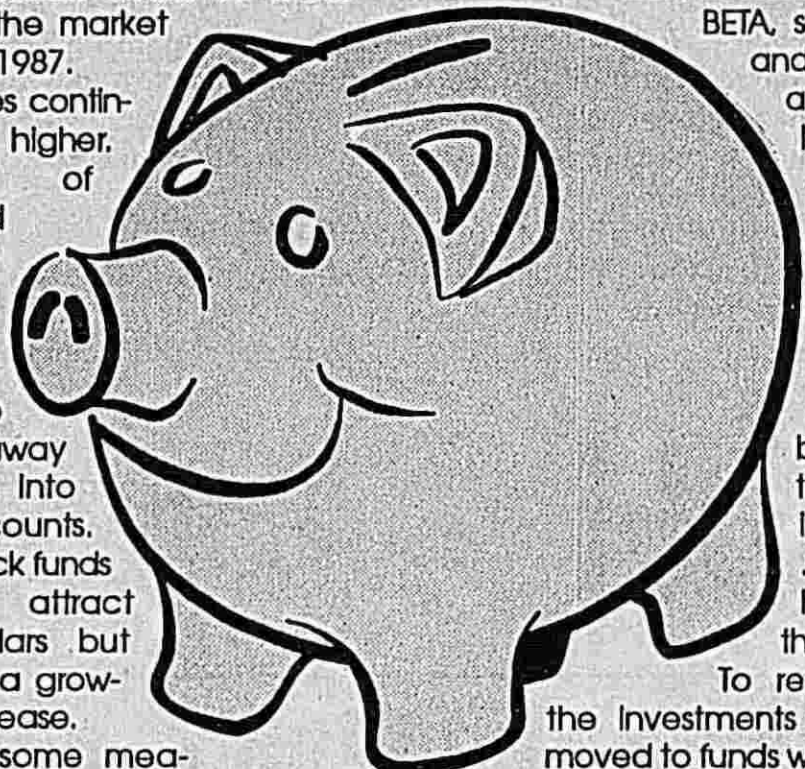

An additional risk reduction strategy is called time diversification. There is a tendency among investors to panic when the market falls. Long-term investors are much less likely to lose money on funds investments than those who hold their positions for only short periods of time. While stocks at times may generally decline for a year or even five or 10 years, these longer declines do not occur very often.

Too often investors have lost money selling shares in a declining market and thereby missing market recoveries. There is a strategy that assures in the long run you will outperform the market. Dollar cost averaging means investing at predetermined intervals. An example would be to invest $1,000 every six months.

Your fixed dollar investment will buy more shares when the price is low and fewer shares when the price is high. This ensures you are buying more shares at lower prices so that your average cost per share is always less than the average price at which you bought. This technique provides the discipline and motivation to be a long-term investor.

Several retirement plans for small business owners

CAROL MILKE-DIGMAN

Americans of every age, income and family status will face serious financial difficulties when they attempt to retire if they have not planned properly.

Many smaller companies do not have company retirement programs for themselves or their employees. Owners of small businesses are beginning to examine the possibility of implementing retirement programs.

Many people have heard of IRA's and 401K programs. IRA's can be established by any working individual. A maximum of $2,000 can be contributed each year by an individual or $2,500 for a spousal IRA.

This investment lost some of its popularity when the full deduction was taken away for those making over $30,000 individually or $50,000 jointly.

The 401K program is a very popular vehicle used by major corporations to encourage their employees to save on a pre-taxed basis. Often there is a company match of some sort which provides additional savings for the employees and a tax benefit for the corporation.

What is available for the small business owner? A SEP (Simplified Employee Pension) or SAR SEP (Salary Reduction Simplified Employee Pension) plan has become a popular alternative for the small business owner.

With a SEP, the employer chooses when to contribute and how much to contribute to each employee account.

In most cases, contributions can be much larger than those allowed under the ordinary IRA.

As an employer, you can contribute a maximum on behalf of each employee, either 15 percent of each employee compensation, or $30,000, whichever is less. You can reduce your company taxes because your contributions are tax deductible. This plan is low in cost to the employer because each employee maintains his own IRA to hold his SEP contribution, which is called a SEPIRA.

The SAR SEP provides all the advantages of a SEP plus the ability for employees to make their own contributions. If you are an employer with less than 25 employees, you may want to consider a SAR SEP, or if you are an employee in a small company ask your employer to create such a plan. The SAR SEP allows employees to reduce their taxes by contributing to their SEP with pre-taxed dollars.

The employer establishes the plan and the employees elect how much is to be invested. The employee can contribute up to $9,240 as long as contributions and those of the employees do not exceed 15 percent, or $30,000, whichever is less.

The employer may not even have to make contributions to the plan unless it is considered "top heavy." A plan is considered top heavy if the total value of all "key employees" accounts exceeds $60,000 of the total value of all employee accounts. If that is the case, the employer may be required to make a small contribution on behalf of each employee.

As an owner of a small business looking for ways to compete with larger companies that offer expensive retirement benefit plans, or as a self-employed individual who needs to save for retirement, the SEP or SAR SEP may be the easiest way to answer your retirement needs.

Wrong decision

I think this Baby Richard case has been handled all wrong. I think the Judge made a huge mistake in awarding custody to the biological father. If he would have been a man and been responsible in the beginning, this never would have happened. He was a two-timer who only wanted a son to carry on the family name and because he thought it would make him a man. This four-year-old boy should be left with the only parents that he knows, people who love and care for him, and wanted him from the beginning. Stick to your original decision, go on with your lives, and have children of your own. You gave up all rights to this child and he is no longer yours. Live with it!

Have American Day

I'm wondering why Grayslake School Dist. 46 is not observing President's Day, Feb. 20, honoring Washington and Lincoln, when school is closed to honor Martin Luther King and Casimir Pulaski. When I called to inquire at Dist. 46, I was told, "Because it fell on a weekend and we weren't allowed to take it off." Feb. 20 falls on a Monday. The Grayslake Post Office said there will be no mail delivery that day. Many financial institutions are closed. In my opinion, all four individuals were great Americans. If we can't honor all, then we should honor none. Has anyone ever considered combining it into one "Great American" day?

Let's be honest

When are we going to get the real facts about this new Underhurst School District? The Committee of Ten has not been honest with the public. Recently, we have been hearing that taxes will be raised from $900 to over $1,000 annually for homeowners in the affected areas. This is totally unnecessary, and it's time for the people to stand up and put an end to this immediately.

Change principal

This is an addition to the comment that was called in and printed regarding Spring Grove schools. Being the person to call that in, I felt that my point did not come across about the principal. There are some great teachers at that school, there are a few that need drastic help. But I feel they all could be changed if you just change the principal.

Machine at work

On cable television, Mayor Baumunk endorsed Trustees Betustak, Zerba, and Volodka for re-election in 1997. Is this an indication of ensuring a "yes" vote village board for the next two years? Is this good government, or is this Lindenhurst's machine politics at work?

Only a game

Why is the President involved in settling the baseball strike? Wake up, Clinton. It's only a game! Aren't there more serious items you should be concentrating on? Like homelessness, hunger, welfare reform, the deficit, unemployment, crime, etc.? And let's not spend so many United States dollars on foreign countries. It's not that the people of Japan don't deserve help recovering from their earthquake, or that Mexico's economy doesn't need a boost, they do. But hey, if you want to boost the Mexican economy, help the United States. Half of the Mexican population are living here! I don't begrudge anyone help, but there's hungry people in our streets, too. Don't ignore them!

Don't spend money

I was just wondering, instead of spending $38 million on a new high school in Warren Township, maybe the Anchor Hocking buildings could be renovated, and a new high school bloomed from that. Maybe we should use something that we already have instead of bulldozing virgin land and building a new school. Maybe we should have shifts. Maybe we should rezone the district and get rid of some of the kids that are flowing into the school. Maybe there are other ideas besides $38 million and my taxes going up.

Let's see the facts

I think we should be very careful before we go ahead and build this supposedly $38 million high school for Warren Township. We listened to all of the politicians and teachers in order to build this new grade school because supposedly our other grade school flooded and was a bad place to put the children. Now we have a new grade school and we still use the old grade school for children. And then we spent a whole bunch of money to remodel it and build beautiful offices for management. I think we should look at all the facts before we spend $38 million plus for a brand new high school when we already paid to have the old one rebuilt.

The last word

This should be the last word on the abortion issue. Sure, birth control should be the way to go, but that's a two-way street. It's not just the women, the men also have to show some responsibility. But 90-percent of the time they don't. You'd think with all the diseases floating around, they'd wake up. You should have the alternative for an abortion. No one should be able to tell you what you can or cannot do. And what about the woman who is raped by a maniac? You want them to have a baby who will be a constant reminder of the scumball they're trying to forget. Don't give me the adoption garbage, because there's thousands of kids waiting to be adopted. Just mind your own business, and don't try and tell everybody to live to your standards. By the way, euthanasia should be legal, too.

Why find fault?

Why is it some people can always find fault in other people, but never in themselves? It's a shame of what one sees and hears when this happens to both parties. They don't just hurt the person they're talking about or trying to hurt, but themselves also. They may be worse than the person they're talking about!

Lipservice is great

I think Lipservice is great. This is the only thing I know for someone with an idea or a comment can start a chain reaction from other people. I think it's great! So, next time, say something. Don't just say it's boring. Throw something out there and get the ball rolling!

Disappointed member

I attended my third Slocum Lake Management Association meeting, and I'm very disappointed with what they're doing. I joined this organization because it was supposed to fix Slocum Lake up, because it has a lot of environmental problems. What the association is really doing are gathering to talk about flooding out their houses. The government came and told them they could buy flood insurance, which pays for their repairs, etc. I'm disappointed, because I want to fix the lake up, but all they do is talk about flooded houses. The last election, we voted the anti-growth people out and put pro-growth people in. They should've went to the election booths and voted.

Teachers, grow up!

As a student at Round Lake High School, I believe we've suffered enough this year. If that wasn't enough, we have to listen to teachers bitch and moan still about how the way things are run. Why don't they all grow up and take a lesson from the students, who have been through hell this year?

Only opinions

I'm so tired of these anti-abortionists who think they know it all. Please remember, your views are only "your opinion." You have a right to your opinion, and others have a right to theirs.

Yay, pro-lifers

I just got done reading the Feb. 10 Lipservice. I want to say "yee-ha" to all the people who are speaking See LIPSERVICE page B23 out for pro-life from experience, adoptions, and offering other ways. I think it's great that these people have called in. Let's stick together!

Grayslake Beware

Mr. Wilson is back to his dream pool again. He and his board have decided for us that we need a $3 million pool for the city. We will pay for it in taxes and again in a membership. Please, residents, don't believe me, do your own homework. Ask Mr. Wilson to show you figures on paper, how much it will cost if membership is below a certain level and taxes go up again. It's sad that the parks district really has enough money now, and that we can't even take care of the parks we have now. I feel we have two choices: 1. Mr. Wilson should be realistic about our money and pool, and downsize to something like what Libertyville has, which is very successful; and 2. Buy our own pools, which would save us a lot of money.

Hooray, school board

Three years ago, when the Dist. 116 school board took over, it was unfortunate that they inherited a large debt. I shuttered when my children's programs were cut in order to help decrease the indebtedness and still pay the high teacher salaries. Hooray, school board, you are the first to take total fiscal responsibility. Your recent tough stand during the teacher's strike reaffirmed my belief in all of you. Congratulations! You didn't cave in to the union's demands, which in the past have devastated the district financially. Keep up the good work! The public supported you during the strike, and supports you now. It's a shame the union won't admit to it. Maybe if the teachers get smart, they'll realize that it's time for a drastic change in leadership, and honest leadership at that.

Can he teach others?

Word has it that Mr. Kim Kirby, Dist. 116 union head honcho will be teaching Driver's Education next year. Oh, that's only if he has his suspended license back by the start of the next school year. Will his recent arrest for driving with a suspended license discredit his so-called "best teacher in Dist. 116" status?

A 'Top Ten'

The following is a list of the Top Ten reasons why Mr. Mark Rinestein is back in School District 116 union activities: 10. Kicked out of the Fox Lake school negotiations; 9. Kicked out of the Antioch school negotiations; 8. Kicked out of the Lake Bluff school negotiations; 7. Kicked out of the Grayslake school negotiations; 6. Insists on financially destroying Dist. 116 children's programs; 5. Law school wannabe; 4. Real lawyer wannabe; 3. Wants to represent Kim Kirby in traffic court; 2. Wants to unionize the Mr. Rogers show; and the 1. reason: Teacher's union dues ultimately end up in Mr. Rinestein's paycheck.

Deal with it

I need a question answered. When a teacher signs their first contract with the Round Lake School District, who holds the gun to their head? If teacher pay is so low in Round Lake, why sign the contract in the first place? And if working in Round Lake schools is so bad, how come we have some teachers earning $50,000 a year? These type of earnings require at least 15 years of employment in the district. Dear Mr. and Mrs. Teacher: If you don't like the pay, do as us workers in the real world do - get a higher paying job. Or are you afraid that a different district may release you before you get that all-important benefit called tenure. Oh, and by the way, my employer requires me to pay for part of my health insurance. Your employer pays for all of yours. Furthermore, I don't get free dental coverage. The next time you start feeling sorry for yourself, you get to take off June, July, and August. People are right, you do only work nine months. If my calculations are correct, 180 school days divided by a 30-day month equals only six months of employment. Oh, pity on you!

Horn case still open

To the person who thinks the matter regarding the continuation of the train horns has been settled, think again! We who have our lives and sleep continuously disrupted are not about to let the matter pass so easily. When the people who live near the proposed end of the line depot in Antioch have to contend with the switching of trains and the continuous rumbling of diesel train engines, which continue to run during the night since they don't shut the engines off ever, thank Mayor Shineflug, for in her zealous efforts to make a name for herself did not think of the unwelcome consequences for the Antioch citizens who live in that area.

Mud-slinging not OK

I'm calling in regard to the ribbon-cutting ceremony at Super K-mart, which happened Thursday, Feb. 9. My daughter was one of several children there playing for the ribbon-cutting ceremony. We had several of the Round Lake Beach officials there, also. The associates surrounding the band were cursing, which wasn't right. The mud-slinging that occurred, at a mannequin and a flag at Onni and Jewel, was ridiculous as well. We don't need that kind of business in our town. We need competitive-type businesses, not businesses that are going to slash each other in public, in front of children that don't need to see this. They suffered enough during the strike. I say, "Foul!" on the mayor and two of the trustees, as well as several police officers who were there during the ceremony.

Is pornography OK?

I'm calling in regard to a situation we have in our schools, specifically Village school. I'm aware that teachers tell children that they can't bring bibles in class, speak of God, or recite the Pledge of Allegiance. Yet, on Thursday, Feb. 9, pornography was brought into the class and was shown to the kids. Pictures of the beaches of France with half-naked women on them, as part of the curriculum. I find this to be an affront to all in the district in Round Lake Beach, and to all people.

Don't teach this

Parents of Round Lake Beach, are you aware that our students are shown pictures of nude beaches as part of the curriculum in sixth grade? If I wanted my daughter to know about these things, I would buy a copy of Playboy and teach her these things at home, where they should be taught. Where is our illustrious school board, when these things are being presented to our children? They're off buying things and making deals for companies that they work for. Be aware of this, parents!

Right to know

Questions to the Lake Villa Unit District Committee of 10. One fact the committee has refused to disclose is the bonded debt already on tax bills of districts involved. These debts must be paid off by property owners. It cannot be forgiven. Another question is, the future bond repayment of $39.5 million. The committee has not released a repayment schedule, interest rates, or bonding company. Another fact is, the $39.5 million bond will be added onto the cost of the unit school district's cost. The two combined costs are fact. Also, it has been reported that the total cost of the unit district will add nearly $1400 in taxes onto a $150,000 market value house. The people have a right to know!

Making light of law

This is for Kim Kirby, fourth grade teacher at Round Lake. Not only do you get three tickets, one of which was for passing a school bus stopped with their arm out, but then you drive with a suspended license. Then, to make matters even worse, you make light of it to your students in your fourth grade class. That's disgusting. We're supposed to be teaching our students right from wrong, and to uphold the law, not make light of it. Shame on you!

Francis did well

In an article Feb. 10 regarding Grant Township being at a standstill while Klesgen recovers, although we all miss Gordy, no one is indispensable. I personally feel Mike Francis handled the chair in Klesgen's absence very well. I also believe his quick response in accepting the responsibility should surely be recognized.

Don't tailgate!

In regard to the article on 'No Tailgating,' I guess the caller said that she was followed by Johnsburg Police Department. I can definitely relate to that, because twice this past week I was followed by Libertyville Police officers, once going to work and once coming from work. Through the entire stretch of Rte. 21 in Libertyville, at no time did he give up on me. If I made a lane change, so did the officer. At some points, I could actually see the officer's face as well. The thing that the officer has to remember, in general, that people get nervous when an officer is behind them. I realize the police have their work to do by checking registrations, but I also realize that it doesn't take six miles to get an answer by a computer saying there's not a warrant on an individual car. I know if I followed an officer for six miles, he sure wouldn't like it and would turn around and give me a ticket for tailgating.

For the 13 weeks ended Dec. 31, 1994, net sales were $114.6 million, up 34 percent from $85.6 million in the second quarter ended Jan. 1, 1994. ## Windshield repair offers replacement alternative

NEAL TUCKER
Staff Reporter

Imagine getting your windshield repaired for $85 including a lifetime guarantee on the work and the repairman comes to you.

An Antioch business, Novus Windshield Repair, can repair the damage caused by road hazards. A simple rock ding can quickly become a long crack that spreads across the windshield like a spider's web, not only distorting one's view but becoming a safety hazard as well. During the winter time, this process is sped up dramatically as the warm defrosting air meets the harsh contrast of the windshield's outside temperature.

The optimum benefit to the vehicle owner is to act quickly, but it can be a souring prospect. As a conservative estimate, windshields average roughly $300 to replace. Those purple and gold windshields that defrost themselves can run over $1,000, but cost is not the entire problem.

"Once you break the factory seal, it is never the same," said Judi Kallos, co-owner of Novus Windshield Repair in Antioch. Kallos said windshields seldom seat properly after the factory seal is broken, which leads to water leaks and wind noise.

Instead of windshield replacement for dings and simple cracks six inches long or less, which often become big cracks, wouldn't it be perfect to fix the problem before hand? Even better, what if a business could restore structural integrity, have the repair be at least 80 percent optically clear, warranty the repair for the life of the windshield and guarantee the repair cost will be no more than $85?

If the car owner's answer is yes, then Novus can deliver on all counts. In fact, some insurance companies wave their deductible and pay for the repair because they know a solid repair will save them from paying a new windshield claim in the future.

Kallos used to be an account manager for Panasonic. Co-owner and fiancé Paul Pachmayer was a team leader for Saturn. Both were highly successful in their pursuits, but that wasn't enough.

"We got tired of making other people money," she recalled.

Both of them began to research franchise opportunities. Kallos said they became very impressed with Novus, which has over 900 franchises worldwide. See WINDSHIELD page C2

Fox Lake Chamber honors manufacturer

TINA L. SWIECH
Staff Reporter

A well-deserved certificate of appreciation will be presented to a Fox Lake business that has been in operation for 44-years.

The Fox Lake Chamber of Commerce awarded Jim Jensen, owner of J.B. Jensen Mfg. with a citation for the company's many years of business in the village, Feb. 13.

Fox Lake Chamber President Allen Sturges of Second Federal Savings and Loan in Fox Lake and former President Jeannette Campbell of Lakeland Community Bank in Round Lake Heights, and Chamber Secretary Diane Freeman, including several Chamber directors helped ring in the anniversary of the nationwide business on Rte. 12 near Sayton Rd.

It's neighbor, Dip Stick Fast Oil Change, also celebrated four years in business, and Jensen is the owner of that as well.

Jensen explained that he took over the manufacturing company in 1971 when his dad, the founder, passed away. He began working at the family business long before, however, when he came home from being in the United States Army after World War II.

J.B. Jensen Mfg. constructs plastic parts for a myriad of businesses, including those in the food industry, electrical parts, and forklift factories.

Honors

While Jim Jensen inherited the business from his father, he certainly didn't inherit his middle name. The founders name is James Boothbay Harbor Jensen.

The "Boothbay Harbor" comes from the town in Maine where he was born of Danish immigrants. They loved the little fishing village so much, they named their son after it, explained Jensen of his grandparents.

And he likes it there too. Jensen said he and his entire family have vacationed in Boothbay Harbor many times.

Jensen's dad opened the business in Fox Lake in 1951, after years of working for another manufacturer in Chicago. The current owner said his father was simply tired of traveling to an from the city each day, as their home was located in Wooster Lake where Holiday Park now stands.

When the manufacturing company first began, it was only half the size it is now. Jensen's father rented out a portion of the current building, but in 1975 Jensen purchased the structure and took over the entire space for his business.

The business has grown much since it first began, explained Jensen. Now grossing $1.8 million a year, the company grossed around $260,000 a year before its expansion.

Born in Chicago, Jensen moved to the Ingleside area with his family when he was a boy, and he attend Big Hollow School, going on to graduate from Grant Community High School.

Jensen then attended Purdue University where he majored in engineering.

Now he and his family reside in Lake Geneva, including his wife Pam and their seven children. The couple have a set of fraternal twins, 12-years old—one boy and a girl.

Two of their older children are employed by J.B. Jensen Mfg.; their daughter Jill who is the office manager, and Dan who manages the sales department.

What derived as a suggestion, has become the Dip Stick Fast Oil Change right next door.

Jensen said in 1991, one of his former Army buddies came up from Peoria to visit him, and noted that a lot of the parking lot J.B. Jensen Mfg. had, could be put to good use.

The two friends mulled over ideas for the spot, and came up with a business customers could appreciate from a time standpoint. Thus the quick oil change shop was born.

Jack Rees, Jensen's Army buddy, did much of the legwork and was the general contractor of the garage, he explained.

Besides oil changes, the shop also does minor installations such as wiper blades and head lights.

Windshield

The company has patented equipment and resins not available to other windshield repair companies. Beyond that, the two were impressed with the professionalism of Novus along with the comprehensive training program.

Pachmayer, who performs all the repairs while Kallos answers the phones and directs the marketing efforts, went through an intense 10-day training program. 'Intense' is not a word Kallos used by accident.

"They break a windshield right in front of you and say 'fix it.' Then, they break a windshield, put oil in the crack and say 'clean it and fix it,'" Kallos said.

Novus can guarantee their windshield for life because the failure rate is less than one percent. For the ultimate in customer service, that one percent can go to any Novus repair company in the country and make good on the lifetime warranty.

Unlike other auto repairs, no one has to go to Novus. The whole repair shop, housed in a minivan, comes to them. Most repairs of simple bullseyes or rock dings take 30 minutes or less. Kallos said they try to keep travel time within 25 minutes of Antioch. Plans for a second franchise in Lake County are in the works for March of this year. She said the business is growing so well with car dealers and private business Novus is making a concerted effort to keep service at an optimum.

Novus can be reached by calling 395-3490 or 1-800-40-NOVUS.

Do's and don'ts for rookie homebuyers

Where do you start when it's finally time to give up renting and join the ranks of a bonafide homeowner? As there is no handy set of guidelines with do's and don'ts for rookie homebuyers, we've outlined a few pointers that will help the ordeal go a little easier, and offer a boost of confidence along the way.

•Investigate a new area thoroughly to be sure it meets your personal requirements like job accessibility, school for the kids, shopping and, of course, investment potential. Check out the local building and zoning department for proposed changes not yet implemented.

•Interview the agent that will help you select the right home for you and your family. A license to sell is good anywhere in the state, which doesn't ensure that one agent can be a specialist statewide.

After determining the areas you have chosen to investigate, ask the agent what areas in which he tends to do the bulk of his business. You want to be sure your agent knows well the area you have selected. It takes time, patience and caring to learn what kind of house and neighborhood will best serve a new family, so you want to develop a rapport that you are comfortable with.

Engaging several different agents in a small area does not promote the teamwork necessary to provide for the right home for you. If you are not satisfied with the service of the person you are working with, find another.

•Get some professional financial counseling to determine your purchase power before jumping in the car and touring a ton of homes. A good sales agent will recommend the services of one or two highly reputable lenders to help you in selecting the right financing instrument for your needs. Consult your professional about questions more important than small differences in interest rates, like service, integrity to commitments, and extra "hidden" closing costs.

•Taking the recommendations of well-meaning relatives and friends can be disastrous if they haven't dealt with the service for several years.

•Do your initial house hunting without family, friends and small children. After becoming familiar with an area and finalizing the particular neighborhood you enjoy, then bring in the troops for final commentary. Unless mom or dad are paying for the home, the decision is yours.

Although their comments are valuable and their interest is to protect and advise you, consider using the services of a professional home inspector to check out the home thoroughly. A good inspector has plenty of gadgets to test for moisture and gas leaks, and is prepared to climb around the roof and in the crawl space to be certain of proper conditions.

A good real estate attorney to review the contract and represent you at the closing ensures your best interest in the final stages of your home purchase. There are many questions and points on new or existing construction that need the legal eye on your behalf.

Questions or comments may be directed to Terri Murphy, Box 6234, Libertyville, IL 60048.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Cambridge offering VA financing

OAK BROOK—Cambridge Homes is now offering VA financing for its College Trail Garden Homes and Court Homes in Grayslake. Approximately 58 million people are eligible to receive VA financing, yet only some 12 million VA loans have been made since 1944. One problem is that VA financing is not as readily available with new home purchases as other types of financing. The reason is that each community in which a builder wishes to offer VA financing must be approved by the Veterans Administration. And a community is approved only after it meets the VA's strict criteria.

James Co. launch Saddlewood

WAUCONDA—In 1980, The James Companies of Illinois transformed a portion of the heavily wooded estate formerly owned by Philip D. Armour III in Lake Bluff into Tangle Oaks, an extraordinary woodland community of single-family homes. The company's new creation, to be known as Saddlewood, will be an environmental enclave of 81 homes set into 52 acres of heavily wooded, rolling terrain in rustic Wauconda. Saddlewood will be a low-density, environmentally sensitive and ecologically sound community of detached single-family homes, according to Merrily James, project manager for the developer, Saddlewood Associates, a James Company.

Room to roam

Prairie Crossings, a subdivision in Grayslake, unveiled three of its models at a grand opening this month. Beginning with the dream of Gaylord and Dorothy Donnelley, the community will have just 317 single family homes on 667 acres when complete. Amenities include more than 350 acres devoted to gardens, prairies, pastures, farm fields, marshes and lakes.

IN MEMORIAM

In Memory of Rory G. Arff

God looked around in His garden,
And he found an empty place.
Then looked down upon this earth,
And saw your tired face.
He put His arms around you,
And lifted you to rest.
God's garden must be beautiful,
He always takes the best.
He knew you were in pain.
He knew that you would never,
Get well on earth again.
He saw the road was getting rough,
And the hills were hard to climb.
So He closed your weary eyelids,
And whispered "Peace be thine".
It broke our hearts to lose you,
But you didn't go alone.
For a part of us went with you
The day God called you home.

We love you & miss you.
Mom, Ray & Randy

Griefnotes

Why is there such an emphasis on death and grief today?

There have been great advances in medical science which have removed death from the daily lives of most Americans. Because of this we are generally unfamiliar with death and grief. We are fortunate that our experience with death has lessened, but nevertheless it's important to learn about the things we can do to help ourselves and friends. Making wills and understanding how to help our grieving friends will help us cope better when the stress of a death comes into our lives. Avoiding death by ignoring it, by not making wills or by not going to funerals or visitations is a denial of reality!

How To Survive The Job Search
By Nancy Sakol

Q: Dear...Search: I have signed on with several employment agencies over the last six months. I call them each and every day. Sometimes twice per day. I have not been sent on so much as one interview in all this time. I don't think they are doing a good job helping me secure employment. What do you suggest I do? L.L. - Lake Bluff

A: Dear L.L. Let me answer your question with another...If you are calling several employment agencies once or twice a day...what can you possibly be accomplishing? Being on the telephone all day asking people what they are doing for you is not the way to find a job. Do not rely on everyone else to help you secure employment. What have you done on your own? Are you actively interviewing and utilizing the telephone for setting up your own interviews? If the answer is "NO", keep in mind that an employment agency is not your answer to a "what have you done for me lately attitude!"

Q: Dear...Search: I work for a real estate broker for quite some time now. I enjoy what I do thoroughly and am good at it. My problem however is that my boss has an obvious alcohol dependency that is affecting the entire office. I am left to constantly make excuses as to why she doesn't show for appointments with her clients. Employees are talking behind her back. I constantly have to turn irate people away for her and what's worse, is that I have seen her outright abusive when on a binge to her own staff. I desperately need to ask for a raise for which I have not received one in two years and have tried to find a good time to approach the subject. There doesn't seem to be one. What do you suggest? - Lake County.

A: Alcohol dependency...tough situation to handle especially when it isn't admitted. You didn't mention how close you are to your boss or if you would feel comfortable speaking with her in general. My suggestion at this time would be, that since no time could be the right time, ask when the next opportunity arises that you are alone. You have little to lose in that, you will either get the raise or not. If not...perhaps it is time to take all the problems you see there into consideration and start searching for a non-abusive boss with no alcohol or chemical dependencies, who takes pride in his or her work. There are thousands out there. You may love what you do, but at what time does a person stop and say...this is not worth it? How about now! Rule #1 - Do not quit until you have another job. Good luck!

Note: Nancy Sakol is a licensed personnel professional and President of Superior Personnel in Gurnee. Letters can be sent to Nancy at 4949 Grand Ave., Gurnee, IL 60031.

Educational Summit planned for businesses, schools

How Lake County schools and businesses can work together to develop a quality future work force will be highlighted at an educational summit featuring keynote speaker Illinois Lt. Gov. Bob Kustra.

Sponsored by the Lake County Economic Development Commission (EDC) and hosted by Kemper National Insurance Companies, the free summit with 20 exhibitors will take place from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, March 7, at Kemper National Insurance Companies Building 3 Auditorium, Rte. 22 west of Old McHenry Road, Long Grove.

With more than 20 years in teaching, Kustra has been appointed by Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar as the state's point person on education. Kustra will discuss how businesses and schools can form partnerships for educational innovation and economic development, and how to work toward ensuring that today's students will be the qualified work force for tomorrow.

Kustra will open the educational summit and will be followed by a panel discussion featuring eight business and school leaders.

The educational summit evolves from a new 38-page report, "Business and Education Linkage Activities," produced by the Lake County EDC Education and Labor Availability Committee. The report was coordinated by Jeff Flesher, Ph.D., coordinator of Southern Illinois University's Dept. of Workforce Education and Development at Great Lakes.

"The report gives everyone a baseline from which to measure progress," Flesher said. "It provides a linkages snapshot, as of April, 1994, when we surveyed all 45 school districts and 242 schools, public and private, Kindergarten through 12, in Lake County."

The report explains that business/education linkages are connections between schools and community resources that accomplish educational objectives. "These linkages can be well-documented, planned and evaluated activities such as adopt-a-school and other formal partnerships, or they may be the result of an occasional one-time donation of surplus materials," Flesher said.

Lake County EDC Education and Labor Availability Committee Chair Christine Stevens said, "The educational summit will provide an overview of the current linkage activities occurring in the county, the planned growth of those activities, and the continuing needs of schools for the community's support." Director of the Private Industry Council of Lake County, Stevens said that the Educational and Labor Availability Committee was initiated after local employers told Lake County officials that work force quality and availability were the foremost concerns in business retention surveys done in 1988 and 1992. Stevens will serve as educational summit moderator.

Other panelists besides Flesher and Stevens will include:

• Admiral Mack C. Gaston, commander, Great Lakes Naval Training Center, who will outline the range of involvement that Navy personnel have with local schools.

• Charles F. "Chuck" Johanns, senior vice president of public affairs and communications, Kemper National Insurance Companies and chairman of the Kemper Industry Affairs Policy Committee, who will discuss how Kemper links with local schools.

• Rolando Ravelo, Mundelein High School graduate and member of his alma mater's Venture In Partnership (VIP) Community Action Committee, who will describe VIP's multi-cultural involvement. Ravelo is a sales manager of Motorola's Cellular Subscriber Group.

• Diana Robinson, Chicago Region Vice President of the National Alliance of Business (NAB), who will share ideas in NAB's "The Fourth R: Workplace Readiness, A Guide to Business Education Partnerships."

• Toni Rogan, who directs Mundelein High School's VIP program. Rogan will describe how bonds created by partnerships enable resources to be shared. See EMPLOYMENT page C18

TMA looks into long-term traffic solutions

For Lake County residents clogged roadways are not an uncommon sight. Since 1992, there's been an organization which is working to help alleviate traffic woes by examining and promoting long-term solutions.

The Transportation Management Association of Lake County, TMA as it is most commonly known, is made up of state and local governments, municipalities, private companies, associations, small businesses and individuals. The members have joined together to provide the region with a forum for communication, education and representation on transportation-related issues.

The organization covers most of Lake County with the exception of the Lake-Cook Rd. area.

Joel Rus, executive director of TMA, agreed there is much congestion on County roads and his organization is there to find solutions.

Rus has been executive director of the TMA since last October. Previously he worked for a national organization.

The TMA has approximately 51 members, representing around 30,000 employees of various association members. The TMA works with transportation oriented agencies including the Illinois Department of Transportation in search of solutions.

The TMA is a private, non-profit association which endorses the concept that improved traffic conditions can increase economic productivity, air quality and the overall quality of life in Lake County.

Rus explained the TMA looks at issues such as road repairs, and the need for traffic signals. "People usually don't realize the cost of one traffic light," Rus said. "Depending on the type, signals can cost anywhere from $80,000 to $130,000 a piece."

One area of concern for TMA is the Conway Farms corporate complex area on Rte. 60 near Lake Forest. Rus said there are simply not enough commuter busses to take employees to and from the railroad. The TMA is helping to provide more transportation.

TMA is also working with the Merchants Group in Libertyville about the congestion on Rte. 21 (Milwaukee Ave.) The group is looking into the problem with street parking.

Many forums are held by the TMA "to build a constituency for better transportation," said Rus. Countywide meetings are held with county officials, and there will be one in the near future, although a date has not been set.

The TMA is much like a broker between the private and public sectors. Some of the main topics they research are transportation improvement, and traffic engineering improvement.

An advocate of ride-sharing, the TMA also encourages variable work hours to help ease road congestion. Another suggestion is subscription vans or buses owned by a complex or firm which can transport workers while lowering the number of vehicles on the roads, explained Rus.

A dilemma that the TMA is currently working on, are results of a gallop poll done in the early 90s which showed 60 percent of people surveyed in Lake County, are concerned with what they think is rapid growth. Also, the county area might seem less attractive to people, said Rus, if they have to commute long distances for jobs.

Another concern is the lack of public transportation. The TMA is working See TMA page C17

CLC prepares students for future careers, changing workforce

SUZIE REED

Staff Reporter

Throughout its 25-year history, the College of Lake County has been comprehensive in the programs offered to students. The administration continues to adjust the curriculum in order to meet the changing needs of the student population.

"From the beginning it's been a mix of students," said Russ Peterson, assistant vice president of educational affairs. Many have always been older students, either those who had not had an opportunity for college before entering the work force and others who return for training in a particular career field.

Peterson said there has been a big growth in the number of people who are looking for adult basic education.

"These are people who need to become more literate than they are," he explained. "They need basic reading and writing skills."

Although these students may not have a diploma, they have a considerable amount of life experience and intelligence. Because of this, CLC offers more than simplistic rote learning, but takes a problem solving approach with a program that has earned them recognition from the Illinois Community College Board.

"We help students learn how they can use computers to access information, analyze information and express that information," Peterson said by way of an example.

Community colleges have always been an important bridge to four-year colleges, whether for economic, social or academic reasons, but transferring credits to other institutions has sometimes proved difficult. CLC is dealing with this aspect as well.

"During the last few years there has been a significant growth in the number of students interested in transferring courses to universities," said Peterson.

The college is working to make that easier through the Illinois Transfer Initiative, a program to identify a common set of general education courses that will transfer from one institution to another. The agreement will simplify curricula for an associate degree to include general education courses that will transfer to other schools.

"We've gotten more information about transfer students," Peterson noted. "Some of them transfer two or three times."

Although many start out at a community college they may not stay at one university after they transfer. Some begin at a four-year college, then come to CLC and later return to where they started out.

"We're trying to define a standard set of courses for these students," said Peterson.

A big part of the school's curriculum has always been geared to career education, with two-year programs designed to provide students with technical skills. Programs are continually being altered to reflect changes in technology.

"We are constantly updating our computer labs," said Peterson, noting that classes in computer-assisted design (CAD) bring in many students already in the work force coming back to be retrained.

"The changes affect business programs as well," he added.

When classes are changed and courses are added CLC must obtain approval from the Illinois Community College Board, a process that takes some time.

"We want a vehicle that would allow us to change more quickly," said Peterson.

The solution is the creation of topics courses, which can be used as a shell and then changed into separate courses if the demand is there.

In business education, the college offers direct training to employees through the Center for Economic Development. Companies contract for group training instead of having workers sign up for classes individually.

"There is a greater flexibility in how we offer courses," he said.

The emphasis of career programs has changed from manufacturing to more service-oriented training. Although Lake County still has a high number of manufacturing firms, they are becoming more dispersed and more diverse, said Peterson.

On the horizon is a quality technician program that will be added in the fall of 1995. Engineering students graduating this spring may earn an associate degree that can be transferred to a four-year college with the technical credits as well as their basic courses.

The school has also responded to a change in the demand for courses in certain fields. When the college opened, business courses were in great demand. See WORKFORCE page C16

Resumés: Saying only what you need to say

The four most commonly used resume styles are described below.

(1) Chronological—This style (the most common and traditional) incorporates a listing of the job seeker's work history starting with the most current position and working back in time. Each job is described in terms of a title, dates of employment, employer's name and a description of the duties and accomplishments. No mention of a specific job objective is recommended with this style.

This resume style is recommended if you have a solid work history with no gaps in time. If the job you want is directly related to your work history, or if you have worked for a well known company and you want to use the company's name to bolster your professional image and reputation.

(2) Functional—This more contemporary style incorporates a listing of the job seeker's major areas of knowledge or accomplishments, usually arranged in priority from the most developed skills to the least developed skills. (Note: you may also arrange your skills in any order to best support whatever position you are seeking). Job titles, names of employers, dates of employment and a description of duties are usually left out when this style is used. Like the Chronological style above, no mention of a specific job objective is recommended with this style. This resume style is recommended if you are making a career change and are attempting to secure a position very different from your past work history. This style is also useful if you are seeking your first job (you have no work history), or when you are re-entering the job market and you have gaps of time when you did not work.

(3) Targeted—This style incorporates information found in both of the styles listed above—information about your work history and major areas of skills and knowledge. The main difference with a targeted resume is that you DO mention the title of the position you are seeking, and then list those skills and accomplishments you have had and relevant work experience which are related to your job objective. In short, the whole resume is geared or focused at one specific job (target).

The resume style is recommended when you are confident in your job objective and have related knowledge, skills and experience to support your objective.

(4) Alternative—This style (in the form of a business letter) requires that you first research the company(ies) you would like to work for to learn what their business objectives are and what they need in terms of talent, and then prepare a letter describing how you (with that same talent) can be of help to them.

While this style requires more work (i.e. the research) than the other styles, it can offer certain individuals with limitations (i.e. those people with work gaps, no work experience, etc.) an opportunity to be seen as talented and valuable. This style has also been used very successfully by individuals who could use one of the three styles listed above, but who wanted to demonstrate a uniqueness and willingness to focus in on the employer's needs.

Medical opportunities changing

The medical profession continues to be a growing employment field, but opportunities in the field are changing. Today's medical personnel are most likely not to work in a hospital setting but in fields such as home health care, physical and occupational therapy and geriatric care.

According to the Metropolitan Chicago Health Care Council, jobs are shifting away from hospitals as patients are spending less time in hospital settings and more time in home health care, hospices and utilizing managed care centers.

"One of the growing occupations for the future will likely be communications specialists who work with the families of elderly patients in determining how to approach their health care needs," said Julie Weldon of the Metropolitan Chicago Health Care Council. "The field is growing because the population is aging." Weldon says the need for geriatric services includes doctors as well where the specialties in demand are cardiology, oncology and gerontology.

Employment opportunities are available for medical assistants, nursing assistants, rehabilitation providers, home health care nurses and home health care aides, physical therapy, occupational therapy and general practitioner physicians. Today's medical personnel are most likely to be employed at nursing homes, rehabilitation centers, ambulatory care centers, physicians' offices, managed care centers and homes.

Steady hiring trend indicated

Lake County employers foresee a pleasant job climate this winter, according to the First Quarter Employment Outlook Survey report issued by Manpower Inc.

"Higher staffing levels are anticipated for the January/February/March period by 20 percent of businesses polled, 7 percent are preparing for workforce cutbacks and 73 percent plan to make no adjustments," said Manpower official Chuck Bartels.

Bartels noted that it is not unusual for employers to express hiring reservations at this time of year, mainly due to winter-related production slowdowns and post-holiday staffing reductions. "But, our current outlook is similar to three months ago, when 27 percent said they would increase their employment rolls while 13 percent expected fewer workers. A year ago, 21 percent predicted increases and 14 percent forecast decreases."

This winter, the best job opportunities are expected to be in both durable and non-durable goods manufacturing, and services. Staff reductions are projected in finance/insurance/real estate, while wholesale/retail merchants report mixed intentions.

Nationally, employers plan staff additions at a faster rate than any first quarter since 1985. A total of 22 percent will increase hiring, 12 percent expect a decrease, 63 percent will remain at present level and 3 percent are not yet certain.—Submitted by Manpower, Inc.

The employment outlook survey

Manpower Inc. conducts the Employment Outlook Survey on a quarterly basis. It is a measurement of employers' intentions to increase or decrease the permanent workforce, and during its 18-year history has been a significant indicator of employment trends. The survey is based on telephone interviews with more than 15,000 public and private employers in 469 U.S. cities. Manpower Inc. is the world's largest temporary help firm, annually providing employment to 1.5 million people through more than 2,000 offices in 36 countries. Office services account for more than half of the assignments in which its temporary workforce is engaged.

Agencies assist workers, employers

Based on current trends in employment, temporary positions may account for nearly 25 percent of the work force by the year 2000.

In Lake County, there are several agencies that assist clients in finding employment while providing services to their client company.

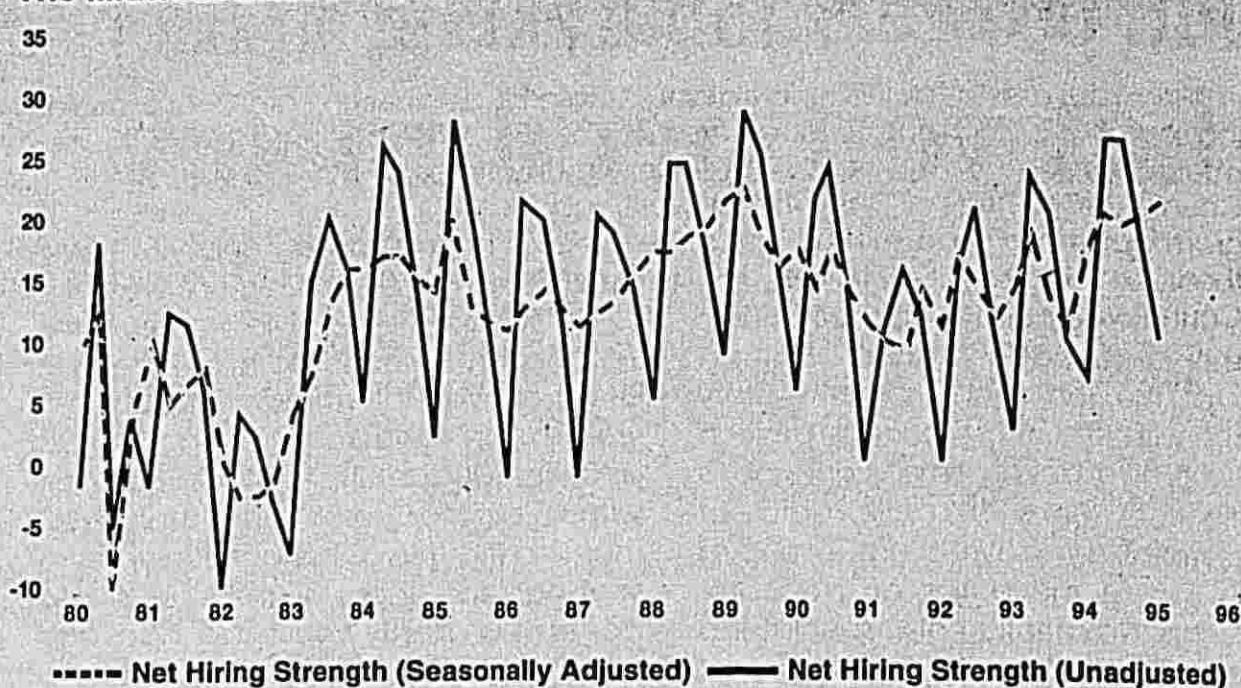

Temporary positions often range for day placements to positions placements that encompass several months.

Kelly, Manpower, Superior Personnel and Matthew are among Lake County companies offering employment placing.

Positions are generally available in light manufacturing and clerical fields. Some agencies, however, to assist in the placement of professional positions as well.

PIC provides job training assistance

Financial assistance with job training, job search, and career guidance are all offered by the Private Council of Lake County (PIC). This federally funded program was established in 1983, and since then, has helped thousands of Lake County workers get training that led to good jobs and stable careers.

"We work with people who have been unemployed for a long time, workers who have lost their jobs because their companies closed or relocated, and young adults who have dropped out of high school, to name just a few," Chris Stevens, PIC's executive director said.

"Our aim is to help people get into career fields that will lead to long term employment and stability," Stevens added. For that reason, PIC assists people with training costs in a wide variety of career fields.

retarial, and health care," Stevens said.

"But those are just a few of the many many types of training PIC offers," she added.

"An important focus for PIC is to look at the kinds of local opportunities that currently exist, and will exist over the next 10 years. We stay in close touch with employers to find out what they need and will need. That helps us direct workers to careers and jobs that will be in demand," she explained.

Another important component of PIC's work is helping individuals find careers and jobs in which they will be satisfied and do well.

"We spend a lot of time helping clients assess their talents, skills, and desires," Stevens said.

"That's the best way to help insure someone's eventual success," she concluded. For more information about PIC's services, contact the organization at 249-2200.

The PIC is a partnership of Lake County business, government and community groups joined to determine the success and economic growth of our area through education, training and effective employment of local residents. The Council aims to increase the profitability of companies and workers. Private Industry Council services are pre-paid by your tax dollars in order to make America more productive and competitive.

The PIC readies potential employees through various types of vocational and skill training courses. The Council arranges basic academic classes where needed, and assists "at risk" students with educational competency enhancement and employment preparation to introduce them to the world of work.

The PIC each year, selects training to meet the requirements of the job market, preparing workers for high-demand manufacturing and service industries. For the 1991-92 year, the Private Industry Council has made arrangements to offer associate degree career preparation at the College of Lake County; vocational skills development at the Area Vocational Center; truck driver training; electronic office machine maintenance; computer drafting; automotive technology; janitorial skills; word processing, WordPerfect and Lotus 123; and office secretarial skill classes.

The PIC as a direct benefit to companies, offers a simple and dollar saving way to hire qualified employees who have been prescreened and are ready to meet the needs of specific firms. The Private Industry Council will reduce the employers' cost of expensive in-shop training by reimbursing half the wages of sponsored workers during several months of supervised instruction. This gives workers the opportunity to learn the necessary job skills while drawing a paycheck.

demand but nursing enrollment had decreased. Now the reverse is true, Peterson said, and workers in the health field are seeking more education.

"People want to be trained in multiple fields," he said. "We're seeing a trend in the growth of allied health programs."

Two technology programs that have experienced a marked rise in enrollment are those in refrigeration and welding, Peterson said.

Although evening classes have always been heavy because of space limitations, more classes on weekends offer learning on a compressed cycle to those in the work force. Late afternoon classes are becoming popular as well. Evening students are generally older, and Peterson said some career programs have become almost entirely evening classes.

The College of Lake County works cooperatively with other colleges and universities to provide courses of limited interest to students in the system. This network allows students to receive credit at the college of their choice for a class offered at another school. Peterson termed it "distance learning."

As the College of Lake County begins its 27th year, students continue to receive the training they need in a positive, innovative atmosphere. The educational opportunities offered at the college allow them to realize their full potential as productive citizens of the county.

Technology helps entrepreneurs realize their dreams

You have good ideas but never could conform to the corporate culture. A big picture person with plenty of energy and enthusiasm. You're better at marketing a product than dealing with office politics. You're ambitious and confident.

Maybe you were meant to be an entrepreneur.

Many Americans—and an increasing number of people around the globe—have fallen in love with the concept of the entrepreneur and the American Dream.

And it's never been easier. Due in part to the decreased cost of technology such as personal computers and computer software, the entrepreneur of the '90s can leave behind many of the fears typically associated with starting your own business.

But even though many Americans dream of having their own business, few act on their ideas. For as many individuals who start their own business, there are just as many with good ideas who feel the barriers are too great to go out on their own.

Don't let the following myths get in

Myth 1: You have to open an office to start a business. It just seems too risky.

Not true. More than 70 percent of small businesses are located in the home. Inexpensive and powerful technologies have taken home-based businesses to a new level, by allowing anyone with a computer, phone, fax and modem to appear like a big business. Technology has given home-based entrepreneurs the ability to compete on a nearly equal footing with bigger companies, and greatly expanded the types of jobs that can be done from home.

Myth 2: You need to know how to run a business and do accounting to start a business.

Computer software is the key here. There are a lot of programs that keep you in control of your business and save you money at the same time.

For example, an easy-to-use accounting software program like QuickBooks, by Intuit, Inc., not only does your accounting for you but manages your small business on a day-today basis.

Myth 3: You have to commit to a 70-hour work week to succeed with your own business.

While there are those entrepreneurs that work down until dusk, the majority of small business people manage to work 40 hour work weeks. In fact, 66 percent work 40 hours or less. When looking only at companies that do have computers, however, this number increases to 78 percent.

So if you want to work less, buy a computer!

Myth 4: You must have lots of money to begin a business. I doubt the bank will give me a loan.

Of those businesses that try to obtain a loan or a line of credit, about 77 percent are successful. This increase is due in part to the increase in Small Business Administration loans to small businesses.

The leading reasons entrepreneurs found it difficult to obtain loans include tighter bank regulations and lack of a solid business plan. Keeping track of your financial information in one place—preferably with an accounting software program—is crucial in the early stages of your business, the SBA says.

For more information on support for starting your own business, call Intuit at 1(800)624-8742 or the Small Business Administration at 1(800)8ASK-SBA.

closely with the RTA, Pace, and Metra to provide more and better service for county residents.

The Metra Commuter Rail Service however has scheduled to expand their commuter line by the spring of 1996 which would feature morning, midday and evening round trips between Antioch and Chicago's Union Station.

Still the need for more parking spaces in the various new train depots along the way, will have to be constructed, said Rus. This is something the TMA will assist with if needed.

Rus said one of the problems with the county seems to come from the fact there are very few major east/west roads. The Rte. 53 extension may alleviate some of this, but it's not for certain yet, said Rus.

For more information and details about dues, write to Joel Rus, c/o The Transportation Management Assn. of Lake County, 504 N. Milwaukee Ave., suite 2G, Libertyville, IL 60048, or call (708) 816-8395.—by TINA SWIECH

CEO's advised that employee concerns deserve top priority

Amid the intense competition that characterizes business in the 90's, a sample of the nation's senior executives believe CEO's should spend more than one-third (34 percent) of their time building the morale and productivity of their troops. The results underscore the strategic importance now being given to staffing and employee retention issues in U.S. companies.

The survey was developed by Robert Half International Inc., the world's first and largest staffing services firm specializing in the accounting, finance and information technology fields. It was conducted by an independent research firm, which polled 150 executives from the nation's 1,000 largest companies. Executives were asked, "What percentage of CEO's time should be spent fostering positive employee relations?" The mean response was 34 percent.

"Promoting job satisfaction and reducing employee turnover are viewed as top priorities for corporate leaders, especially in the wake of the recent recession," said Max Messmer, chairman and CEO of Robert Half International.

"Professionals who waited for improved economic conditions to look for better jobs are now on the move, so it's important than ever to foster a possitive working environment—or companies may lose some of their best talent."

The fact that other executives recognize the level of involvement required of CEO's is encouraging given the many issues facing management today, noted Messmer. He advises companies to extend this involvement to all senior level employees. Some tips:

- Avoid pitting employees against one another in unhealthy competition. Instead motivate them to work toward benefitting the department or company.

- Maintain open lines of communication at all levels, thus preventing the potential for resentment.

Encourage employees to look for constructive solutions for settling disputes.

- Reward teamwork by recognizing the efforts of all employees who have contributed to a successful project.

"The job outlook is better for candidates than it has been for some time," said Fred Getz, Robert Half's president for the Chicago area. "And with hiring activity on the rise, it's more important than ever for CEO's to pay attention to job satisfaction, retention and other employee morale issues."

"When the head of a company spends time on issues critical to staff members, it makes a strong impact because everyone is aware of how valuable and limited the executive's time is," he added.

Robert Half International has more than 175 offices in the United States, Canada and Europe.

Working parents may earn tax break for child care

For many, the costs of day care are a necessary part of working, but there is a way to ease the burden a bit. Working parents who pay someone to care for their children so they can work may get a tax break.

The credit for child and dependent care can be as much as $720 for the care of one qualifying child or $1,440 for two or more children. Qualifying parents can subtract the credit from the tax owed on their federal income tax return.

Generally, to qualify for the credit, the parent, and spouse if married, must work or be looking for work. There are exceptions for students and disabled spouses. The child must be under age 13 or disabled when the care was provided.

For those who file Form 1040, the credit is figured on Form 2441. Form 2441 is attached to the tax return. Form 1040A filers use Schedule 2.

To claim the credit, parents must list the name, address and taxpayer identification number of the care provider. If they cannot get the identification number, the parents should list the efforts made to get the number. Generally, married taxpayers must file a joint return to get the credit.

Lower-income working parents who have newborns should note that there is an additional earned income credit

(EIC) for a child born in 1994. If they qualify for the EIC, parents should figure out how much they would get for the additional EIC for a child born in 1994. They should compare this with the amount they could get for the child care credit that gives the greater benefit. Qualifying parents can claim either the additional EIC or the child care credit, but not both. EIC or the child care credit, but not both.

For more information on these credits, get Publications 503, "Child and Dependent Care Expenses," and 596, "Earned Income Credit." Order free tax forms and publications from the Internal Revenue Service by calling 1-800-829-3676.

Mileage rate deduction unchanged

Business travelers can deduct 28 cents a mile for an unlimited number of business miles in 1994; the same as for the 1993 tax year.

As an alternative, business travelers can choose to deduct their actual expenses, such as gas, oil, lease or rental fees (subject to special rules), insurance, tolls and repairs for the business use of a vehicle.

A complete explanation, which includes rules on leased cars, depreciation, partial business use and record keeping, is in IRS Publication 917, "Business Use of a Car." To order a free copy, call 1-800-829-3676. Listen to IRS recorded information on the subject by calling Tele-Tax at 1-800-829-4477. Ask for Topic 510.

Five things every high school graduate should know about today's job market

Leaders in industry and government are championing continuing education as a means to success in today's world. According to President Bill Clinton, "If we are going to compete and win again, we are going to have to work harder and work smart and become life-long learners." The following five points under-score the value of education for career success.

1. In America, service industries are growing rapidly. The focus of job opportunities in this country is shifting from heavy industry and manufacturing to service-oriented industries. Like all industries, the service sector relies heavily on computers and related electronics for everything from processing information to storing data communicating. Time spent studying technology is usually a worthwhile investment for career success.

2. Technical fields hold a myriad of opportunities. A technical education can help prepare a person for a growing list of technical career fields—fields which may not have even existed a few years ago.

3. First Impressions still count. Experts estimate personnel directors at medium to large companies see 200 resumes a week. They spend 30 seconds on each resume, then they toss it into a "keep" or "reject" pile. A resume should be organized, complete, informative and clear.

4. The future isn't what is used to be. Some of the greatest opportunities in today's work place are in settings only imagined a few years ago. Industry will need people prepared to design, install, use, repair and sell their technology. A strong technological background and a willingness to continue learning can help one's chances in the work place.

5. Continued success includes continued education. As American industry changes, so will the technology that moves it forward. Workers may need to return to the classroom to keep informed of technological advancements. Some employers require additional education or advanced study for their employees.—by RENE R. CHAMPAGNE

Job hunting: Turning failure into successful employment

For millions of Americans, the task of conducting a job search produces little more than frustration, anger, humiliation, rejection, and personal defeat. In working with thousands of job seekers, most individuals will place job hunting close to the top of their list of things they fear most in life, just after death, serious illness or injury, financial ruin, and divorce. There is no question that the process of finding employment, for many people, is a difficult task incumbent with a high rate of personal pain and failure. Knowing this, countless numbers of employment placement agencies have sprung up across the nation to supposedly relieve people of this burden.

Are you then doomed to face this terrible situation alone? Is the task of hunting for employment one which you should simply understand and accept is filled with pain and suffering? Is job hunting one of life's bitter moments? No, not if approached intelligently from an informed perspective. Specifically, not if you acquire and use effective job seeking strategies and skills.

The process is akin to watching two individuals who each speak a different language trying to talk to each other. Their intentions may be good, but because of their inability to understand each other, the outcome is predictable. Many people simply do not understand the needs of employers and therefore, fail to communicate the very information which employers require when selecting employees.

The process of seeking employment is a task, a task which can be learned and mastered just like any other task in life. Unfortunately, few people take the time to learn how to successfully seek employment.

The bottom line then is simple—if you are willing to learn several effective job seeking strategies and skills, you can decrease your pain and failure and increase your success.

It is surprising how many people use the same old failure-ridden strategy for seeking employment. Once the decision has been made that a job is needed, most people will prepare a resume and cover letter (which is their way of announcing to the world that they are available) and then start looking for any individual or company where they can forward this information.

This process, often referred to as the "shot gun" approach, requires that you send out dozens, if not several hundred, letters and resumes.

Now you would think that after sending out hundreds of letters and resumes, and after making countless numbers of phone calls, that you would be offered several positions. Well, the truth of the matter is just the opposite. I'm no longer surprised to hear from people who followed this strategy that they received maybe one or two responses and even these were not exactly what they wanted.

After completing such a seemingly thorough job of seeking employment and after getting such a poor response, the conclusion that most people draw from this experience is "there are no jobs out there for me". This conclusion often turns into panic and depression. At this point most people become desperate and will accept just about any job, rather than getting the one they really want.

Unfortunately (or fortunately, if you own or work for an employment placement agency), this is the time when many frustrated and defeated job seekers will seek help from professional services and will be willing to pay "big bucks" for them to do what they believe they can not do for themselves. In addition to using placement agencies, other resources are often used, such as Career Planning and Placement services on college campuses, the Department of Employment Security, classified help wanted ads in newspapers, computerized job banks, labor and trade unions, professional organizations, and private head hunting firms.

Don't use the "shot gun" approach and send your resume and letter to every company you think may hire you. That approach will not work well for you. Here's a four step strategy you should adopt which has demonstrated over the years to produce more job offers and better job offers than the conventional strategy.

Step 1—Determine your career objective

Before you even start the process of job hunting, know what kind of job you want to find. If you do not know what you're looking for, how will you know where to look for it, and how will employers know what you can do for them?

Do not go into the job market with a vague or general idea of what kind of position you want. Many people falsely believe that their odds will be improved if they do not indicate a specific career objective on their resume, in their cover letters, or in conversations with company representatives. The more general they are, the more positions they believe they will be offered. This is a fatal mistake. Do not ask the employer to determine what type of position you should be offered. If you are unclear in your objective, the employer will be unsure of your value, and you will simply be passed over in most situations.

If you are unsure of a career direction, seek out professional career guidance before you start your job search. Know what talent (knowledge and skills) you possess, and which occupations typically require your talent.

Step 2—Determine who needs you

Depending upon your talent, your next job is to identify those employers who have a need for your assistance.

Specifically, you need to identify employers who typically hire the kind of position you would like to secure. There are many ways to identify potential employers, too many to go into detail in this article. However, the commercial bookstores are loaded with books on how to find potential employers.

Don't worry whether or not these employers have any current employment openings. Most job openings are never advertised. Therefore, if you only seek those with advertised positions, you'll be looking at only a fraction of the real market. Plus, if you identify an employer at the time an advertisement for employment has occurred, you will be contacting the employer at the very time when the competition will be the keenest. You want to get to the employer before he or she places a public notice for help. This strategy is referred to as finding the "hidden" job market.

Don't concentrate solely on just those employers who have publicly stated that they have an employment position available.

Once you have identified a list of potential employers, eliminate those on your list who represent the least attractive opportunities.

Note: this is the point at which most job seekers will send out their resumes and cover letters. Because they fail to complete the next step, they are often unable to offer employers the kind of information which is necessary for an employer to conclude that you are the right one for the job.

Step 3—Determine why the employer needs you

Understand that for the vast majority of employers, the decision to hire someone comes down to one simple point. A person is hired because he or she is seen as the person best suited to help the employer reach his or her business goals. This connection between the employer's need and your talent is critical to your job seeking success. Understand the connection and you can succeed, fail to realize how you can help an employer and your application for employment will usually be rejected.

To understand what an employer needs and whether or not they need you will require you to do some research of each company. You need to find out such things as, what are the company's objectives, how are they currently trying to reach those objectives, are there better ways to reach the objectives, what are the current obstacles which exist that are prohibiting them from reaching those objectives, and most importantly, what role does the position you want play in reaching those objectives.

The bottom line here is the more informed you are concerning the employer's needs and how you can help him or her satisfy those needs, the better chance you have of convincing him or her to hire you.

Helpful rules for writing cover letters to get a job

While there are no hard and fast rules which are universally accepted and which govern the writing of employment letters, there are several conditions which most job seeking experts agree should be taken into consideration. For example,

- Always attempt to direct your letter to a specific individual, preferably the person who has authority over the position you seek. This may mean doing a little research to discover the person's name, but well worth the effort.
- Always make mention of the product line or services which the company offers, or some of the major business activities in which the company is involved. In other words, demonstrate to the reader that you are well informed about their business activities.
- Always mention how your experience or talents fits into the company's mission or business activities. Don't assume the reader can determine your value-tell the reader how you can be of value to him or her.
- Don't focus only on what you want in your career or job search. Focus in on how you can help the employer with his or her business needs and goals!

- Always ask for an opportunity to discuss how you can be of value to the employer. In short, ask for an interview. Don't "soft pedal" your words hoping the reader will figure out that you're looking for an interview.
- Always try to keep your letter to one page-single spaced and typed with a clear and readable typestyle. Use a good quality paper.
- Don't use slang or abbreviations-use traditional grammar and writing style. Don't try to get fancy in an effort to catch the reader's attention.
- Always check your letter for errors in spelling, grammar, and punctuation!
- Don't ask the reader to "get back to you". Tell the reader you will call, stop in, or write back to further discuss your mutual employment interest.
- Always try to use language which is familiar to the reader. Don't use acronyms which the reader may be unfamiliar with, but do try to use the "vocabulary" which is appropriate for the position you seek.

How to answer ads more effectively

To help cut through the resume clutter follow the following tips:

- P. O. Box numbers can be an obstacle because you cannot address your cover letter to a specific person. In many cases, however, you can identify the company and subsequently the person to whom you can address your letter by calling the post office that represents the zip code in the address. Often the post office will tell you the company. This won't work, however, if the company rented its box through the newspaper in which it advertised.

- If the first sentence in your cover letter says, "This letter is in response to your ad," you will sound just like the other 150 to 400 applicants. Try a different approach. Go to the library and get an annual report or trade magazine article about the company. Then write a beginning paragraph that addresses how your qualifications can help a company increase their profits, market share or save them money.

- Edit, proof and edit again! Keep sentences in your cover letter short and crisp.

SALAIR

The 1762 square foot Salair has a floor plan that is amenable to many family situations. This two level design has two good sized bedrooms on the upper floor. For a family with older children living at home, or those caring for elderly parents, this second floor can serve as a small apartment. Each of the bedrooms has ample closet space and a window to sample the view. Extra linen storage is available in the hallway, along with a full bathroom. Empty nesters that just want to have extra room when grandchildren or old friends come to visit, can seal off the entire second level when not in use.

Raised steps lead up to a covered porch on the main floor. A short hallway to the left of the entry takes you into the isolated master suite. Amenities here include a spacious walk-in closet, vaulted ceiling, private bathroom and vanity. A convenient half-bath in the hallway is available for your guests.

The large living room/dining room area is the main focus point of this beautiful home. Entertain family and friends in the living room as you revel in the warmth of the built-in fireplace. Formal meals can be eaten in the adjacent dining room. A bay window lets you enjoy the view as you dine.

The walk-through kitchen continues the free flow of movement that is the essence of this home. Here the cook in the house can prepare and serve meals either in the dining room, the nearby breakfast nook or at the casual eating bar without missing out on any of the goings-on. Features in this modern kitchen include walk-in pantry, built-in appliances and garden window. Close to the kitchen is a small utility room that houses the washer and dryer.

Steps lead to the large two-car garage that has access to the back yard. For a study kit of the SALAIR (404-18), send $10.00, to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-LP60, Eugene, OR 97402 (Be sure to specify plan name & number). For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular home plans, send $20 to Landmark.

Date: Feb. 17
Time: 7 p.m.
Team records: Grayslake (10-2, 16-5); Wauconda (3-10, 7-14).
Key players: Grayslake's Dave Mendralla, John Parr, Pete Neuberger. Wauconda's Chris Van Alstine, Mike Schmitz, Jim Schmuck.
Keys to game: Mendralla's shooting is always the key in any Grayslake game, but Neuberger's efforts should not be overlooked and Parr's health is a factor. Wauconda needs to stop Neuberger and Mendralla for the first win over league leaders.
Prediction: Grayslake by 10.

Time: 7 p.m.
Team records: Grant (8-4, 10-10), Johnsburg (8-4, 14-7).
Key players: Grant's Dave Stone, Mike Nelson. Johnsburg's Jason Miller, Eric Peterson.
Keys to game: Grant needs to show same intensity in win over Round Lake. Johnsburg's Peterson can take over a game.

Mundelein's forfeits, this game is battle for first place. Warren likes to go to Ryan Kelter in clutch times.
Prediction: Warren by 1 as Blue Devils make last-second shot.
Mundelein at Lake Zurich

Time: 7 p.m.
Team Records: Mundelein (13-2, 20-4); Lake Zurich (9-3, 13-8).
Key Players: Mundelein's Brian McMahon, Sean Stackhouse, Dave Bumblis and Ivan Hourrutiner. Lake Zurich's Jim Roberts, Randy Witt, Jon Gifford and Pat DeVito.
Keys to the game: This is the first game Mundelein will be playing in since the state announced the Mustangs had to forfeit the first five games of the year due to the ineligibility of Ivan Hourrutiner. The game will test Mundelein's true character. For Lake Zurich, they could match up pretty well against Mundelein. Jim Roberts has the ability to drive the lane as well as shoot the three-pointer. Generally, Lake Zurich is a good outside shooting club.

Prediction: Mundelein wants to prove the ineligibility fluke is just that. Mustangs by 8.
Antioch at Stevenson
Date: Feb. 21
Time: 7:30 p.m.
Team records: Antioch (5-9, 12-11); Stevenson (5-9, 8-16).

Both teams have their stars: Stevenson, Peter Ferguson; Antioch, Eric Eckenstahler. Stevenson just received a boost with the return of Ryan Keller. Antioch's Adam Becker has been a terror on the court as of late.
Prediction: Antioch by 8 with its winning edge coming from the bench.

Rowe's effort keys Lady Lancers

Two consistent halves allowed College of Lake County women's basketball team to gain a split in league play.

The Lancers downed Morton 57-41 but lost to Oakton 54-39 for a 1-7 Skyway Conference record, 4-17 overall.

"We had a good 40 minutes against Morton. We were up by 8 points at halftime and beat them again by 8 in the second half," CLC Coach Don Zeman said.

Kim Rowe led the CLC effort with 25 points on 9-of-15 shooting. "She got most of her shots from the free-throw line and in. We worked the ball well," Zeman said.

Rowe was the only double-digit scorer, but all players contributed. Melina Vick had 9 points, followed by Nicole Pollard and Ria Cruz with 8 each. Lisa Sinnokrak had 7.

CLC trailed by 8 against Oakton at the half but could not mount a rally.

Pollard, a Round Lake High grad, had 12 points and Sinnokrak had 10.

CLC, finishing the year with five players, concluded the Skyway Conference season with a make-up with Morton and nationally-ranked McHenry.

Duval: Kessel, team not to blame for forfeits

Mundelein High fought every step it could to retain the full eligibility of Ivan Hourrutiner.

"Coach Dennis Kessel and Ivan's teammates are not to be blamed or accused in any way," Doug Duval, MHS athletic director, said.

The Mustangs were forced to forfeit five victories after the Illinois High School Association Board of Directors supported Executive Director H. David Fry's decision to rule the Mundelein senior ineligible for the first six games, five wins. Two of the wins came in conference play over Warren and Stevenson.

The forfeit losses drop Mundelein to 15-9 overall, 11-4 North Suburban Conference. MHS is at Lake Zurich for a non-conference game Feb. 18. The ruling does not impact the senior's present status.

"Ivan met all of our residency requirements," Duval said.

On Nov. 23, 1994, Fry wrote to MHS seeking information on Hourrutiner, who had moved from Puerto Rico. He requested such information as age, participation in his former school and others.

"We did not get the letter until Nov. 29. No fax was received. With modern technology, we could have responded more quickly to them," Duval said.

On Dec. 5, Fry sent a letter to Mundelein officials stating Hourrutiner was ineligible for the entire 1994-95 school year.

"Ivan was viewed to be a student living and going to school where his parents do not live. I cannot accept the transfer of guardianship for simple reason he wants to go to school in the United States," Fry's letter said.

MHS sent the IHSA more information about the case and on Dec. 13 Fry amended his ruling to state Hourrutiner could play, but the school must forfeit the games he had played.

"We did not agree with that," Duval said.

Legal counsel was appointed and the appeal process begun in earnest. Principal John Davis and Duval met with Fry, but the executive board of the IHSA still supported Fry's ruling.

"There is nothing more we can do," Duval said. Duval and Kessel met with the team.

"We are not going to let that hurdle stand in the way. We are looking forward to the remainder of the season," Duval said.

Warren High was guaranteed of holding first place in the NSC at least until it battled Zion-Benton at home Feb. 17.

"You would rather win on the court. But a lot of things happen in athletics that you do not have any control over," Warren Coach Chuck Ramsey said. "There are not many second chances in athletics and we received a second chance."

He said news of the four Mundelein forfeits cause due to eligibility problems of Ivan Hourrutiner "picked up the spirits at practice. Then we had a typical day of practice."

As for the Zion game, Warren will look for revenge for a 7-point first round loss. Warren enters the game at 11-3 in the NSC, while Zion is 10-3.

"We have to cover the outside shooters, rebound and take care of the basketball," Ramsey said.

"Winning the conference has always been one of our goals. Hopefully we can do that and go far in the state tournament," Warren guard Joel Dangel said.

"We are happy for the extra win, but we still want to win it on the court," Warren's Chris A said.

Krombach, defense key Carmel in tourney win

Carmel High used two of its old reliables, defense and free-throw shooting to emerge with a first-round win in the Stevenson sectional complex.

Carmel beat back a strong effort from Highland Park 59-50. Carmel, the fourth seed, hosted fifth seed Antioch Thursday in the regional final round.

"Highland Park played much better and they had one starter out," Carmel Coach Larry Whittier said.

Carmel won the third period 12-8 as they put more defensive pressure on the Giants. Colleen Krombach scored 18 points and had a season high 13 rebounds.

"She has the ability to score, rebound and has leadership. She has been improving in all three categories this year," Whittier said.

Erin Potempa scored 15 points and hit the last two free-throws which iced the win. Krombach made 10-of-11 as Carmel outscored the visitors 23-7.

Carmel improved to 17-9 and faced 11-14 Antioch. The winner advances to the semifinals at Stevenson Feb. 20.

"Antioch is similar to us in that we both play up tempo defense," Whittier said.

CLC wrestlers look ahead as season ends at region

A strong nucleus of three returning wrestlers plus verbal commitments from two high school state qualifiers have Stan Pasiewicz optimistic.

The College of Lake County wrestling coach saw his team's season come to an end when the Lancers failed to qualify anyone for the national tourney for the first time in seven years. The Lancers had two third-place finishers at the Midwest Zone regional Saturday at Harper.

Chris Haag at 190 pounds and Mike

Gonzalez at 142 placed third, but it takes a top two finish to make national tourney at Bismark, N.D.

Both wrestlers along with 167-pounder Mike Schweiss may return next year.

"All three want to wrestle this summer," Pasiewicz said.

Libertyville's Tony Carlsen and Antioch's Steve Zalapi have indicated their verbal commitment to CLC.

"That is definitely a benefit. And we are getting good vibes from county coaches and we will be out there recruiting," Pasiewicz said.

Gonzalez only wrestled once at Harper, but it was a close decision in the third period.

"Mike has improved a lot this year," Pasiewicz said.

Haag lost two decisions, including one to qualifier Justin Selby of Harper.

"Haag was in it until the end against the Lincoln wrestler," Pasiewicz said.

Haag finished 11-7, Gonzalez 5-11; sophomore Justin Zdeb 4-12.

Carmel looks for better beginning

Playing basketball in another team's gym far from home on the road is tough enough.

But deficits such as the ones Carmel dug for itself in East Suburban Catholic Conference action last weekend did not help in its latest league losses. Carmel lost 70-65 to St. Viator and 66-60 at St. Patrick.

"We are in a habit of getting behind playing on the road," Carmel Coach Ben Berg said.

St. Viator led by 17 before a Carmel rally made the final score look respectable.

St. Patrick led by six at halftime and after a brief Carmel rally extended the lead with a 24-point fourth quarter.

Carmel (4-18, 3-8 ESCC) had its moments in both games.

Mike Graham scored 17 points and Eric Ames and Ruben Rivera scored 11 each against St. Viator.

"Ruben is seeing a lot more playing time because of his defense. He creates a lot of his offense with his defense," Berg said.

Koch had a season-high 9 rebounds.

Mike Malone canned four three-pointers in the loss at St. Patrick Saturday. Dan Graham had 10 points and 8 rebounds.

"We have been making six to eight three-pointers a game. We like to take between 17 and 20," Berg said.

Carmel earned a non-conference win with a 53-49 at Wheeling.

The game was a see-saw affair with Carmel pulling ahead by 7 points in the second half.

Mike Graham scored 17 points to boost his average over 10 per game.

"He is starting to come around. He is learning some moves to go with his athleticism," Berg said.

Carmel is at Notre Dame Feb. 17 before hosting Loyola Feb. 18 in 7:30 p.m. games.

"Notre Dame is a very good defensive team which likes to keep the score in the 50's," Berg said.

Notre Dame is in second place in the ESCC, 8-3 in loop games.

"We are going to have to work on playing four quarters because Mundelein is our tournament opponent and they are as good as any team we have faced all year," Berg said.

Mundelein, the top seed in the Waukegan sectional, hosts No. 16 and last seed Carmel at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 28 in a first-round game.

Defense helps CHS defend its division

Larry Whittier said there were no magic words said at halftime of the Carmel - St. Scholastica girls basketball game.

The Carmel coach may have been right, but whatever was said was enough as Carmel ran a 15-3 spurt to a 47-36 victory. The win gave Carmel the White Division crown in the Girls Catholic Athletic Conference for the second straight year.

"We made some minor adjustments. We talked about the pride factor and that this would be our last year in the GCAC and that we owed it to the seniors who graduated last year," Whittier said.

Carmel stung the home team, which led by four at halftime and had defeated the Corsairs earlier. Carmel brought a 16-9 record to this week's Stevenson sectional complex.

"We changed up our defense to a man-to-man. It is more of an uptempo defense," Whittier said.

Senior Erin Potempa scored 18 points to lead the Carmel effort. Colleen Krombach had 13 points and Jill Denoma added 7 points and 4 rebounds.

Jamie McGill sparked the defense with four steals.

"Erin had a good fourth quarter with 8 of her points and Colleen had a good third quarter with 6 of her points," Whittier said.

Krombach, Denoma and Erin Clancy took turns guarding St. Scholastica's previous leading scorer, limiting her to a single point.

Williams' free throws gives LFC exciting home finale

Jermaine Williams knows Lake Forest College has the potential of being a good free-throw shooting team.

The Foresters showed their talents from the free-throw line making 14-of-17 tries. The last two were the most important. Williams' pair with 11 seconds left allowed the Foresters to escape with a 71-70 win over Lawrence.

"I concentrate a lot," Williams said.

He scored 17 points to lead the Foresters to their 11th win, an 11-9 record.

"The win really helps our confidence. We are getting ready for next year now," Williams, a Carmel High grad, said.

That is because a 69-68 loss at Beloit on a last-second three-point shot cost the Foresters a shot at the Midwest Conference post-season tourney.

"Reaching .500 was one of our goals. If, at the beginning of the year, you would have said we would be .500, I would be happy. But we were two last-second shots away from the conference tournament," LFC Coach Ed Timm said.

LFC is 5-7 in the Midwest Conference and concludes the season Feb. 15 at Ripon and Feb. 18 at Carroll College.

The Foresters won just six games in Timm's first year last season. Matt Roszak, a senior, scored 11 points, 7 coming in the final four minutes.

"We did not play particularly well, but we did the things we had to. Matt struggled, but it was a sign of a senior to comeback in the final minutes," Timm said.

It was a three-point play set up by a pass from Mike Anasni (10 points, 5 assists) which gave LFC a 69-65 lead with 1:08 left. Lawrence (6-14, 2-10) cut the lead to two, but Williams calmly swished both free throws.

"We missed so many easy ones, we were not mentally into the game," Timm said.

"Jermaine did not get a lot of shots, but teams are trying to take him out," Timm said.

Ryan Haynes reached double figures with 10 points. LFC shot only 38 percent, Lawrence 43 percent.

"They shoot a lot of perimeter shots and you figure those shots will not go in at the end as they did in the beginning," Timm said.

Ben Bongratz, a Warren Township High grad, had 8 points and had a team-high 8 rebounds.

Lancers find range, gain split

Hitting the century mark for the first time was the highlight for College of Lake County men's basketball team in Skyway Conference play. The Lancers downed Morton 102-85 at home but lost at Oakton 89-65. The split gave the Lancers a 11-15, 4-5 Skyway) record heading into the regular season's final week.

"We were ahead the whole game and we had pretty balanced scoring," Coach Bruce Smith said of the Morton game.

CLC led by 9 at halftime and opened up the lead in the second half. Justin Hanlin, a Warren Township High grad, had 20 points, Mike Rudd of Libertyville 18 and Ronzehl Newsome 16. Kurt Filiatreault had 7 as did Robert Kindle. Newsome had the hot hand from the perimeter making 4 three-pointers. It was a different story against second-place Oakton.

"They played a pretty good zone and defensive rebounded real well," Smith said. Manuel Stutts had 22 and Hanlin 12.

The Lancers learn they open sectional play at Elgin Feb. 21. "We have not played them a good game yet. Hopefully we will for the tournament," Smith said. Elgin has clinched the Skyway title.
